Request for a Police Drones Trial

AT THE Council Meeting last week, I moved a motion to write to the NSW Police Minister asking to be included in an extension of the Police Drone Trial that is currently underway in Moree.

This was supported unanimously.

My reasoning behind this is that when the riders aren't wearing a helmet on these unregistered trail bikes, the Police really can't chase them.

However, with a drone, the Police are able to follow the trail bikes that plague Wellington and Dubbo from a safe vantage point high in the sky, wait for the bike to come to a stop at a house, and then send a Police car around to impound the bike.

Let's not sugar coat this matter – the main activity being undertaken is drug deliveries, it's not 10-year-olds on their pee-wee 50s out for a fun spin.

There is also a serious community safety concern where these bikes have been involved in at least one serious crash in Dubbo recently with the innocent driver of the car subjected to mandatory drug and alcohol testing at hospital whilst their vehicle sustained damage.

The two youths riding the bike were airlifted to hospital in Sydney.

The drones don't fly all the time; they are only put up in the air in response to a particular incident – such as when Police on the ground detect an unregistered trail bike roaring around.

Looking for somewhere out of town for kids to legally ride a trailbike is a further body of work and costing that could happen later.

Request for a Medicare Urgent Care Clinic

Also, at last week's Council Meeting I moved a motion that Council lobby the Federal Government for the building of a Medicare Urgent Care Clinic in our LGA.

Bathurst and Tamworth have Medicare UCCs, why shouldn't we?

A government-provided service that is bulk-billed and walk-in can only benefit our local community.

This may take a couple of years to be funded, but if you don't ask, you don't get.

NSW Local Government amalgamations – 10-year review of effectiveness

I will write to the NSW Minister for Local Government and the Premier of NSW requesting the NSW Government to undertake a genuine, independent and evidence-based review into the effectiveness of the 2016 Council amalgamations.

Council will also ask the government to make the findings publicly available to inform further policy decisions relating to local government structure in NSW.

A resolution at last weeks council meeting.

Draft Budget 2026-2027 – Have YourSay

Council's draft 2026/2027 Budget, Operational Plan and associated documents are now on public exhibition, and the community are being encouraged to put in a submission. These outline Council's priorities for the next 12 months

The draft Plan can be viewed online at yoursay.dubbo.nsw.gov.au. Alternatively, hard copies are available to be viewed at Council's office and Wellington Library. Submissions close 9am, Monday 1 June 2026.

Our focus over the next 12 months is on delivering essential services and the renewal of key assets in Wellington, Dubbo and our villages.

In the draft 2026/2027 Budget over $24M is proposed to be allocated to undertake the renewal and construction of a number of urban and rural roads.

Highlight from the draft 2026/2027 Operational Plan

Macquarie Regional Library proposes to maintain 15% of the yearly funding on buying books and other physical items.

This will ensure the library collection stays up to date and meets the needs of the community. The library will align its programs and services with its 2026/2027 Operational Plan, focusing on hosting events and activities, such as author talks and literacy programs, to encourage community interest and participation.

By doing this, the library aims to create enjoyable experiences, connect better with people, and make sure its services are easy to use and valued. For more information about the draft 2026/2027 budget and operational plan visit:

Letters to the editor

Retirement not as planned

Moving here for my retirement has left me feeling I am on a nasty planet. Prior to moving in police carried out a dawn raid on the property scaring neighbours with their antics.

My gates were kicked open, locks broken, also colourbond fencing damaged.

After many calls to police I was informed, they were looking for a person.

They also stated no explanation was required and they had rights to enter property, no payment for damages was considered.

A couple of days later, a builder working on my house found a long-bladed weapon tucked behind a newly erected verandah post.

He advised Wellington police. Again, no contact from them. Seems the force did not learn good manners.

Once given a badge seems to give them the right to treat the General Public as low class citizens.

No more respect from me.

Going downtown to the shops found the street filthy, was accosted getting out of my car and asked for spare money. No one came to help.

Since living in my house to prepare it for sale, the Council moved into the street, with no consultation ripped up half my driveway, damaged the other half and will not replace.

Workers threw a shovel of concrete in the holes. The project manager would not give me an answer on the replacement concrete, just abused me for calling him on his day off.

Despite the town having a high crime rate, the local police station is mostly unmanned.

Anyone want to buy a partly renovated house which is no. 13?

I will try to find greener and more pleasant and safer pastures.

New era of thinking has arrived

The past is rapidly being challenged and largely disappearing in most aspects of life and a new era of thinking has arrived.

I read where a most recent poll, during the Iran War and Fuel Crisis, suggested 65 per cent of women polled supported our Government whilst less than 50pc of men did, indicating a difference in gender perspective.

This and other differences in perspective will undoubtedly continue to influence our direction analysis and political pursuits and be further enhanced as "Gender Equality" increases.

To many of us Nuclear Disarmament of a Terrorist Regime and their continuing threats to the West was the reason for the "Iran War" but others saw, and continue, to see it differently and will perhaps be judged most positively in this new era of thinking.

To many of us the scrutinising of Immigrants to preserve our lifestyle and values and ensure social cohesion and safety is a very positive proposition but others have a different perspective and will again perhaps be judged more positively in this new era of thinking.

In my lifetime raising pre-schoolers, caring for aged parents and disabled and disadvantaged family members, and having responsibility for their misdemeanours, has been sourced out to Governments and inflicted on others.

This has been accelerated in this new era of thinking and despite the endlessly reported waste and excessive cost those who support it all will again perhaps be judged positively in this new era of thinking.

In this new era of thinking considerably more detailed widespread debate between those with differing perspectives is essential to ensure the Australia we created and treasure continues to profit from individual effort, Nation Building and Productive Independence and safety.

Northern community rejects transmission line corridor from Walcha to Bayswater

AN ePetition requesting the NSW Government scrap EnergyCo's transmission line corridor from the Bayswater Power Station to Walcha has reached the 20,000 signatures needed to be scheduled for debate on the floor of Parliament.

Member for Northern Tablelands Brendan Moylan will present the ePetition to Parliament which was put together by more than 100 farmers who will be forced into giving up their land under the planned transmission route.

"The message is clear; the community does not want this transmission line being built on their land," Mr Moylan said.

"EnergyCo have failed to properly engage with landowners, communities and leaders from the impacted areas while planning this transmission corridor, and yet the government continues to disregard the genuine concerns raised by our regional communities.

"This government needs to stop ignoring the people of regional NSW."

Member for Upper Hunter Dave Layzell said the 20,000 people who signed the ePetition deserve to be heard by the government and responded to.

"Communities across my electorate have been treated appallingly by EnergyCo and under Labor the renewable energy roll out is only getting worse," Mr Layzell said. "We have been asking for genuine consultation, transparency and respect, and these basic requests have been ignored by EnergyCo and the government."

Shadow Minister for Energy and Climate Change James Griffin said we have been telling Chris Minns for three years now that regional communities need to be treated as partners and with respect, rather than as an obstacle.

"Every time we've raised concerns about cost blowout and community consultation failures, exactly like this one in the New England REZ, the Minns government deflect and don't want to answer the hard questions," Mr Griffin said.

"No one is saying the energy transition was going to be easy, but the Minns Government ignoring regional communities is making hard work even harder, for all involved."

The NSW Opposition previously led a debate on the proposed transmission corridor with a Public Interest Debate held in October 2025.

Geurie to chart community’s future at locals’ meeting

Shop windows get a ‘Show’ facelift

It’s been some years since Geurie residents had a local organisation to speak on their behalf.

The last was the progress association which disbanded roughly 10 years ago.

But there’s been a revival within the village and district.

A community meeting has been called specifically for residents in the 2818 postcode has been called to propose the formation of the Geurie Village and District Association.

It will be held on Sunday, May 17, at the Geurie Bowling Club from 4pm to 5pm.\

Key items on the agenda include:

- * Formal Incorporation: Finalising the legal status of the Geurie

Village & District Association.

- * Committee Elections: The election of officers and the opening of membership applications.
- * Proposed Objects: Discussion of the Association’s guiding principles, which focus on advocacy, transparency, and preserving the unique rural character of the 190-square-kilometre district.
- * Action Log Release: The official unveiling of the Dubbo Regional Council (DRC) Representative “Action Log,” based on recent community surveys.

The event also serves as a critical opportunity for residents to contribute to the Geurie Priority Issues Survey.

Geurie local’s Madeliene

Cannon and Claire Booth, were endorsed by DRC in February 2026 to represent Geurie on the DRC Villages Committee.

Their appointment runs until July 2028. Madeliene and Claire will use the feedback from the survey and the May 17 meeting to advocate for village priorities such as Boori Creek maintenance, highway landscaping, and urgent repairs to the Geurie Memorial Hall at the next Villages Committee meeting on July 13.

Following the meeting, a community soup dinner will be held from 5pm to 7pm.

Residents can also complete the priority survey online at www.geurievillage.com.au.

Further enquiries to Claire Booth on 0423 507 006.

Roundabout for busy, accident prone Yeoval intersection

CABONNE COUNCIL confirmed the recently announced roundabout for Yeoval is now moving into the survey and design stage following funding through the NSW Government’s Road Safety Program.

Council has begun seeking estimates from consultants to undertake the detailed survey and engineering design for the proposed roundabout at the intersection of Forbes Street and Obley Street, where the school, Royal Hotel and Billabong Store and Post Office are located on corners.

This intersection has been the scene of numerous road accidents for many years.

The request for estimates closed on March 18 and Council has selected an engineering firm to undertake the detailed design of the roundabout with survey works to commence in the coming months.

A Council spokesperson said at this stage there were no concept plans or images available, as the detailed design will be developed following the completion of the survey work.

The project will deliver a roundabout and pedestrian fencing at the intersection, with the aim of improving safety for motorists and pedestrians using the junction.

