Wok's 40-year career turns full circle

BY MARK GRIGGS

BUTCHER, PUBLICAN, ganger, builder's labourer, dog catcher, street sweeper, professional barbecuer – a fair mix of working life over the past 40 years for Colin (WOK) Sheridan.

But not many people return to the trade or profession where they first started.

Except for Wok.

On Monday, he realised his dream, and with his wife Pam, took possession of the butcher shop where he started his apprenticeship, now called Central Butchery in Lee Street.

Wok started work for Col Bryant who owned the Lee Street Bryant's Butchery and opened the Plaza Butchery where Wok worked from 1985 to 1987, then moved to the Lee Street shop in 1991.

At the time Col Bryant's son Gavin was running the Wellington Hotel and Wok joined the hotel trade for four to five years, taking over as licensee up to 1999 when he went back to butchering with Bubbles Tierney at his Central Butchery on the corner of Swift and Simpson Streets on the western side of the rail line.

After four years with Bubbles, Wok became meat manager at BiLo.

A complete change in work and life-style, Wok worked for David Burke for four years before joining Wellington

Council and his longest stint, 20 years.

During those years Wok tried his hand at dog catching for three years, street sweeping for seven years, then joined the outdoors staff for 10 years finishing as a ganger.

In the meantime, he hadn't abandoned his butchering trade.

With Pam and their daughters, Wok's Spit Roasts was a weekend business for some 15 years and continues today.

But on Monday, it was back to where he started – a full circle.

"I always wanted to get back into butchering, but never thought I'd get the opportunity," he told the Wellington & District Leader.

"And then when me and Josh started talking about it, it sort of evolved."

Pam and Colin purchased the business from Josh Fisk, who said he was going to enjoy a well-earned holiday before he thought about his future.

Monday was nostalgic for Wok, he was the owner of the business where he first started work.

"I always missed this industry and always enjoyed the thrill of the chase talking to people, and now the older customers I used to serve, and now their kids and grandkids," he said.

"Owning my own shop has always been a dream – in the back of my mind to get it done.

"But I didn't think it would ever happen."

Wellington Meet & Greet - well attended

WELL DONE to Stretch and his crew of amazing volunteers for putting on another very well attended Wellington Meet & Greet. It's these sort of events that help people to make connections within the community and feel part of the town. ***

Yindyamarra Healing Mens Group visits Dubbo

It was great to catch up with Jeff Amatto and his team from the Yindyamarra Landcare & Maintenance/YHMG when they visited the Winhangarra Hub at Dubbo for a BBQ and a yarn. There were a number of Dubbo blokes who visited for the first time and this is a powerful opportunity for connection and change. ***

Wellington Arts Pop-Up, ART-EXPRESS, Dubbo Region Art Fair

When too much art is barely enough!!

The region is in the midst of an art extravaganza with a few events that I wished to highlight. Wellington Arts held their highly successful

Pop-Up Opening last Saturday. I'm looking forward to the eventual opening of the new forever home!

The Wellington Arts volunteers are also busy with the preparations for Fong Lees Lane Festival on Friday, September 11 from 4pm.

Another date for the diary is the Dubbo Region Art Fair at the Western Plains Cultural Centre from October 9-11 that showcases emerging regional artists.

Nearly 2000 people attend which provides a great opportunity for local artists to sell their artworks to the community.

More than 30 local artists from our region are featured and promote the thriving creative sector.

Another opportunity for partons of the Arts is the ARTEXPRESS exhibition visiting the WPCC again from this Saturday. This is a showcase of the finest emerging visual arts talent from NSW high schools the HSC Visual Arts syllabus.

ARTEXPRESS is a joint partnership between the NSW Education Standards Authority and the NSW Department of Education, and runs until October 4.

Dubbo Saleyards wins award

The Dubbo Saleyards has been awarded the 2026 Excellence & Innovation Award at this year's AgriNous National Saleyards Conference held in Rockhampton.