Further information, including the final design and construction timeframes, will be available once the survey and design phase has been completed.

Youngsters will love new play area

A NEW play area for youngsters is about to be built at the Wellington Soldiers Memorial Club.

Club general manager Stephen Hodge said a brand-new Play Equipment Room, designed especially for our youngest (and very important) Club Patrons will commence shortly.

“This new space will provide a fun, safe, and engaging environment for children, helping families enjoy even more time together at the Club, especially while dining,” he said.

“The Play Equipment Room will be located in the Alfresco Room, as we begin preparing for the broader and exciting redevelopments ahead.”

Mr Hodge said the club’s focus has always been simple - creating a place where our community can come together, relax, and enjoy great moments.

“That’s why we’re excited to share the first step in an important new chapter for your Club.”

Mr Hodge said as this new space comes to life, there would be some minor disruptions within the restaurant, existing children’s area and the Alfresco space.

However, we are committed to keeping any inconvenience to a minimum while we deliver something truly worthwhile for our community and will share updates as soon as details are confirmed.”

First turbine components for Uungula Wind Farm arrive at site

The first batch of wind turbine components has been delivered to the Uungula Wind Farm site, heralding the start of the next phase of the project.

Oversize overmass (OSOM) deliveries from Port of Newcastle started last week, with up to 26 deliveries scheduled per week to safely transport almost 900 components to site.

Squadron Energy GM Mark Hunt said the deliveries would mean a change in activity in the coming months on site as teams mobilise to start building the 69 turbines which make up the 414MW wind farm.

“We’ve completed turbine foundations with more than 55 now finished, but this is where the work soon starts to become more visual with cranes standing up tower sections ahead of installation,” he said.

“In the coming months, we’ll start installation with 750 tonne cranes involved in the careful lifting of turbine pieces into place.

Each turbine has 13 components that will make the 400km journey to Wellington from Newcastle via the Golden Highway.

Turbine tower segments, ranging from 10 to 36 metres lengths, and nacelles, which sit on top of the tower encasing the gearbox, generator, and brake system.

“We’ll start to move blades, which are the most challenging components due to their length, in the coming months,” he said.

Major wind turbine components weigh up to almost 100 tonnes each are now being transported from port to site.

Squadron Energy has worked closely with principal contractor

GE Vernova, transport operator ARES, local councils and relevant agencies to plan deliveries safely and minimise impacts on local communities and road users along the transport route.

Current deliveries are travelling via the Golden Highway, Saxa Road, continuing via the Goolma Road intersection and Twelve Mile Road to the project site.

Smart Rental Bonds will allow transfer of rental bonds

Smart Rental Bonds will allow tenants to digitally transfer their bond between properties for a small fee of $25.

This means they will no longer have to find thousands of dollars for a “second” bond while waiting for the previous bond to be refunded.

With the IT build done and extensive system testing beginning, the more than 2.3 million renters in NSW are a step closer to accessing this critical cost-of-living measure.

Around 330,000 households move each year, with most rental tenancies lasting less than two years, meaning thousands of renters face repeated upfront costs when changing homes.

This requires people to save for several months before they can leave a property or potentially have to take out hefty loans if they have to move out of the property unexpectedly due to the property being sold or the homeowner moving in.

Accessible through the existing Rental Bonds Online platform, this new system maintains the integrity of the bond system by ensuring that landlords have security, while improving cashflow for renters.

With the average renter spending $4000 each time they move, Smart Rental Bonds has been designed as a simple, easy-to-use solution for renters to alleviate financial stress:

- * Renters will be notified once a landlord or agent lodges a bond request online.

- * The renter logs onto Rental Bonds Online and chooses to either pay their new bond upfront, or use Smart Rental Bonds to move their existing bond to the new property.

Government rejects Opposition bid to gut ‘good character’ reforms

The State Government will not accept the Opposition’s attempts to water down nation-leading reforms to remove ‘good character’ as a mitigating factor at sentencing.

Attorney General Michael Daley said the Opposition’s amendments would gut the Bill and mean victim-survivors would still have to sit through the trauma of hearing their perpetrator described as a ‘good person’ in court.

“The amendments would have the effect of removing good character for sexual offences,” he said.

But they would otherwise retain ‘good character’ as a mitigating factor at sentencing and allow the court discretion as to whether they give this weight.

“This means a court would still be able to find someone is of otherwise ‘good character’ despite them being convicted of offending that involves antisemitism like inciting racial hatred, domestic and family violence homicide or dangerous driving causing death.”

Mr Daley said “Our nation-leading reforms announced earlier this year are designed to ensure offenders convicted of serious crimes cannot rely on character references to mitigate their sentence.”

The legislation forms part of the Minns Labor Government’s broader agenda to strengthen protections for victim-survivors of domestic and family violence and improve the integrity and consistency of sentencing outcomes across NSW.

Advocates, including road trauma victims and domestic violence survivors, have been calling for these changes for years, arguing the current system allows offenders to benefit from personal testimonials that are often irrelevant to the harm caused.

This NSW Sentencing Council made its position clear about this approach.

They said giving courts this discretion would still leave good character operating as a mitigating factor and would not address many of the concerns raised in this review.

Gas exploration safeguards questioned

NSW FARMERS has called on the NSW Government to answer urgent questions about how it will protect groundwater, farm biosecurity, and landholders as it promotes new gas exploration.

President Xavier Martin said farmers recognised the need for reliable energy but warned hasty exploration without strong safeguards could create unmanageable risks for rural and remote communities.

“Farmers are not anti development, but we are absolutely pro water, pro biosecurity and pro respect for the people who live and work in the landscape,” Mr Martin said.

“The government must explain how it will prevent a flood of speculators and ‘$1000 cowboys’ arriving on farms with inadequate resourcing, poor behaviour and little regard for biosecurity or water risk.” Mr Martin said members were concerned exploration would spread weeds, pests, and disease, particularly when prospectors were not required to comply with existing farm biosecurity management plans.

“Biosecurity is not optional.

“It underpins food security, market access, and farm viability. If exploration is to occur, strict, enforceable protocols must apply and be backed by real compliance and penalties,” he said. Groundwater was a major concern for farmers and regional communities, Mr Martin said, particularly given the government’s own acknowledgement of water stress in parts of the state.

He pointed to the Bancannia Trough, where the government was already drilling for water to keep towns from running dry, and was now promoting gas exploration.

“How can communities have confidence in their water security when new gas activity is being rushed through?” he said.

Exploration, he said, must be responsible and respectful, include better landholder engagement and support; mandatory compliance with farm biosecurity plans; fairer negotiation timeframes and costs; stronger good faith obligations; higher security deposits to deter speculative operators; and full transparency around arbitrated access agreements.

Public deserves the truth

FOLLOWING THE environmental vandalism that occurred on Merotherie Road north of Gulgong, the Australian Government and the Environment Minister said they would investigate, but we have heard nothing.

Then journalists found out that they had basically exonerated the NSW Government of any wrongdoing.

If that’s true, the public needs to see the report. We all saw the trees coming down in the century’s old wildlife corridor.

We all saw the hundreds of native birds killed and orphaned because the NSW Government and their contractors EnergyCo and ACEREZ decided to bulldoze right through nesting season.

If the Australian Government has an investigation report that clears those who carried out this disgraceful destruction of any wrongdoing, then it should release the full investigation report immediately.

The public needs to see the evidence that justifies this environmental vandalism.

Where’s the report Murray?

100,000 Trees destroyed
Out at the Durridgere State Conservation Area, just north of Mudgee and Ulan, it’s an absolute disgrace.

The NSW Government is bulldozing every single tree in this corridor to make way for power lines for the Renewable Energy Zone.

If anyone else did this, even on their own property, they’d be hauled before the courts and in jail in a flash.

But here, the woodchippers are working overtime and there’s not a single consequence.

Destroying an estimated 100,000 trees in a state protected sanctuary that was meant to be preserved for future generations.

It’s not just a clearing; it’s outrageous environmental vandalism.

What was once native wildlife habitat is now a moonscape.

Because it’s the state government doing the dozing and chipping, they get away with it - just like Merotherie Road.

I’VE LOST count of how many movie nights at our place now begin the same way.

We dim the lights, queue up a movie, and settle in as a family. Within minutes, though, I notice something curious: I’m the only one actually watching the screen.

My Gen Z kids are there physically, but each has a phone in hand.

A character appears and someone immediately looks them up. “Oh, she was in that other show,” comes the instant reply.

A location pops up - “That was filmed in Croatia.” It’s impressive, really.

Any question is answered in seconds.

But then, inevitably, someone asks, “Wait... why did he do that?”

And I can’t help myself. “If you were watching the movie instead of your phone, you’d know.”

That’s usually when one of them shrugs... and looks up the ending.

It’s a very modern kind of frustration.

We have the world’s knowledge at our fingertips, yet somehow we’re missing the story right in front of us.

Which is why the latest announcement from Samsung caught my attention.

The company has unveiled a new generation of televisions designed to solve exactly this problem.

I initially thought they might have a jammer in the TV to stop people using a phone while watching - but they have gone the other way.

They haven’t blocked phones, but they have absorbed the functionality into the screen itself.

Instead of reaching for your phone to ask, “Who’s that actor?”, the television answers you directly.

A small, unobtrusive panel appears on the side of the screen with the information you’re after, all without interrupting the show.

In other words, the TV becomes the second screen.

It’s part of a broader shift toward an “AI companion” - a kind of built-in assistant that understands what you’re watching and responds to your curiosity in real time.

Think of it as an attentive friend who seems to know everything.

These systems draw on the same kind of artificial intelligence that powers chatbots and voice assistants.

But instead of living in your phone or laptop, it’s embedded in the shared experience of the lounge room.

Television has always been a communal device, and this new layer of intelligence is designed to work for everyone in the room, not just one user.