The Excellence & Innovation Award celebrates the people and facilities driving positive change across Australia's saleyards.

It was awarded for the standout operational performance, commitment to innovation and continuous improvement, and for facilitating positive outcomes for livestock, people, industry stakeholders, and the local producers.

Council is committed to having the best stock selling centre in Australia, and the future looks bright.

Dubbo Saleyards recently had a facility-wide masterplan adopted to guide future developments and upgrades. Significant works occurring over the next few years include new shade structures, feed yards, water troughs, and an upgraded administration building. ***

Fire pits and chimney smoke

Not wanting to be a 'Nanny State', but with the late onset of actual cold winter weather it is a good time for a reminder on how to keep wood heater smoke to a minimum by all playing our part to try to keep air quality a bit better.

* Use dry, untreated wood in your wood heater or fire pit.

* Get your chimney cleaned each year (also helps reduce the risk of house fires)

* Don't let a fire smoulder overnight.

* When using a wood heater, open the air right up to let it burn hotter and cleaner.

* If you have green waste, please use your green-lid bin to dispose of it, do not burn it.

Smoke from wood heaters and recreational fire pits can cause breathing difficulties for vulnerable residents especially people prone to respiratory conditions such as asthma.

Enjoy your recreational fire pit or wood heaters responsibly and minimise smoke to ensure everyone can breathe easier this winter.

Ron Jones made a surprise presentation to Dave Redfern of this press that the metal work section (a joint effort with Ray Eade and Ian Taylor, who unfortunately were away due to illness) made whilst Dave was on holidays in Winton, Qld.

Dave collects all types and coloured timber, sands the timber then laminate's it, hence the need of the press (much better than six bricks).

He then turns the wooden block into a very fine bowl or plate that would sit very nicely on anyone's table, full of fruit.

Letter to the editor

Editor,
The Capital Gain Potential of a "family home" was not a consideration until recently. To many of us the "family home" grew with the family.

It was a sanctuary of protection, comfort, and survival, before we had to make our own way in the world, and where our parents ultimately lived out their lives with memories, familiarity and security.

Initially the "typical family home" in Wellington was necessarily small, to be affordable, and as the family grew, obvious room additions and/or verandahs were enclosed and became "sleepouts" and a drive around town today reflects this.

When the "sleepout" was added to our family home in Wellington it was progressively filled with myself and four brothers, and with the final arrival of a sister a room addition for her privacy was added to the "sleepout".

In our situation, before and after the introduction of television, we all sprawled around the small but adequate lounge room, sometimes contesting for space, and argue whose turn it was to go out and get a log for the old 'Warmray' wood heater in winter.

In summer, all doors and windows were closed during the day, and with no need for security concern, left wide open all night and this was how we lived with the heat.

Air conditioning was a thing of the future and the fans at that time were dangerous to infants.

School homework, and my father's many business and other clerical requirements were all carried out on the kitchen table and early each morning Max Bloomfield would walk through the house, and off that same table, pick up the money bags with the day's change money for the three veggie trucks and shop.

When Max came through the house, during four of my high school years, it was my signal to get up and go up to where Maranatha House now stands to milk the family cow before school, and every few days separate cream for my mum cranking the Separator with its many, many washable components.

Most of this was not untypical of the life as a family in the family homes of the 1960's when everyone had to "chip in" whilst living very close, and confronting issues face to face and is a life of the past never to be repeated.

The threat of a leather strap invariably ensured that issues did not escalate or persist unresolved, which is absolutely a thing of the past and can never be repeated.

Today the emphasis of monetary value on almost everything in our lives, credit availability and the increasing invitation of Government into our lives, have detrimentally changed what we once valued and benefited from, especially the affordable "family home" where future young families can grow together and live real contributing lives.

Polocrosse says 'Thanks'

SOME MONTHS back the Leader promoted a fundraising drive towards junior Polocrosse players to tour the USA.

Emily Edwards and Christina Edwards Honeyman asked for donations of used batteries as part of that fundraising campaign.