Of course, the technology doesn’t stop at answering trivia questions.

Modern TVs are becoming astonishingly clever at improving the viewing experience itself.

New display technologies are all about making images look more lifelike.

Add AI into the mix, and the screen can now adjust picture quality, sound, and even highlight key moments in live sport.

Imagine watching a Formula 1 race where driver stats and team insights appear just when you’re wondering about them.

It’s less about watching passively and more about being guided through the experience.

But here’s the bigger question: will this actually bring us back to the moment, or just add another layer of distraction?

There’s a fine line here.

On one hand, having answers appear on screen could keep our attention focused where it belongs - on the story.

On the other hand, we risk turning every quiet moment into an information overload, where curiosity constantly interrupts immersion.

Technology has always promised to simplify our lives, yet often it adds complexity instead.

If these AI features stay in the background - helpful but not intrusive - they could genuinely enhance how we watch together.

And maybe, just maybe, I’ll get through a movie night without having to explain the plot.

Then again, knowing my kids, they’ll probably still look up the ending... just to be sure.

Lions stalwarts celebrate 61 years of marriage while still actively volunteering

MEMBERS OF Wellington Lions would like to congratulate two special Lions on their 61st Wedding Anniversary, Jim and Pam Whillock.

Jim has been a Lion since October 1989 and Pam since June 2014 and both have been very active in Lions since they joined, Jim has been Catering Director for many years and Pam did the cleaning of the catering van after the events and is very active at the club's preloved book shop in Warne Street.

They also took committee roles in 2014-15 with Jim being President and Pam Secretary.

Pam, over the years has also packed and posted many spectacles for 'Lions Recycle for Sight'.

They are both pictured with another box ready to be posted with Lion Graham Dickson and Lion Ken Vodden.

You can drop off your unwanted glasses to our preloved book shop open 10 to 2pm Thursday, Friday and Saturday where they have a half-price sale on all Non-Fiction books sale, as well as 10 cds/dvds for $10.

Racing at Bathurst

LONG REGARDED as an important event on the Central West racing calendar, the 2026 Bathurst RSL Soldiers Saddle (1400 metres) was won by the Nick Olive, Canberra trained Wal's Angels, on ANZAC Day at Tyers Park, Bathurst.

Jolly Good Fellow as the leader was under siege in the straight and Wal's Angel (Amy McLucas, $8) after having a good run finished best to beat Deeowater Artist (Grant Buckley, $4.40 fav) and Unreal Expectation (Jacob Stiff, $4.80).

A courageous ride by Amy McLucas was the difference between winning and losing for the Claire Lever, Hawkesbury trained Lucky Star in the 1800m Kennards Hire Benchmark 58 Handicap.

With her mount pocketed on the inside, McClucas persevered for a clear run and eventually urged Lucky Star ($3.30 fav) through a narrow gap on the rails to beat Special Prophet (Shaun Guymer, $7.50) and Crown Legend (Jacob Stiff, $8.50).

Flying the flag for local stables, the Dean Mirfin trained Tokyo Queen was well ridden by the Dubbo based apprentice Jacob Stiff in the 1800m Lion Nathan Class 1 & Maiden Plate.

Taken to the front before the midway point, Tokyo Queen ($3.80) held a clear lead all the way down the straight to score a comfortable win by almost a length from Aerostern Bro (Mathew Cahill, $6) and Celeman Zor (Shaun Guymer, $3.40 fav).

Indi Springs, a half-sister to outstanding gallopers, Zarizatycoon, Tags and Nomore-nightshift, was a runaway winner of the 1100m The Grind Maiden Plate for Mudgee trainer Mack Griffith.

Leading for home, Indi Springs (Jake Pracey-Holmes, $1.45 fav) shot away to win by over four lengths from Mitaka (Mathew Cahill, $4.80) and Cool As Ted (Dale Cole, $17).

Bathurst attracted a huge crowd and the club now looks forward to the next meeting on Tuesday 12th May.

with our State Member Dugald Saunders

Welcome new recruits
ON MONDAY the Orana Mid-Western Police District welcomed seven new recruits to its ranks, following the attestation of Class 368 from the NSW Police Academy last Friday.
Of the seven Probationary Constables, five will be stationed in Dubbo, one in Wellington, and one returning to their hometown of Coonamble.
I wish our new officers every success as they commence their on-the-job training and settle into their new roles.

VRA gets a new truck
It was fantastic to join Commissioner Brenton Charlton, VRA volunteers and other special guests at the official unveiling of the Dubbo Squad’s new heavy rescue truck on Friday.
This new truck is purpose-built to support complex rescue operations and may just be the heaviest of its kind this side of the Blue Mountains.
Outfitted with the latest rescue technology and equipment, the truck will enhance the Squad’s ability to respond quickly to emergencies throughout the Central West, including road crash rescue, industrial incidents, and large-scale operations.

It’s already been out on several calls before being officially launched, which just goes to show the important part the VRA plays in emergency management across the regions.
Congratulations to everyone involved in making this truck a reality.

Last chance for CBP
Expressions of interest (EOI) for the 2026 Community Building Partnerships (CBP) program must be submitted by 5pm, tomorrow, Friday, May 8.
Eligible not-for-profit community organisations and local councils may submit up to two EOIs for grants of between $10,000 and $100,000 to deliver capital works to upgrade existing and/or construct new community infrastructure; purchase freestanding equipment to support the delivery of community services; or, purchase registered vehicles to support the delivery of community services.

EOIs must address who the project will benefit and how it aligns with local electorate priorities.
For more, including 2026 Grant Guidelines and Dubbo electorate priorities, visit: nsw.gov.au/cbp

Carers week grants
The NSW National Carers Week Grants program is now open to applications.
Grants between $1000 to $2000 are available to support the delivery of community activities or events, that bring carers together in the spirit of connection, celebration and recognition during National Carers Week (11 to 17 October 2026).
Applications close 5pm, Monday, May 25.

Thank First Responder
Next month, communities across Australia will come together on Thank a First Responder Day to recognise the more than 300,000 paid and volunteer first responders who keep us safe.

You’re invited to show your gratitude by nominating a first responder who has made a meaningful difference to you, your family, or your community.
By submitting a story you’re helping:
* Recognise the courage and compassion of our first responders
* Support wellbeing and connection in demanding roles
* Amplify gratitude across communities nationwide
Thank a First Responder Day is an initiative of Fortem Australia – a not-for-profit organisation supporting the mental health and wellbeing of first responders and their families.

Government moves to make feral pig and deer management bigger and better as nearly 250,000 pigs culled over past three years

THE MINNS Labor Government has sought a technical review of feral pig and deer management to build on the historic levels of success that have seen almost a quarter of a million pigs culled across NSW in the past three years.

Minister for Agriculture, Tara Moriarty has announced following the Government’s record $40 million investment in the program, the appointment of a feral pig coordinator and implementation of the Biosecurity Action Plan, the Government is doing even more to support farmers across NSW.

The success of the program, which has seen some 240,000 feral pigs controlled over the past three years, has been built on increased aerial culling, a huge free bait program, and the promotion of landholders working together to address the common problem.

Responding to feral pigs and pests is a key part of the Minns Government’s $1 billion biosecurity program designed to protect the State’s $25 billion primary industries sectors.

The Government will continue to work with landholders who have responsibility to manage feral pests on their properties.

To ensure the Government can continue to build on the success of its pest control program, Minister Moriarty has tasked the Independent Biosecurity Commissioner, Dr

Katherine Clift, to investigate ways to further improve feral pig and deer management in NSW.

Minister Moriarty will be requesting the Independent Commissioner to consider and recommend actions that will:

- * Examine the best available tools and techniques for controlling feral pigs and deer at a regional scale, including new and emerging technologies.
- * Work through the challenges of delivering feral pest programs across different landscapes and land tenures
- * Increase landholder participation in regional programs, to ensure landholders deliver on their biosecurity duty and improve the success of on-ground management efforts including trapping and baiting.

Preliminary advice will be delivered to the NSW Government in June 2026 and a final report will be delivered in October 2026.

The review comes in the wake of another highly successful aerial shooting operation which removed 2276 feral pigs over five days in the Mungery and Dandaloo area, near the Bogan River, an hour west of Dubbo.

The Government’s Local Land Services carried out the shoot across more than 149,000 hectares of land, including private farmland and publicly managed travelling stock reserves and State Forest.

Since 2023, coordinated aerial shooting, trapping and baiting programs in this area has seen more than two tonnes of baited grain provided to landholders and undertaken three aerial shooting programs.

Over the next two months, Local Land Services is planning to undertake another 17 aerial shooting operations in different locations across NSW, targeting feral pigs and other pest animals.

Aerial shooting is a key component of coordinated control programs, that follows months of work being undertaken with primary control measures such as baiting and trapping.

These primary control methods are currently the most effective at reducing large feral pig numbers, with aerial shooting used in combination to address any remaining pigs.

Local Land Services helps facilitate broadscale, cross-tenure pest animal control programs across NSW in line with Regional Strategic Pest Animal Management Plans, working closely with landholders to coordinate control efforts.

Racing at Narromine

WITH PLANS mapped out for a start in the Dubbo Cup to be run in September, the Brett Robb trained Micro Mikki will now go for a short spell after beating a handy field on Sunday in the 1300 metres Narromine USMC Diggers Cup.

An excellent third in the recent $150,000 WRA Country Championship Qualifier at Dubbo, Micro Mikki again had Clayton Gallagher in the saddle at Narromine and started the $1.50 to $1.30 favourite.

In a good spot from the outset, Micro Mikki responded to some pressure from Gallagher halfway down the straight and moved past a tenacious Stockholm (Mikayla Weir, $7) to win by a long neck while Turgenev (Ashleigh McCabe, $12) ran on well for third. Brett Robb was pleased with the performance of the two-year-old Rubelin when beating older horses in the 1100m Australian Lighthorse Maiden Plate.

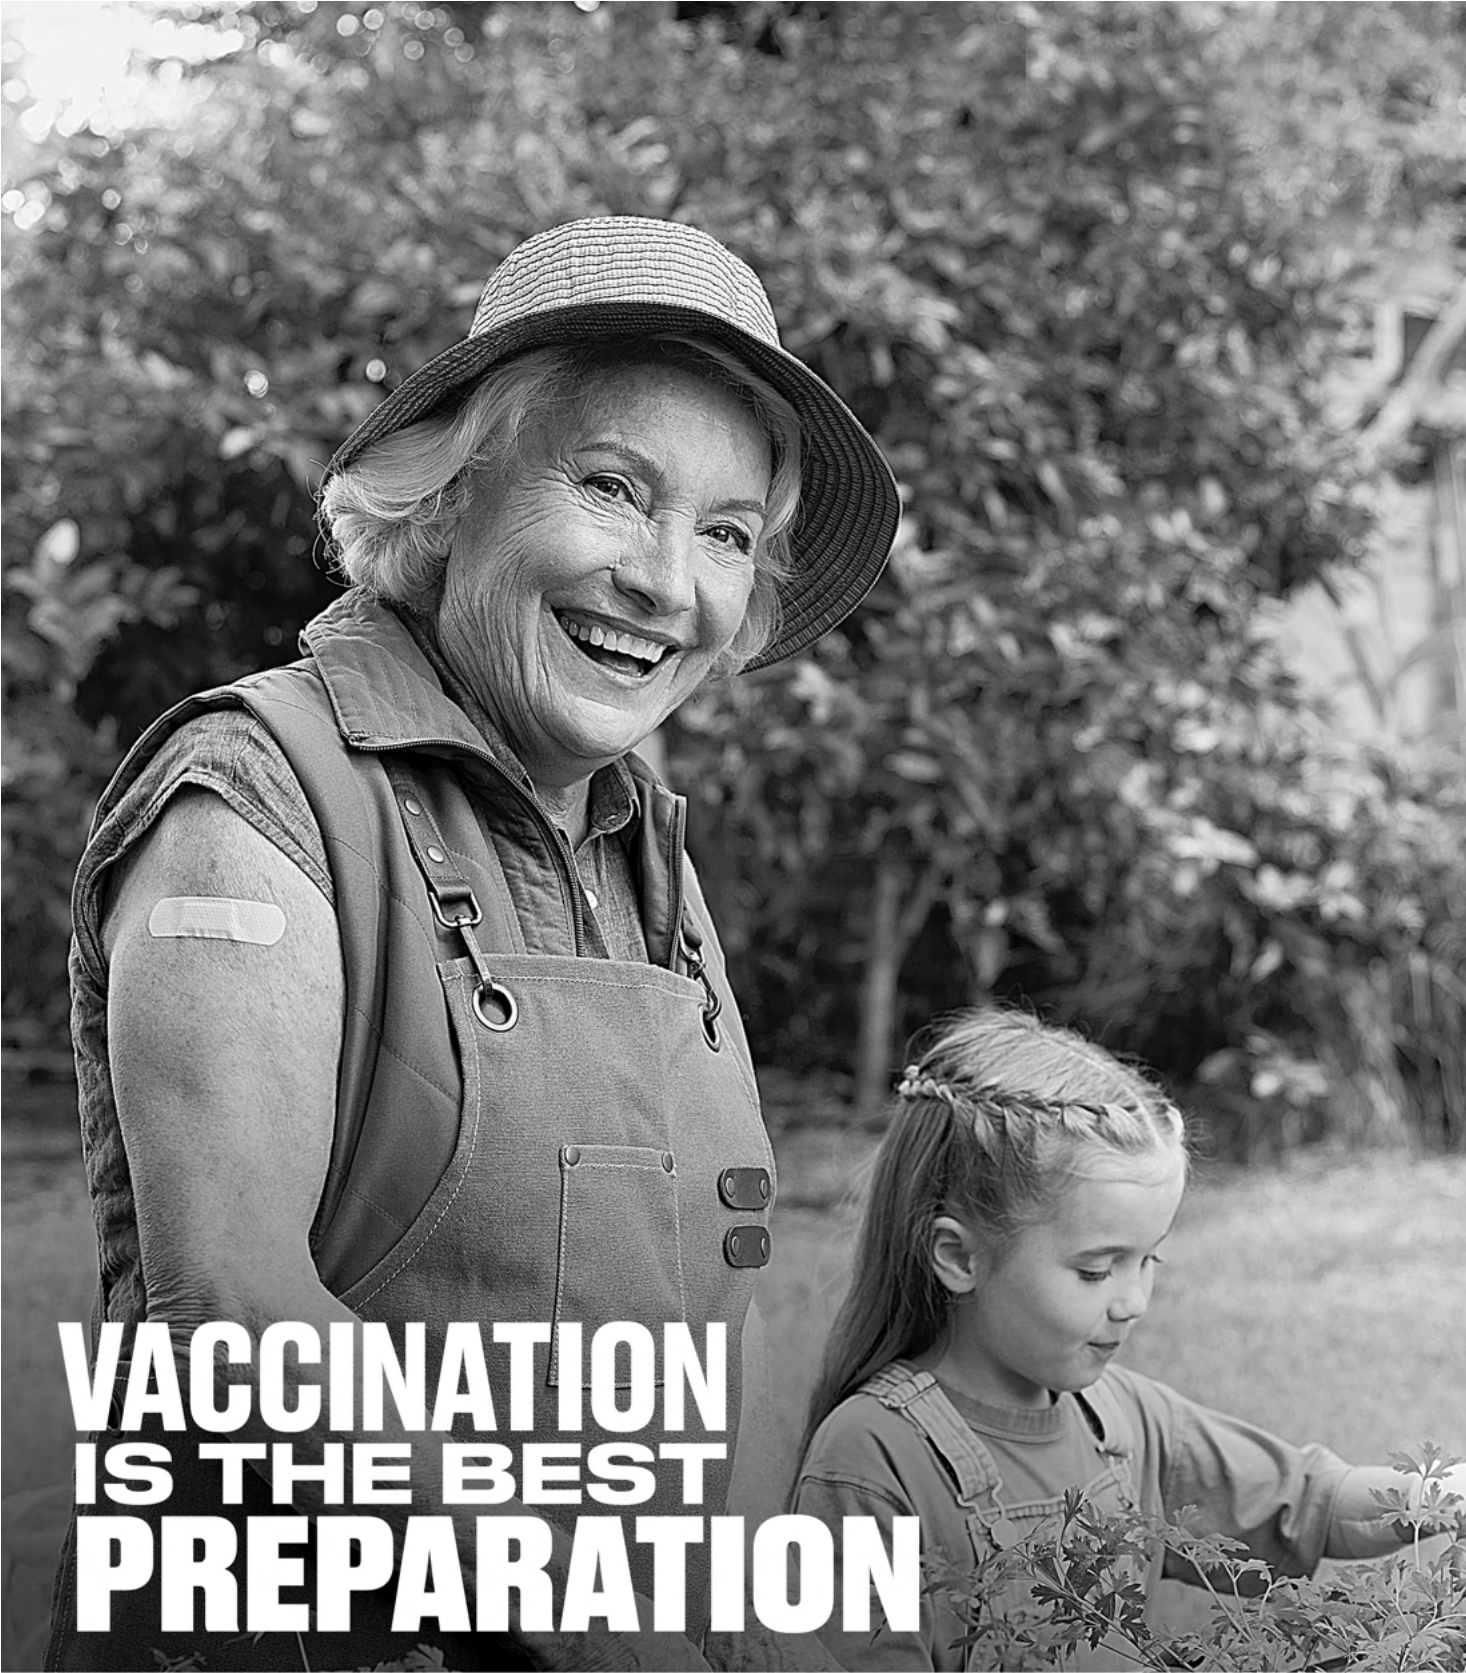

A creditable sixth in the Wellington Boot, Rubelin (Izzy Neale, $1.24 fav) led all the way to beat Sibeila (Zoe Hunt, $11) and Raygun Rocks (Liam Blanch, $21) by over three lengths at Narromine.

Recently granted a dual trainer-jockey licence, Kody Nestor was seen in his new role when riding Territory Style, a horse he trains, to victory in the 1100m Narromine Shire Maiden Plate.

Backed from $1.90 to $1.50 fav, Territory Style was given a charmed run on the rails before taking the lead and winning by over a length from the strong finishing Moon Dart (Mikayla Weir, $12) and Northern Exposue (Nick Palmer, $10).

Forbes trainer Melissa Harrison has her team going well and Strassman made it successive wins when taking out the 1600m Narromine Hardware Class 1 & Maiden Plate. Strassman (Clayton Gallagher, $3.10 fav) raced in third position before hitting the lead and holding off The Bentley (Izzy Neale, $3.80) and Himeros (Gabrielle Johnston, $7.50).

Resuming from a spell, the Michael Mulholland trained Turbulent (Grant Buckley, $17) came from near last to win the 1100m Three Rivers Machinery BM 58 Handicap from Line Of Law (Jordan Quince, $19) and Trumppy Dumpty (Mikayla Weir, $16) to give Grant Buckley a double after his earlier win on the Rod Northam trained $7 chance Smart Scud.

2026 Wellington Show

Celebrating 150 years

Wellington Show Society present, Rob Dimmick.

President's welcome

IT IS with great pleasure that I invite you to participate in The Grand Hotel 150th Annual Wellington Show.

This is a great achievement for the Wellington Show Society and the Wellington community.

I would like to thank the current and all past committee members and other volunteers who have dedicated themselves to ensuring this important institution of rural communities is continued in the Wellington community.