They reported raising $1414.80 from the batteries donated, and were so thrilled with the support, they contacted the Leader to say 'thanks' to all who contributed.

The team will take on the American Juniors in September.

Polocrosse is a team sport derived from elements of polo and lacrosse.

It is played on a field (called a pitch) on horseback.

Each rider uses a cane or fiberglass stick with a racquet head of loose, thread net, in which the ball is carried to score by sending the ball between and above the opposing team's goal posts.

National Meals on Wheels Day 2026 celebrates a movement of care powering communities across Australia and Wellington

THIS NATIONAL Meals on Wheels Day, communities across Australia — including Meals on Wheels WELLINGTON — will recognise the extraordinary impact of Meals on Wheels in delivering not only essential nutrition, but also connection, dignity and care to older Australians and people in need.

Held annually on the last Wednesday in August, (August 26) National Meals on Wheels Day shines a light on the thousands of volunteers, staff and supporters who form a nationwide movement of care that has supported communities for more than 70 years.

Chair of Meals on Wheels Australia, Paul Sadler, said the day was an opportunity to acknowledge the enduring importance of human connection in community care.

“Meals on Wheels is one of Australia’s most trusted and enduring community services, but at its heart it is something even more powerful — it is neighbours caring for neighbours,” Mr Sadler said.

“Every meal delivered represents more than nutrition. “It is a check-in, a conversation and a moment of connection that can quite literally change someone’s day, and sometimes their life.”

Mr Sadler said for over seven decades volunteers remain the backbone of the organisation and a vital part of Australia’s social fabric.

“They are not simply delivering meals, they are delivering reassurance, dignity and connection.”

At the recent National Conference in Adelaide, Moira Were AM, Mayor of the City of Onkaparinga and Civic and Social Impact Leader, spoke powerfully about the role of community as a practice and care as a movement.

“Community is only as strong as the care that pumps through it,” Ms Were said.

Addressing the growing issue of social isolation, she noted, “Loneliness isn’t a choice; it’s a public health issue. It kills quietly, often in the houses you or I drive by every day.”

She said Meals on Wheels cannot be replicated by technology or artificial intelligence.

Locally, Sharon Doherty, Manager of Meals on Wheels WELLINGTON, said the service continued to play a vital role in supporting the local community.

“Our valued volunteers bring much more than a meal to the door — they bring a friendly face, a caring check-in and a moment of connection that means so much to our clients,” The team strongly agree.

“In Meals on Wheels WELLINGTON, we see every day how important these small moments of connection are for our clients and volunteers.”

National Meals on Wheels Day is a chance to reflect on the essential role of human connection in building healthier, more resilient communities.

“When people show up for one another, communities thrive,” Mr Sadler said.

“This is what Meals on Wheels represents every day, a movement of care, powered by volunteers and strengthened by the community.”

There is always room for more volunteer helpers.

Internet bill relief now available for Uungula Wind Farm neighbours

HOUSEHOLDS within 10km of Uungula Wind Farm can now register for Uungula Connect, a Squadron Energy program offering a $3200 rebate for internet subscription, hardware and installation.

The program is designed to share the benefits of the energy transition with Uungula Wind Farm’s closest neighbours by providing support to access a high-quality internet connection.

More than 200 households and businesses are eligible for the Uungula Connect program.

Squadron Energy Regional Economic Development Manager Bart

Sykes said a reliable internet connection is essential in rural communities – whether you’re running a business, working from home, keeping in touch with news, family and friends or have kids studying.

“Our host farmers and neighbours told us boosting internet connectivity was a priority,” Mr Sykes said.

“Uungula Connect is putting real money back in the pockets of locals as a benefit of living in close proximity to the wind farm,” Mr Sykes said.

Host landowner John Holland has been one of the first to sign up for Uungula Connect.

“Internet is something every household relies on these days, so Uungula Connect is a really useful benefit,” Mr Holland said.

“It helps reduce a regular cost for families, while giving people the flexibility to choose the provider that suits them best.