Thank you too, to all our sponsors, without your contributions our Show could not run.

To the community, I would like to thank you for your ongoing support of our Show.

This year, along with all the regular events and competitions, we have worked to enhance our Saturday night entertainment and would love to see the community there celebrating our 150th Show.

As you peruse the schedule, please consider how you could contribute to the Show, be it as an exhibitor, show day volunteer or committee member.

We look forward to having you celebrate The Grand Hotel 150th Annual Wellington Show with us.

Dugald Saunders MEMBER FOR THE DUBBO ELECTORATE

Authorised by Dugald Saunders MP, 1/18 Talbragar Street Dubbo NSW 2830. Funded using Parliamentary entitlements.

First Wellington Show was held in 1875

The first Wellington exhibition of livestock and colonial products was opened on May 11, 1875, under the auspices of the Wellington P. and A. Association.

It was a grand success.

The show was held in a paddock, situated a quarter of a mile from the Royal Hotel.

The paddock was lent for the occasion by a Mr. Nancarrow.

As it was the opening show, much had to be done that would not require to be done again.

It was said at the time that the cereal and root crops exhibited could not be excelled by similar products produced by leading agriculturalists of the Metropolitan, Hunter and Hawkesbury districts.

It was also said that if livestock was the chief desideratum at such exhibitions, then Wellington required to know no more than that the name of Lee. Gardiner, J. S. Smith, Joseph Aarons, and others such, were among the exhibitors.

In those days there was no

Many visitors were connected with the show, and others with the races; while yards for cattle and sheep were no less at a premium, than boxes and stalls for horses.

There was immense activity on the part of the president of the association, Mr. Gaden, and the honorary secretary, Mr. Hyeronimus, whilst Mr. John A. Gardiner, of Gobolian, who in those days seemed by general acclaim to be king of Wellington, was full of anxiety that everything should go well.

He did enough work to eclipse the whole committee.

Small catalogues, containing all the information needed, were available, and members tickets were also issued.

It was said at the time that the awards of the judges, the well-directed efforts of the stewards, and the good humour of the beaten exhibitors, put to blush happenings at much more pretentious shows under the auspices of much older and more experienced societies

The attendance at the ground was not large, but in those days Wellington district population was very small compared with to-day.

However there was a goodly company, including a number of ladies, the wives and daughters of the neighbouring gentry.

The shed appropriated to the exhibition of agricultural produce contained a good show of vegetables, maize pumpkins, and other roots and cereals; as well as preserved and other fruits from Gobolian.

HISTORICAL PAPER

In this article Mr. N. A. Samuels, of Maryvale, describes the first Show ever held in Wellington.

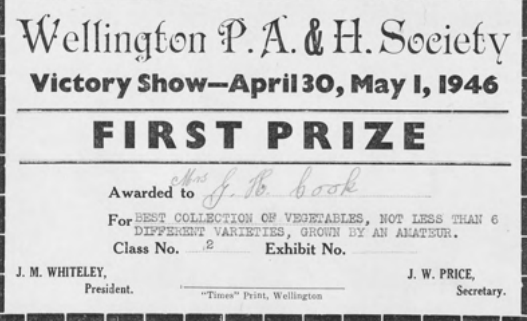

The article is part of a paper which Mr. Samuels contributed to the Wellington Historical Society.

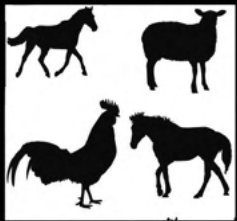

The pattern of success for future Wellington Shows was set by the initial venture in 1875.

railway and it was also about half a century before motor floats were first used.

The day before the show the livestock came in from distant locations, and it was commented at the time, that the little town of Wellington was fuller, and more congested than it had ever been before.

Young Woman 2025 Clair Stiff values Sydney Royal experience

STEPPING ONTO the stage at the Sydney Royal Easter Show this year as Wellington's representative was both an honour and an incredibly rewarding experience.

It was an unforgettable opportunity to celebrate rural communities, agriculture, and the role of young women in both.

The week was an incredibly valuable and diverse experience.

We took part in a range of activities including personal and professional development workshops, judging interviews, and networking opportunities with industry leaders and program alumni.

These experiences helped build confidence in public speaking, communication, and leadership, while also providing insight into the wider agricultural sector.

Throughout the program, we were also involved in official show duties, engaging with the public and representing the role of young women in agriculture.

This included spending time across different pavilions and events, gaining a deeper appreciation for the scale and diversity of the industry as well as the "behind the scenes" of the Sydney Royal Easter Show.

A highlight was connecting with other finalists from across New South Wales, all of whom brought unique perspectives from their own communities.

The friendships and networks formed were a really special part of the experience and something I will cherish moving forward.

I was also proud to use this platform to advocate for women's health in rural areas, particularly raising awareness of endometriosis and the challenges faced by women working in agriculture.

Being able to bring this conversation into an agricultural setting was incredibly meaningful.

Overall, it was a rewarding and inspiring week, and I feel very grateful to have represented Wellington on such a significant stage.

Clair Stiff

Clair Stiff was a Young Woman finalist at the 2026 Sydney Royal Show.

Still time to enter

YOUNG LADIES who would like to enter the 2026 Wellington Show Young Woman competition still have an opportunity to enter.

But you'll need to get a move on.

The event is an exciting program aimed at finding a young female ambassador to represent Wellington during her term as the "Wellington Show Young Woman 2026".

This competition provides the winner with exciting opportunities in her role as Wellington's Young Woman ambassador, including personal etiquette training and public speaking development.

This year's winner will participate in zone final judging against other towns' finalists to win through to the Sydney Royal AgShows NSW Young Woman Finals. You could win more than $11,000 in prizes.

Entrants will be judged on personality, presentation, confidence, general and rural knowledge, community involvement and ambitions/goals.

You must be aged from 18 years to less than 26 years as at May 1st, 2027.

Contact the coordinator, Amelia Bryant on 0448 451 092 now. Judging is this Saturday, May 9.

sHedway Q Fever vaccination clinic at Show

BOVINE, OVINE and equine industries are well represented at the annual Wellington Show, and these livestock attract many owners, breeders and exhibitors from both town and country.

The ever-present possibility of contracting Q Fever is always close.

sHedway, a grassroots health promotion charity is hosting a free Q Fever Vaccination Clinic for the shearing industry in Central West NSW this May and will at Wellington Show on Saturday, May 16 and also at Dubbo Show the following Saturday.

This health promotion charity for suicide prevention and mental fitness in the shearing and wool industry was founded in 2023 by nurse-turned-shearer Carol Mudford, the 2025 National AgriFutures Rural Women's Award winner, in response to a number of shearer suicide losses.

She says sHedway is run from the sheds, for the sheds.

The goals are to break stigma and share skills to support the community from within the community, whilst connecting to external mental health services.

sHedway stalls often include physical health support as well, and this year includes the Q Fever vaccination clinic - which has been two years in the making.

Bringing together Western NSW health organisations for the shearing community: sHedway is coordinating the clinic which will be run by the Royal Flying Doctor Service, and is supported by Macquarie Health Collective, Western NSW Local Health District, and the Rotary Club of South Dubbo.

One of the doctors is even volunteering her time for both weekends.

The shearing shed attracts strong competition from shearers and wool handlers, plus big crowds throughout the day and night.

Horticulture, preserves and pavilion entries are keen show attractions

WHETHER IT'S out of the garden or from the kitchen, home produce attracts the majority of entries at Wellington Show.

And like anywhere in any country, town, city or farm, there's always someone with a green thumb or a keen leaning towards the preparation of good food.

Then there are the crafters and photographers and artists, many of whom are also keen to exhibit their works to see how they fit with the rest of their world.

The photography section attracts hundreds of exhibits so entries close at 4pm on Tuesday, May 12 and judged on Thursday, May 14.

Visual arts entries close at 6pm on Wednesday, 13.

In the horticulture shed flowers, pot plants and produce entries close 6pm on Friday, May 15.

Handicraft including needlecraft entries close 4pm on Tuesday, 12th; children's craft entries are open from 10am to 4pm Monday and Tuesday, 11 and 12.

Fleeces

Tony Inder is the Fleece section steward and said all entries need to be delivered to Carmichael & Co, Woolbrokers in Lee Street by tomorrow (Friday).

Equine lovers enjoy two show days

HORSE SECTIONS at Wellington Show are split into two days - Friday for local horses and rider only, and Saturday for all other competition. Friday's local events start with pony in harness , junior handler, Galloway and Hack led and later ridden. The day finishes with championships for boy and girl riders and supreme local champion Hack (pony, galloway or hack). Saturday has all sections including Miniatures, Australia Stock Horses and unofficial show jumping.

Pet Parade's a must for youngsters

THIS COMING week will see much cooler weather with tops of 21 degrees and zero on Saturday. Rain is forecast for Monday with thunderstorms 12mm predicted. Rainfall till midday Monday 4th, 9mm.

Last week I had the privilege of travelling on the Probus Club coach to explore the mighty Murray region staying at the great Mulwala club resort for the four nights and travelling on the coach each day. Tuesday we travelled to Bright via Myrtleford on the Ovens River after lunch in Bright then off to Ovens for a tour of the Pumpkin Factory - the first and only pumpkin seed company in Australia.

These special seeds have very little flesh and are only grown for their seeds which they crush for oil then bottled.

Seeds are also chocolate coated and/or other flavours. Their nutty flavour enhances other nut flavours in mixes.

Wednesday we headed to the Port of Echuca for a ride on an authentic paddle steamer up the mighty Murray. After touring Echuca we headed back driving through the Barmah forest. Thursday we travel to the famous town of Beechworth where we did a walking tour of the town visiting the old courthouse, gold warden’s office and of course the infamous Jail which was home for many of the Ned Kelly gang including Ned himself later back for chopper Reid Lunch at the famous Beechworth Bakery and Beechworth honey.