“I’ve always believed the benefits of a renewable project should flow to people living close to it and better internet access is something that genuinely makes a difference.”

To find out more and sign up for Uungula Connect visit squadronenergy.com/uungula-connect or contact Reswitch, which is managing the program, with any questions on 1800 737 948 or support@reswitch.com

A large group of approximately 20 people, including men, women, and children of various ages, are posed for a group photograph in front of a large, single-story building. The building's facade features a prominent sign that reads "CONWAY RURAL" in large, bold, sans-serif capital letters. Below this main sign, a series of smaller signs list the services offered: "Livestock Supplies", "Crop protection", "Fertiliser", "Fencing", and "Water Solutions". The group is arranged in several rows, with some individuals standing and others kneeling or sitting in the front. A medium-sized dog is visible on the left side of the group. The scene is set outdoors on a paved area, and the overall atmosphere is one of a community gathering or a group portrait of a local organization.

A game-changing clarification from NSW Premier Minns

From Radio 2GB

NSW PREMIER Chris Minns made a statement on Radio 2GB that could have a massive impact on the rollout of renewable energy in NSW. Premier Minns confirmed that landowners will be responsible for cleaning up the mess if a wind farm or solar developer disappears or ceases to exist. This risk alone would be enough for most farmers to slam the door in a developer's face. The cost to remove a wind tower in today's terms is $950,000 - in 30 years' time this will equate to a cost of $4 million per turbine or $1 billion for 250 turbines. Imagine taking a few bucks now to host wind towers only to find out in several years' time that you are now responsible for a decommissioning bill that could run into the tens of millions of dollars. And what happens to a community if the farmer can't afford these decommissioning costs? Australia will be littered with thousands of decrepit rusty towers falling over and destroying our beautiful rural landscapes. The issue is equally important for wind farm neighbours, who want to know that the massive towers hanging over their back fence won't be left there if the developer exits stage left. Premier Minns also says in this interview - landowners need to be 100 per cent sure before they sign a contract that their land and community is going to be remediated when the time comes. A full recording of the three-minute interview with Premier Minns can be heard on the 2GB website.

Cabonne Council to launch FOGO kerbside service in 2028

CABONNE COUNCIL has secured $191,950 in funding from the NSW Environment Protection Authority (EPA) to introduce a Food Organics and Garden Organics (FOGO) kerbside collection service for eligible households, with planning and community engagement now underway ahead of the 2028 rollout. The introduction of FOGO will help divert food and garden waste from landfill and meets the NSW Government's FOGO mandate. A 2025 waste audit found that almost half (45.8 per cent) of the material currently placed in household red lid bins could instead be composted through a FOGO service. Eligible households currently receiving a red lid kerbside waste service will receive a green lid FOGO bin, weekly collections, a kitchen caddy and educational materials to assist with the transition. Cabonne Mayor Cr Kevin Beatty said the funding approval represented an important milestone for the community. "Cabonne is one of the few councils in New South Wales that has not yet introduced a FOGO service, and it's time for us to get on board. This funding allows us to catch up with best-practice waste management and deliver a service that benefits both our residents and the environment." As part of the new service, the existing red lid general waste bin will remain the same size but move from a weekly to a fortnightly collection. The new green lid FOGO bin will be collected weekly, allowing food scraps and garden waste to be diverted from landfill. With organic waste making up a significant proportion of household rubbish, residents should find they have more capacity in their red lid bin for general waste. The rollout of FOGO bins is scheduled to commence in January 2028, with full service implementation expected by April 2028. Households that do not currently receive a kerbside waste collection service will not be included in the rollout. Residents are encouraged to visit Have Your Say Cabonne to learn more about the project, register for updates and provide feedback.

State of the art health tech arrives at CSU

New CSU Simulation Centre opened

RECENTLY, I attended the official opening of the state-of-the-art CSU Newmont Simulation Centre and Immersion Room at the Bloomfield Medical centre in Orange. Thanks to a generous $1.5 million investment from Newmont's Community Investment Program - our future doctors, nurses, and paramedics now have access to cutting-edge medical training in the Central West.

The facility features a 19.5-metre wraparound LED immersion screen, advanced interactive patient manikins, and simulated operating theatres and emergency wards. This allows students to practice complex trauma and disaster scenarios in safe, realistic settings without having to leave Orange. We all know that if you train doctors in the bush, they stay in the bush. And CSU's School of Rural Medicine is already delivering - with over 80 per cent of its inaugural graduating class commencing careers in non-metropolitan locations. While I welcomed the 10 additional medical places awarded to CSU in November 2025, it is clear we desperately need more. People in the country are still dying younger than our city counterparts - that is the cold, hard truth. If the Government is serious about fixing the rural doctor shortage, we've got to back our rural medical schools like CSU at every opportunity. That's why it's so infuriating when, just last week, the Government handed another 50 medical places across eight universities - but CSU missed out entirely.

And when the Prime Minister announced an expansion of Commonwealth Prac Payments for allied health students - it was a win! But leaving medical students out of the scheme was a fail. Studying medicine in regional Australia should not depend on the size of a student's bank balance. That's why I am calling on the Government to fund more medical places for CSU and extend paid prac payments to our medical students so we can build the vibrant rural and regional healthcare workforce Australia desperately needs.

THE INSPIRATION for this column began over a coffee with a friend who confidently declared that renewable energy had caused electricity prices to increase fivefold over the past decade. I politely suggested he might be exaggerating. After a little fact-checking, the claim became a threefold increase over 20 years instead. It's amazing how quickly a story changes when facts arrive. Like so many issues today, it's easy to find strong opinions, but much harder to find the numbers. Let's start with something simple. Prices rise over time. It's called inflation. Over the past 10 years, Australia's overall inflation has been 35.6 per cent. If something cost $100 in 2016 and costs $135.60 today, it hasn't really become more expensive at all. It has simply kept pace with inflation. So where does electricity actually sit? Over the past decade, tobacco recorded the largest real increase at 121.8 per cent.

Cost of living pressure was exerted by insurance at Number 2 with 27.6pc, gas at 18.3pc and petrol at 18.2pc. Electricity ranked fifteenth, increasing by just 9.9pc in real terms. Go back a decade, and the story is very different. Between 2006 and 2016, electricity prices surged by 64pc, making it the second biggest increase of any category behind tobacco. Go back another decade, from 1996 to 2006, and electricity barely moved, increasing by just 1.7pc. In the previous decade, electricity actually fell by 11.1pc. Many people immediately point to renewables for this surge, but this decade was before our current renewables revolution. From 1986 to 2016, renewable energy only accounted for around 11pc of our electricity generation. Most of that was hydroelectricity, with wind just starting to feature in the numbers towards the end of that 30-year period. Large-scale solar was virtually irrelevant. The bigger story was something far less exciting.

Many of Australia's coal-fired power stations had been built during the 1960s and 1970s. By the 1990s, the enormous cost of building them had largely been paid off, leaving only the ongoing costs of coal, maintenance and operation. At the same time, governments were spending heavily upgrading ageing poles, wires and substations across the country. By 2015, 48pc of the average electricity bill was paying for the network and 24pc was the cost for retailers. Only 22pc represented the wholesale cost of generating electricity. The biggest cost wasn't making electricity. It was delivering it. Fast forward to today and the picture has changed again. Renewable energy made a breakthrough in September 2025 when it generated more electricity than coal for the first month ever. Yet the decade in which renewables expanded the fastest saw electricity prices increase by just 9.9pc in real terms, compared with the 64pc increase during the previous decade.