Then back to Yarrawonga via Rutherglen and silo art. On our way down to Yarrawonga I counted 24 b-doubles of hay heading north.

Talking to locals, oaten hay costs $200/bale, vetch $415, lucerne $450. Bales are 8x4x3.

Dry sowing had commenced in the Murray region.

Market stabilisation in season’s last of big offerings

LAST WEEK’s wool market was one of consolidation, with the strong rises of the previous sale being mainly held. Auctions were over three selling days, with Sydney and Fremantle observing the Anzac Day public holiday on Monday, leaving Melbourne to start selling on Tuesday in isolation. Wednesday all three centres offered, leaving the North on Thursday in isolation. Finer than 18.5-micron Merino types were best supported, making small gains, with medium to stronger types easing up to 36 cents. Skirtings continued strong support, making ground on each day, cardings held value and crossbreds strengthened again to almost the high levels achieved in August. Buyer confidence continues to be solid, balancing the lifts in weekly sales values and quantities that are now looking like low 30,000 bale offerings. Top makers that have been buying regularly along the improved market values are able to average the price of tops if needed in their sales to spinners, which from what we are hearing are not far from where the market currently is sitting. Breathers like last week can be looked at confidently, reflecting the stability of the trading arena at present. The consumer appetite in the domestic Chinese market is the driver of this positive sentiment, as well as the need to keep the wool specific machinery turning over. Previous historical trends are likely not to help predicting the future trading environment, we are now witnessing a new chapter, due to reduced production. What levels it reaches at which time period will be all new territory for growers and processors alike.

Macquarie Home Stay is well recognised giving support to people needing accommodation when family and friends are getting treatment in the Dubbo hospitals. Thanks to the incredible generosity of our clients and Endeavour Wool Exports we managed to smash our 2024 goal of $65,000. That support directly funded the fit out of two new rooms. We are hoping to replicate this again with sale 51 earmarked as the first auction to offer donated wool in, with another earmarked for October. Please let us know if you would like to donate and we will organise the rest. Check out Macquarie Home Stay website out <https://www.macquariehomestay.com.au/>

Offering drops to 34,000 this week, with 400 bales offered by Macwool and Carmichael wool yesterday.

Cows to processors 15c to 30c dearer, restocker cows 55c/kg dearer. 2 and 3 score cows to processors 220c to 333c, heavy cows 313c to 365c, ave 342c/kg. Restocker cows 215c to 324c/kg. Bulls 20c dearer to 414c/kg.

DUBBO SHEEP. 16,500 lambs. Good quality yarding, trade and heavy lambs throughout. Also lighter lambs for restockers, and Merinos. Light lambs to processors firm, 12kg to 18kg 2 scores $145 to $236. Trade lambs $12 cheaper, 20kg to 24kg $221 to $290, ave 1110c and 1165c/kg cwt. Heavy lambs finished at $12 dearer, 24kg to 30kg $270 to $380, over 30kg $370 to $385, ave 1160c/kg cwt. Trade Merino lambs close to firm, heavies $14 cheaper. Trade Merinos $188 to $244, heavies $276. Restocker and feeder lambs $5 to $10 cheaper, $96 to $246, feeders paid $240 to $277. Hoggets to $280.

MUTTON.. 16500 head. Light and medium weight sheep $10 to $13 cheaper, better heavy weights around firm. Merino ewes $84 to $260, crossbred ewes $120 to $314. Merino wethers $138 to $260, better sheep ave 750c and 815c/kg cwt. With rain in south restockers paid $50 to $139 for Merino ewes.

DUBBO STORE MARKET 320 cattle. Best steer weaners Angus from Hampshire Station Merriwa, $1420 and $1200/head. Balance $140 for light Friesian crosses $950 for good Angus calves. Better calves 450c to 490c/kg lwt. Heifer weaners $270 light crossbreds to $640 for Angus. Best cow/calf units good framed Angus with 2nd and 3rd calves $1840, Balance $900 for plain units to $1450/unit for Hereford/Angus cross with 2nd and 3rd calves.

WOOL.. Another positive week, fine wool and crossbred indicators increasing across the board. Gains more moderate compared to recent weeks, the market showed signs of consolidation,seen as beneficial for longer-term price sustainability. NRI strong performance through April, rising a total of 199 cents. While such sharp price increases are welcomed by producers, the early and later stages of the wool pipeline take longer to absorb and pass on these gains. A period of consolidation can help these sectors and provide breathing room to re-finance and continue operating effectively. Tight supply, both at the production level and throughout the pipeline has been a key driver of the price recovery over the past 6–8 months. The latest Wool Production Forecasting Committee update projects a national decline of 8.8% for the 2025/26 season, including reductions of 10.4% in NSW and 7.6% in Queensland. This will ensure the tight supply situation will play a major role in future markets.

Racing at Binnaway

THE REMARKABLE transformation from perpetual loser to regular winner continued when the six-year-old gelding St Roy, last Saturday, won the 1300 metres Exchange Hotel-Jack O’Brien Memorial Binnaway Cup.

Winner of a Maiden Handicap in February 2024 at Tamworth, St Roy was then unplaced in 19 successive races before showing a glimpse of better form earlier this year.

St Roy had been transferred to the Jane Clement stable at Mendooran and following four unplaced runs was a surprise third at a Dubbo TAB meeting in February when a despised $201 outsider.

Since then St Roy from six starts has won four races including the Cup before a big crowd at Binnaway, with Billy Cray in the saddle.

Sidenay led the eight-horse field until claimed by Akauwheo in the straight and in a hectic finish the well supported St Roy ($4.20) from midfield arrived in time on the outside to win by a head from Yiasou (Jake Pracey-Holmes, $3 favourite) with a nose to Akauwheo (Kody Nestor, $6.50).

Jane Clement trained horses have been in great form with multiple wins at recent meetings and the winning treble at Binnaway comprised St Roy, Brave Enough and Oakfield Echidna.

Coming from a clear last at the midway point in the 1100m Benchmark 45 Handicap, Brave Enough (Billy Cray, $6 to $4 eq-fav) finished fast to beat the Michael Plummer, Narromine trained Bold Tee (Jasmine Urquhart-Warren, $41) and Tigella (Juliet Partridge, $10).

Completing a treble for Jane Clement and Billy Cray, Oakfield Echidna ($14 to $11) raced behind the leading group then finished well to score by a length from Sellinya (Nick Palmer, $8) and Hardyo (Gabrielle Johnson, $4.80) in the Tolmie/Grant/Barlow Peadon Benchmark 45 Handicap.

Juliet Partridge (28) for several years worked as a strapper and travelling foreman for Brisbane trainer and former champion jockey Chris Munce before deciding on a career as an apprentice jockey and after about 45 rides won her first race, the 1000m Maiden Plate at Binnaway.

Now indentured to Mel O’Gorman at Tamworth, Juliet Partridge aboard the Zach Hatch, Tamworth trained Soccerew ($6) led all the way to win by nearly two lengths from Jack The Boss (Jake Pracey-Holmes, $3.29) and Stuck In The Gorge (Kody Nestor, $3 fav).

Part owned by Kate Willis from Collarenebri, the six-year-old grey mare Powderfinger at the second start from a spell won the 1200m Class 2 Handicap.

Trained by Brett Thompson, Powderfinger ($6) well ridden by apprentice Gabrielle Johnston, took a rails run and won by over two lengths from The Git Up (Nick Palmer, $4.60) and Encyclopedia (Billy Cray, $51).

From midfield, the Sally Torrens, Gunnedah trained Bravalante (Leanne Boyd, $4.20) hit the front in the straight and held off Moonlight Odyssey (Gabrielle Johnston , $2 fav)) by a length with the leader Pluck ‘N’ Spy (Dylan Stanley, $8) battling on for third in the 1300m Dennis Frater Memorial Maiden Handicap.

Marthaguy Picnic Races (at Quambone) on Saturday followed by Mudgee TAB on Sunday and Bathurst TAB on Tuesday.

News Bargaining Incentive a win for regional communities

REGIONAL NEWS publishers have welcomed the release of draft News Bargaining Incentive legislation and urged all Members of Parliament, regardless of party, to support its passage.

Damian Morgan, President of Country Press Australia, which represents more than 240 regional and community news publications and their digital news services across the country, said the proposed legislation was an important step toward restoring fairness between Australian news publishers and major global digital platforms.

Country Press Australia recognised the work of Prime Minister Anthony Albanese, Minister for Communications Anika Wells and Assistant Treasurer Dr Daniel Mulino in progressing the draft legislation and acknowledged the constructive engagement that has occurred with the regional news sector through the policy development process.

“This is fundamentally about fairness, but it is also about truth, facts and the future of informed communities,” Mr Morgan said.

“Professional journalism costs money to produce. Large digital platforms derive value from that journalism, but they do not employ the local reporters, editors and photographers who create it. The News Bargaining Incentive is designed to encourage fair commercial agreements so Australian journalism can remain sustainable.”

In simple terms, the NBI would require large digital platforms, including Meta, TikTok and Google, to pay a charge unless they have reached commercial agreements that fairly compensate eligible Australian news organisations.

Country Press Australia said the proposed legislation builds on the News Media Bargaining Code introduced by the former Coalition Government, which established the important principle that powerful global technology platforms should contribute to the cost of the news content from which they benefit.

Australia has led the world in confronting this challenge.

That leadership has been bipartisan, and Country Press Australia is calling for that same spirit of cross-party support to continue.

“Local news is not a Labor issue, a Liberal issue, a National Party issue or a Greens issue.

“It is an Australian issue,” Mr Morgan said.

“Every community deserves access to reliable, professionally produced information.

“Every community deserves journalists who are prepared to ask questions, check facts, attend meetings, report decisions and give local people a voice.”