Today's bill also looks very different. Around 39pc pays for the network, 47pc covers wholesale generation and only around 7pc relates to retail costs. That means even if the cost of generating electricity were somehow halved overnight, the average bill would fall by only 23.5pc. Electricity has never been a simple story of coal versus renewables. It's a story of ageing infrastructure, decades-old power stations, network upgrades, fuel markets, government policy and changing technology all working together. The next time someone confidently tells you electricity prices have gone through the roof because of renewables, ask them what we would now be paying for electricity if we were busy building new coal-fired power stations.  I am feeling generous! Fresh spin on cost-of-living relief with $250 washing machines back for a third cycle

THE STATE Government is helping thousands more households lower their household bills, with another 6000 discounted washing machines now available through its popular Washing Machine Exchange Program.

The initiative allows eligible pensioners, veterans, social housing tenants, and low-income households to trade their top-loader for a brand new 8kg water and energy-efficient front-loader for just $250.

This simple switch slashes household bills by an average of $300 a year in reduced water, electricity and detergent usage.

It’s also expected each participating household will save around 20,000 litres of water per household annually – enough to fill a typical backyard swimming pool.

Following overwhelming demand in previous rounds, the Government has expanded the program to help more people access practical cost-of-living relief and modern, efficient appliances that would otherwise be out of reach.

The subsidised package for eligible concession card holders includes delivery to anywhere in NSW, installation, two-year warranty and the removal of the old machine for recycling, facilitated by The Good Guys Commercial.

Since launching, the $11 million Washing Machine Exchange Program has helped nearly 12,000 households upgrade their washing machines and save an estimated 233 million litres of water, enough to fill 93 Olympic-sized swimming pools.

Public Education Week

LAST WEEK was Public Education Week and what better way to celebrate than to see some of our local teachers and public schools shine at the Public Education Awards.

Rebecca May from Dubbo College Senior Campus was recognised with the Minister’s Award for Excellence in Teaching, while Gulgong High School (School Attendance Improvement Project) was recognised with the Secretary’s Award for Outstanding School Achievement. Congratulations!

A massive shoutout also goes to Dubbo South Public School’s Stage 2 students and Miss Anderson for inviting me to come along and hear some of the persuasive letters they wrote as part of their English unit last term.

Twelve students from across Stage 2 shared their letter out loud during my visit. I was very impressed by their thoughtfulness and the quality of their writing, as well as the confidence displayed in their public speaking.

Very well done, Stage 2!

SOUND OF SILENCE ON GREAT WESTERN HIGHWAY CLOSURE CONTINUES

We see billions and billions of state and federal funding being showered on projects on the other side of the sandstone curtain.

Yet when we need them most, all we get from government is empty words and small change.

It's been weeks since the state government announced its fix for this closed nationally significant road corridor.

Yet since then, it's been the sound of silence.

NO word on how much this fix will cost.

NO word on whether we're going to get more than one lane of traffic each way.

And NO word of any federal contribution for anything. And it's not just government silence.

We've now got the sound of silence from shuttered and closed businesses that have broke because of government negligence:

- The Triple 8 Café, Gone.
- R & A Chainsaws and Mowers, Gone.
- ICF haulage, Gone.
- A Lithgow motorbike shop is being smashed.

I was at a local Hotel in Lithgow recently where business is down by 60%.

These inadequate one-off business support grants from the NSW government aren't cutting it.

It's just a tokenistic political gesture.

We need federal and state funding for the roadworks and an ongoing business support package like we had with Job Keeper during Covid – before more businesses are lost!

THIS GOVERNMENT NEGLECT IS
DISGRACEFUL. AND IT HAS TO END NOW!

ENOUGH IS ENOUGH: BAN GAMBLING ADVERTISING

GAMBLING ADDICTION DESTROYS LIVES AND TAKES LIVES.

You're going to be hearing a lot about it in Parliament this week, but the bottom line is that we need to ban gambling advertising. I am not against gambling. I like the odd punt now and again myself, but we shouldn't be allowing gambling companies to brainwash our kids into thinking this is an acceptable part of life in order to get them hooked on gambling.

The only reason that we don't have a ban on gambling advertising is that gaming companies are big donors to the major political parties.