Country Press Australia acknowledged the genuine contribution technology companies have made to modern life, including connectivity, commerce, search, social connection and access to information.

It also recognised that Google has continued to engage constructively with Australian news publishers and has shown that commercial agreements between global technology companies and Australian media businesses are possible.

“We acknowledge Google’s constructive engagement with the news industry,” Mr Morgan said.

“But the responsibility cannot fall on one company alone.

“All major digital platforms that derive value from Australian journalism must accept their responsibility.

“No company should be able to benefit from the credibility, relevance and public value of professional news while avoiding a fair contribution to the cost of producing it.”

Country Press Australia said it was important the final legislation encourages genuine commercial deals and does not create an incentive for platforms to reduce, remove or downgrade access to Australian news.

“Reliable news must remain visible and accessible to Australians,” Mr Morgan said.

“The answer cannot be for platforms to avoid responsibility by making trusted news harder to find.

“At a time of rising misinformation, Australians need more access to facts, not less.”

Country Press Australia said the issue was especially important for regional, rural and local Australia, where local news media is often the only professional source of verified local information.

Together, Country Press Australia members form the largest regional digital news publishing network in the country.

They reach millions of Australians across digital and print each day, and publish more than 1000 news stories online every day, produced by local journalists who live in, understand and are accountable to the communities they serve.

Country Press Australia members cover councils, courts, emergency services, schools, sport, agriculture, local business, community groups and the decisions that affect people’s everyday lives.

In many communities, if they are not there to record, question, explain and publish, often no one else is.

“That matters deeply,” Mr Morgan said.

“Without local news media, communities lose more than a publication or a website. They lose a trusted public record.

“They lose scrutiny of local decision making. They lose a place where facts are checked, rumours are challenged and local stories are told with care and accountability.”

“At a time when misinformation can spread quickly and loudly, the work of professional local journalists has never been more important. Country Press Australia members do not deal in anonymous claims, conspiracy theories or algorithm driven outrage. They stand behind what they publish.”

Country Press Australia said the consultation process must ensure regional and community publishers are properly recognised in any future commercial arrangements, not left behind while only the largest metropolitan media companies benefit.

“Regional Australians must not be treated as an afterthought,” Mr Morgan said.

“Our members are often the only professional news media voice in their communities. They are the ones making sure regional people are seen, heard and understood.”

“The choice is not simply between local news and no local news. It is between trusted journalism and an information vacuum. It is between facts and unchecked misinformation.

“It is between communities with a voice and communities left out of the national conversation.”

Country Press Australia urged Parliament to pass legislation that delivers fair, practical and lasting outcomes for eligible Australian news publishers of all sizes.

“This reform is about keeping facts in front of Australians,” Mr Morgan said.

“It is about protecting local journalism, strengthening democracy and ensuring regional communities continue to have a voice.”

Support coming forward for Civic Centre hire fees to be reduced

Letters to the editor

I am writing regarding the upcoming Council decision concerning the Wellington Civic Centre in May.

I have been a member of the Wellington Eisteddfod Society over 16 years, a parent of children who have attended for 26 years, a volunteer, and a committee member.

Over this time, I have seen first-hand both the incredible value of the Civic Centre to our community and the increasing challenges associated with hiring the facility.

The Wellington Eisteddfod has been running for 48 years, having first been established in 1976, and it is entirely volunteer-run.

The event has become a significant fixture in the local area community, often described as a “cornerstone” that has lasted for nearly half a century.

Each year, the Wellington Civic Centre provides a stage for thousands of performers to compete across various disciplines, including Dance - Solo and group performances ranging from junior to senior levels.

Music and Singing - vocal and instrumental categories, and Speech and Drama - recitals and powerful poetry performances.

It is the largest annual event held in our town, attracting more than 2500 people each year, including competitors, families, visitors and supporters.

As a not-for-profit organisation, every dollar we raise through entry fees goes directly back into running the event, with a significant portion of those funds returning to Council through venue hire and associated costs.

I would like to acknowledge the Dubbo Regional Council staff, who have consistently gone above and beyond to support us. Their efforts in improving areas such as electrical systems, heating, cooling and sound have not gone unnoticed and are deeply appreciated.

However, ongoing issues remain within the Civic Centre that require attention: cracked windows, worn curtains needing replacement, and an outdated kitchen with ongoing electrical concerns.

Furthermore, the infrastructure suggests a need for more dressing rooms. This could be addressed in the space between the bathrooms where the windows and curtains need immediate replacement.

A major flaw of a portable disability ramp or lift to be built to allow access for everyone of which has been brought to the attention of DRC over the past three years.

As a committee we applied for grants but because this building is a DRC, government regulations make it impossible to secure them.

Each year, community users provide feedback, yet many of these issues remain unresolved - not due to a lack of effort from staff, but due to broader constraints.

The cost of hiring the Civic Centre continues to rise, which is having a direct and growing impact.

The Eisteddfod costs approximately $40,000 annually to run. Without the generosity of local sponsors and the commitment of volunteers, it would not be possible.

A large portion of our committee’s time is spent seeking sponsorship simply to cover increasing venue and operational costs.

As a result, we have had to reduce our daily program to approximately 12 hours. While this may seem sufficient, the reality is that this restriction forces the event to run over more days.

In previous years, we were able to run three sessions per day, including evening sessions, which reduced the total number of days required.

Now, the extended number of days increases costs for families - including fuel, accommodation, food, and time away - and directly impacts the number of entries competitors can afford.

This, in turn, affects participation and the sustainability of the event.

Importantly, the Wellington Eisteddfod is just one example. There are many community events - including local school events - that were once held at the Civic Centre but have since moved to alternative venues due to the cost of hire.

The Civic Centre is increasingly becoming the last option considered, rather than the first, unless the event is funded by government or external bodies.

If hire costs were more accessible, the Civic Centre would naturally become a central hub for community life once again.

Community organisations, local groups, schools and individuals would be far more likely to use the space for performances, meetings, conferences, weddings, and community gatherings.

In a town like Wellington, word of mouth alone would drive increased usage without the need for extensive marketing.

Currently, even accessing information about the Civic Centre is difficult. Online searches often redirect to Dubbo Regional Theatre, and accurate, accessible information specific to Wellington is limited.

Listings on tourism platforms such as Visit NSW do not clearly represent the venue, and some booking pages display incorrect or misleading images.

Wellington sits in a highly strategic location within the Central West - often referred to as the “Golden Triangle” between Dubbo, Orange and Mudgee.

The Eisteddfod alone attracts participants from Lithgow, Cowra, West Wyalong, Cobar, Coonamble, Coolah and surrounding regions.

With more accessible venue costs, there is significant potential to expand participation and attract even more visitors.

This delivers a direct economic benefit to the town, supporting accommodation providers, food outlets, retail businesses and local services.

For example, during our major dance weekends, we notify local supermarkets in advance due to the influx of over 2000 people within a 48-hour period, allowing them to increase staffing accordingly.

Beyond economics, the Civic Centre plays a vital role in supporting the arts and community life — including organisations such as Wellington Amateur Theatrical Society, local schools, and numerous volunteer groups.

This is not simply about one event or one organisation. It is about ensuring that a key community asset remains accessible, functional, and actively used.

From a practical perspective, there are clear steps Council can take to improve this situation.

One of the most immediate and effective actions would be to review and reduce hire fees to a level that is accessible for community organisations and local users.

The Civic Centre is a community hall - a hub that belongs to the people of Wellington - and it should be within reach of those who wish to use it.

The more people who are able to hold events at the Civic Centre, the more it will be used. Increased usage will naturally lead to greater awareness, stronger word of mouth, and ultimately more bookings.

In time, this would increase overall hire frequency and revenue, rather than limiting it.

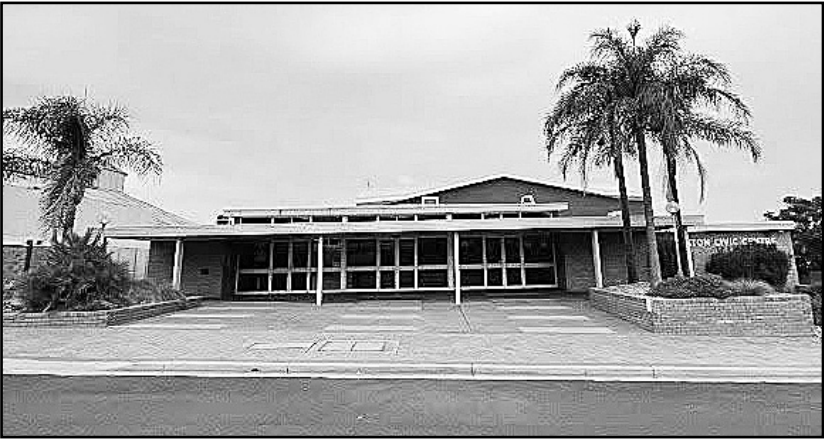

Equally important is listening to those who regularly use the facility.

Over the past 20 years, consistent feedback and practical suggestions have been provided by community groups.

Engaging with these users and acting on their input will ensure the Civic Centre continues to improve in a way that meets real community needs.

I respectfully ask Council to consider a more balanced and sustainable approach - one that supports community organisations, encourages greater use of the Civic Centre, and recognises the long-term social and economic benefits for Wellington.

Pip Smith
Wellington Eisteddfod Society INC, Committee Member

I am writing in support of the submission regarding the Wellington Civic Centre that is being presented at the upcoming council meeting. Wellington Amateur Theatrical Society (WATS) has been an integral part of the community since its inception in 1910.

We pride ourselves on providing a safe, creative space for anyone that wants to be involved.

Unlike many regional towns, Wellington does not have a traditional theatre from which we can base ourselves, so up until 2018 WATS was grateful to be able to avail ourselves of our town hall, Wellington Civic Centre.