RUSHED GUN LAWS DESTROYING LOCAL BUSINESS

Recently in a speech to Parliament, I stood up for law-abiding gun owners and local businesses who are bearing the brunt of the government's rushed firearm laws.

The new gun laws were a political response to the evil crime committed at Bondi last year.

Instead of calling for a Royal Commission into how this atrocity came to happen, the Government's first reaction was to rush through tighter gun controls.

The new gun laws have been used to distract from the real issues and Government agency failings – which could and should have prevented the horrific attack.

These knee-jerk reforms are unfairly penalising the people who already do the right thing.

Our local small business owners have put their lives, their energy, and massive financial investments into their enterprises.

Now, because of these rushed laws, these local businesses are literally being destroyed.

We need to get to the bottom of what actually happened, protect our regional small businesses, and stop punishing law-abiding gun owners for political reasons.

It's time state and federal governments stopped deflecting and started dealing with the genuine issues this country needs to address.

How to prune roses
 YOU WILL need long thick gloves, bucket, pruning saw and sterilised secateurs (with alcohol based disinfectant).
 Step1. Cut dead canes back to the base of the plant and cut damaged or diseased canes back to healthy tissue, where the base is white. Cut to the base for canes that grow into the centre of the bush, are leggy or cross-over other canes.
 Step 2. Remove suckers (growth that emerges below the graft scar. Step 3. In groups of canes, cut the centre cane by a quarter or a third of the current year’s growth. (it is greener than the previous year’s growth) and cut the surrounding canes so that each cane has only four new buds. Cut at a 45-degree angle (with the cut facing downwards) just above a leaf or bud node.
 Do this whilst the rose bush is dormant and be prepared to be brutal, your bush will reward you with beautiful blooms in summer.
 In summary, only have four main branches with no branches growing inwards. The rosebush should have the shape of a wine glass with a clear centre to allow sunlight into the centre with all the buds on the four branches growing upward and away from the centre of the bush.
 .Clean up the prunings into your bucket and dispose them, Ten days later spray the bush with lime sulphur plus around the ground underneath. Spray white oil later hen new foliage appears. Fertilise with blood and bone then sulphate of amonia three weeks later.

A game-changing clarification from Premier

From Radio 2GB
 NSW PREMIER Chris Minns made a statement on Radio 2GB that could have a massive impact on the rollout of renewable energy in NSW.
 Premier Minns confirmed that landowners will be responsible for cleaning up the mess if a wind farm or solar developer disappears or ceases to exist.
 This risk alone would be enough for most farmers to slam the door in a developer’s face.
 The cost to remove a wind tower in today’s terms is $950,000 - in 30 years’ time this will equate to a cost of $4 million per turbine or $1 billion for 250 turbines.
 Imagine taking a few bucks now to host wind towers only to find out in several years’ time that you are now responsible for a decommissioning bill that could run into the tens of millions of dollars.
 And what happens to a community if the farmer can’t afford these de-commissioning costs?
 Australia will be littered with thousands of decrepit rusty towers falling over and destroying our beautiful rural landscapes.
 The issue is equally important for wind farm neighbours, who want to know that the massive towers hanging over their back fence won’t be left there if the developer exits stage left.
 Premier Minns also says in this interview - landowners need to be 100 per cent sure before they sign a contract that their land and community is going to be remediated when the time comes.
 A full recording of the three-minute interview with Premier Minns can be heard on the 2GB website.

Extra daily train service to be explored

ABC Radio
 NSW MINISTER for Regional Transport Jenny Aitchison said planning had begun for an additional daily train service between Dubbo and Sydney.
 Transport for New South Wales is also conducting a $2 million feasibility study into where the new regional rail fleet could be stabled.
 The trains are expected to be operational in 2028.
 Ms Aitchison told parliament the department was assessing whether an extra service operating between Dubbo, Orange and Sydney can run when the new regional rail fleet was rolled out.

Around the tracks with Col Hodges

Racing at Louth

AFTER THE meeting was washed out in 2025, a record-breaking crowd from around Australia was at Louth on Saturday to see Macleay win the 2000 metres Nutrien Walsh Hughes-Louth Cup.

Toulon Factor led the nine-horse Cup field from Star Intrigue with the Jane Clement, Mendooran trained nine-year-old gelding Macleay, well ridden by Billy Cray, settling midfield.

Star Intrigue ($8) trained and ridden by dual licence holder Wendy Peel, after having a good run hit the front approaching the home turn before Macleay ($4.80) took control and raced away to win by seven lengths with The Bentley (Mikayla Weir) making up ground for third.

A flood of money saw The Bentley firm to $3 favourite and was probably the most heavily backed horse all day while some of the 21 book-makers fielding on course at Louth reported very good support for Macleay.

Leading country jockeys Jake Pracey-Holmes and Mikayla Weir rode winning. doubles as did apprentice Hollie Hull at the non-TAB meeting, while Dubbo trainer Connie Greig led in a winning treble.

Garry Bignell, a former long-time trainer in the western area of NSW who is now based at Charleville, Queensland, landed a winning double with Won For Vicki and Kijivu.

Won For Vicki (Jake Pracey-Holmes, $2 fav) led throughout to win the 1000m Bourke Steel & Hire Class 1 Handicap by over two lengths while Kijivu (Jake Pracey-Holmes,$2.40) led for home and lasted to beat another Queensland horse Sheriff’s Star (Zoe Hunt, $3) by a half-head with Art-space (Liam Blanch, $2 fav) finishing well for third in the 1400m Shindy’s Inn Class 2 Handicap.

First of the Connie Greig trained treble was the appropriately named Daisy Duck (from the mare Quackquack) with Hollie Hull in the saddle and starting at $3.20 led throughout in the Port Of Bourke Hotel Maiden Plate.

The nine-year-old mare Blackhill Kitty has been a stable stalwart for Connie Greig and advanced the record to 12 wins and 25 placings from 85 starts when winning at Louth.

Nicely positioned travelling fifth by Mikayla Weir in the 1200m Arrowfield Stud Benchmark 50 Handicap, Blackhill Kitty ($5.50), won by a length from Cool Space (Liam Blanch, $5) which flashed home from a long-last to get second by a short-head from Dreyfus (Jake Pracey-Holmes, $8).

Mikayla Weir then gave the Connie Greig trained Hot Miss ($1.50 to $1.60 fav) a cosy run behind the leading pair Encampment (Jess Del Frari, $2.30) and Sunset Drive (Leanne Boyd, $3) when winning the 1400m Rices Back O Bourke Cordials Splashe Cola Maiden Handicap.

Wrapping up an extremely well organised meeting boasting great facilities at a small village in a remote location, the Kylie Kennedy, Narromine trained last start Gilgandra TAB winner Himeros backed up a week later at Louth.

Starting the $3 favourite with Hollie Hull the rider, Himeros, owned by Warwick Harper, tracked the leader The Terminator then cleared out to win by nearly six lengths from Queensland galloper Edwards (Zoe Hunt, $7) and Minister Garrett (Billy Cray, $5) in the 1700m Sullivans Mining & Industrial-Great Western Hotel Cobar Benchmark 50 Handicap.

Racing at Wellington today, Bathurst next Monday, Cobar Picnics Saturday, August 23 and Narromine on Sunday, August 24.

YEAR 6 CANBERRA EXCURSION

During Week 2 of Term 3, our Year 6 students enjoyed an exciting and memorable excursion to Canberra. Throughout the week, students explored some of Australia's most important landmarks and attractions, including Parliament House, the Australian War Memorial, the Royal Australian Mint, the National Dinosaur Museum, the Australian Institute of Sport, Questacon and more. One of the highlights of the trip was experiencing the snow, creating lasting memories with friends and teachers. The excursion provided students with valuable opportunities to learn about Australia's history, government and culture while sharing unforgettable experiences together.