Following the amalgamation of the Wellington Council with Dubbo in 2016, it has become increasingly cost prohibitive to mount our productions at the Civic Centre.

We instead have relied on the generosity and sponsorship of the Wellington Memorial Soldiers Club to accommodate us for rehearsals, set up and performances.

While this has worked well for us, it does compromise the type of productions we can mount and the number of performers/participants we can include.

It also severely restricts the number of shows and audience members we can enjoy, thus further restricting our opportunity for growth.

Each year we look at ways we can return to the Wellington Civic Centre.

We have worked closely with the team at DRTC to look at ways to make it viable, however despite everyone's best efforts, it always becomes clear that the current cost structure would significantly threaten WATS' future financial viability.

Having mounted a show every year for 116 years (with the exception of the two Covid years) this is a risk we are not willing to take.

With the pending redevelopment/upgrade of the Soldiers Club, WATS is looking like becoming a theatre company without a performance venue.

We certainly don't expect to be able to access the Civic Centre for free however would like to think that vital community groups such as ours, could be incentivised to return to what once was, Wellington's cultural and social centre.

On behalf of the WATS and the wider Wellington community, I respectfully request that the Mayor and Councillors of Dubbo Regional Council, review the current fee structure so that is once again a feasible option for groups such as ours to return to our town hall.

Landholders concerns ignored by NE REZ

Member for Upper Hunter Dave Layzell and Member for Northern Tablelands Brendan Moylan have renewed their criticism of the New England REZ transmission line corridor, warning the so called “refined” route shows a blatant disregard for community feedback and continues to ignore the serious concerns raised by local landholders and residents.

During a recent visit to the Upper Hunter electorate, Minister Sharpe acknowledged the proposed route would impact professional aviation firefighters, agriculture and thoroughbred industries, and have environmental impacts on the Timor Caves and New England koala colonies.

Mr Layzell said the concerns of communities across the Upper Hunter have been largely ignored through the release of the refined corridor.

“For a young family like Lucy and Tom Haigh, this is the darkest of days.

“They are facing the prospect of uprooting their lives with the installation of enormous transmission lines over their home,” Mr Layzell said.

Mr Moylan said that farmers and community members across the New England and Upper Hunter have bent over backwards to engage in good faith.

“They’ve attended meetings, provided detailed feedback, and tried to be part of the solution but they have been ignored and treated with absolute disregard by the Minns Labor Government,” Mr Moylan said.

“This isn’t just frustration, it’s a complete breakdown of trust. You cannot deliver projects of this scale by sidelining the very people who are expected to host them.”

The New England REZ received 481 submissions from people and organisations during last year’s consultation period. Of those, 467 responses expressed strong concern about one or more key issues related to the project.

Redbacks take two from three at Spicer Park

REDBACKS MADE the trip to Parkes on Saturday for Round 4 of the New Holland Cup and came home with two strong wins from three matches at Spicer Park, setting up a blockbuster home fixture against the Narromine Gorillas next weekend. Women fight to the final whistle in 53–7 loss

It was a tough afternoon for the Redbacks women, who came up against a polished Parkes Boars side and went down 53–7. The scoreboard told only part of the story, to their enormous credit, the Redbacks never stopped competing and fought to the very end against opposition that has been one of the form sides of the competition.

The standout moment of the day belonged to Jorja Lousick, who crossed for her first ever try, a milestone the whole club is proud of.

The performance gave the playing group plenty to build on, and with a bye next weekend, the side will reset and refocus before returning to action.

The result sees the Redbacks women sit fourth on the North Cup ladder.

Second Grade put on a clinic - 43–7

Second Grade rolled into Round 4 in red-hot form and turned in another classy display, running out 43–7 winners against the Parkes Boars.

The Redbacks were dominant in every facet, set piece, breakdown, defence and attacking shape, and never let Parkes settle.

Three from three for the season, the win lifts Second Grade to second on the New Holland Cup Second Grade ladder on 19 competition points, just one point behind ladder leaders Narromine.

A points differential of +64 underlines just how comprehensive this side has been.

First Grade set the standard early in 41–29 win

First Grade came out with serious intensity and set the standard from the opening minutes, building a strong lead through a high-quality 60 minutes of footy.

Ronnie Tandy-Bell excels again in the pool at Olympic Park

RONNIE TANDY-BELL gained two gold and two bronze medals at the NSW Combined High Schools Swimming Association championships last weekend. Now he has his eyes on the NSW All Schools championships this month, and then the Australian All Schools (National).

Ronnie claimed Gold in the 50 metres Backstroke and another in the 100m Backstroke then excelled with a Bronze medal in the 50m Freestyle and another in the 200m Individual Medley.

The Redbacks were sharp at the break-down, accurate with ball in hand, and took their chances when they came.

Parkes, never an easy out at home, crept back into the contest in the final minutes and put some scoreboard pressure on, but the Redbacks held their nerve to close out a 41–29 win.

A strong, gutsy effort that lifts the side up the New Holland Cup First Grade ladder to 3rd position.

Sponsors Day looms with Narromine the real test

Attention now turns to Saturday’s Wellington Redbacks Sponsors Day at Rygate Park, with a full program of rugby and the visit of a tough Narromine Gorillas outfit shaping as the real test for both men’s grades.

For First Grade, it’s a chance to keep climbing the table with a chance at claiming 2nd position.

For Second Grade, it’s bigger again, a head-to-head shot at knocking the Gorillas off the top of the ladder and claiming top spot in their own right.

The women have the bye, but the club is calling on the Wellington community to turn out in numbers and get behind the boys.

“We want a big crowd at Rygate Park,” club officials said. “Sponsors Day is one of the most important days on our calendar, we want to thank the businesses that back us, put on a show, and send Narromine home with a loss.”

Red Boars spirit lived on through Mitchell Whale Memorial Trophy

IT WAS a special and emotional occasion for the rugby communities of Parkes and Wellington, as a player from either the Parkes Boars or the Wellington Redbacks was awarded the prestigious Red Boars Mitchell Whale Memorial Trophy.

This honour recognised the individual who best represented the true spirit of rugby, commitment, teamwork, resilience, and heart.

The trophy carried deep meaning for both clubs.

In the year of Mitchell Whale’s passing, the Wellington Redbacks and Parkes Boars came together in a powerful show of unity, forming a combined side so their Under 15 players could continue playing the game they loved.

That team became known as the “Red Boars,” a name that has since stood as a symbol of strength, community, and shared passion for rugby.

This year’s clash continued that tradition of connection between the two clubs.

Wellington made the trip to Parkes with a strong contingent, fielding teams in Under 12s, Under 14s, Women’s, Reserve and First Grade.

Meanwhile, the Under 16s travelled to Dubbo to take on the Roos.

It was a successful day on the field for Wellington, with victories in all grades except the Women’s match.

Despite the result, the Women’s side showed determination and resilience throughout, embodying the very qualities the memorial trophy sought to honour.

While the wins were celebrated, the true focus of the day remained on the legacy of Mitchell Whale and the values he inspired.

The presentation of the Mitchell Whale Memorial Trophy served as a reminder that rugby was more than just a game - it was about unity, perseverance, and the enduring bonds formed both on and off the field.

As the Red Boars name continued to carry meaning for players and supporters alike, the day’s recipient was recognised not only for their performance, but for upholding a legacy that continues to bring two communities together.

Looking ahead, the club will host its much-anticipated Sponsors Day this Saturday at Rygate, with a full schedule of rugby kicking off from 9:30am with the Under 12s, and culminating in First Grade at 3:15pm.

It promises to be a great day of community spirit and local sport, with players eager to put on a strong showing in front of supporters and sponsors alike.

Everyone is encouraged to come along, show their support, and be part of what is set to be another memorable day for the club.

Club swimmers do well at Homebush

Congratulations from Wellington Amateur Swimming Club to our amazing team of Imogen Jones, Gracie, Roman Dowton, Cruz Gray and Elsie Gain who competed at Homebush recently in the NSW State Public Schools Championships.

It was a fantastic day filled with great personal bests and valuable experience competing at an elite level.

A special highlight of the day was Imogen winning Gold in the 13 Years 50m Freestyle.

Her squad mates, parents, coach and families were ecstatic and celebrated the moment right alongside her—such a wonderful display of team spirit.

Imogen also swam Personal Bests in her other events and a top 10 finish in Butterfly coming 9th out of 40 kids.

We also extend our congratulations to Gracie, who has progressed to Nationals in Victoria for her 50m Freestyle Multiclass event.

An incredible achievement and such an exciting time for Gracie and her family.

Coach Rod Pedron with Roman, Cruz, Imogen and Gracie.

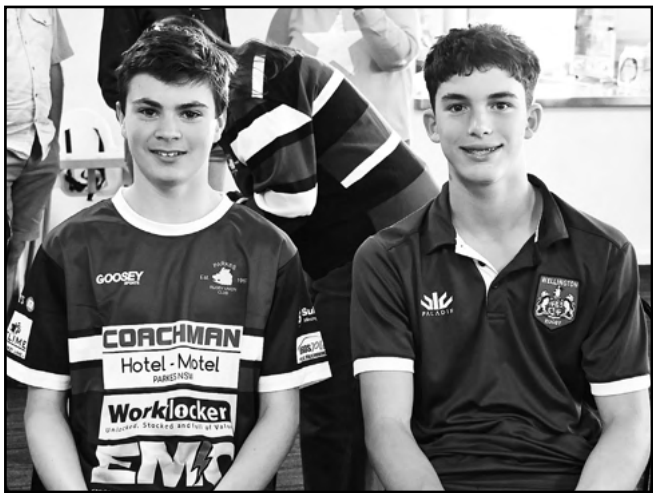

Imogen Jones snapped as her win was announced and later being presented her Gold medal.
