Commonwealth Financial Assistance Grants 2.0

THIS IS the biggest story in Local Government at the moment.

A month ago, I wrote in this column about the proposed changes to the methodology of distributing the Commonwealth Financial Assistance Grants (FA Grants).

The Commonwealth Government provides money to the NSW Government.

The independent NSW Local Government Grants Commission then makes a recommendation to the NSW Minister for Local Government on the allocation of the FA Grants.

The money comes to Local Councils according to a complex formula.

Councils spend the money on essential services. These grants support councils in providing essential services and infrastructure to their communities.

The primary function of the NSW Grants Commission is to make recommendations to the Minister for Local Government on the allocation of general purpose grants to local governing bodies in NSW under the provisions of the Commonwealth Local Government (Financial Assistance) Act

This all seems pretty simple – until there is a proposal to change the methodology/formula to be based more on equity and financial need, which would see some councils lose FA Grant money (mostly metropolitan councils) and other councils gain money (mostly rural/remote councils).

More than one-third of the NSW population lives and works in regional communities, contributing about one-quarter of the State’s economic output.

Despite this contribution, regional NSW typically receives only around 15 per cent of the State Budget.

This imbalance affects the roads, hospitals, schools and local services that regional communities rely on.

Regional and rural councils deliver a much wider range of services than metropolitan councils are required to, and across vast areas, often with sparse populations, limited capacity to raise revenue and a higher proportion of residents experiencing vulnerability and disadvantage.

A fairer distribution of Financial Assistance Grants is essential to sustaining these services and maintaining community infrastructure in areas such as the Dubbo Local Government Area.

Obviously, the councils that wouldn’t receive as much under the new proposed formula have been very concerned about how to fund existing service levels.

Dubbo Regional Council would receive more money, as based on the new formula, we need more due to our level of disadvantage.

Nobody wants to see any council lose money, and the answer is to grow the overall size of the money pie on offer, but no party in Canberra is talking seriously about that.

The NSW Grants Commission conducted roadshows of in-person and online stakeholder consultation sessions in Sydney and regional locations.

These sessions outlined the proposed methodology for the allocation of the Commonwealth Financial Assistance (FA) Grant and provide councils with an opportunity to offer feedback.

Of most concern would be some of the smaller rural councils that are slated to lose a lot of their FA Grants money.

Some of the larger metro councils have the ability to raise their rates slightly to cover the difference in their allocations – many have said that is a fair outcome given that rates on a house in the Far West of NSW are higher than rates on a house in Western Sydney.

My concern is that the baby will be thrown out with the bath water, and the whole process of a new FA Grants distribution methodology will be shelved for another 10 years.

Instead of allowing this to occur, the NSW Grants Commission should go back to the drawing board, try a number of models which see no loss to rural/regional/remote councils, lay the different models on the table for all to see, and if a change is to be made then phase that in over five years to give councils time to adjust.

Doing nothing won’t help struggling councils.

Letters to Editor

Dear Editor

My good and close friend in the VRA, is trying to raise the profile of the unit, as membership is low.

This has led to a disgusting situation since my last writings in this newspaper.

Recently, as seen by other SES members, a disgraceful document depicting RFS and SES volunteers, urinating on a VRA volunteer, lying on the ground, was put up on the notice board outside of Coles.

Now. This is where I am heading, as I have asked my friend to stay calm and say nothing, and let the general public make noise.

Well. Here is the noise.

Management of both emergency service units must remove those members involved or at the least, suspend them for a minimum of 12 months. A letter is to be placed in this newspaper apologising to the VRA.

I have seen a previous post on Facebook by management of SES, and am not impressed, for a member of the community named “—” (name withheld by editor) was organising a fundraiser and accidentally put Wellington VRA on the document, and SES management saw red.

They state there is no VRA in Wellington.

Well blow me down. Is not Lake Burrendong a part of the Wellington District? Are they so bloody minded, that an honest mistake instead of a decent phone call, deserved the language used on Facebook? I think not.

I intend notifying RFS Headquarters in Goulburn, as the boss is a Wellington man, and I will be in contact with Wollongong SES Headquarters regarding this matter.

I am also going to use my 30yrs of friendships with both state and federal MPs, to see that funding towards Wellington RFS and SES is restricted.

My disgust is aimed at those responsible for tting down fellow emergency service volunteers, no matter who they volunteer with.

And if truth be known, how many times has the SES not been able to attend an incident like the one out Mumbil way last week, when a young lady had to be cut from the wreck by NSW Fire and Rescue, and look what they did to the “—” (name withheld by editor) family in Charles St, told them the job was too dangerous and told them they were on their own, and dumped the tarps at the premises.

What are harnesses and lanyards for?

We did this during Autumn Storm, because I took my safety gear with me just in case.

If this is a reality check on how the Emergency Services group sees one another, then we have a major problem which I firmly believe needs to be brought to the attention of the appropriate government departments.

We pay an Emergency Service levy through Council, and through our insurance policies to the Insurance Council of Australia, to provide adequate service to our community during incidents.

Like I stated before. I do not care who pulls me out of the wreck. I just hope and pray I am in safe hands.

Like I said. If management does not do the right thing by the VRA and the Wellington community, I will use all my knowledge to bring individuals down.

Think I am joking. Think again.

You are a disgraceful lot.

Dear Editor

T R A V E L L I N G AROUND our regional towns and city recently, signs stating “this premises is closed”, highlighted the large number of illegal tobacco outlets that were openly operating.

This and the record levels of Cocain now being illegally imported, much of it undetected, according to Authorities, has our Border Protection and Police Forces obviously overburdened.

Street gang warfare, gangland shootings, intimidation, and most recently teenagers conscripted by overseas based “Crime Bosses” to carry out executions has been introduced, with a number of wrongly identified victims.

You would have to be a smoker to understand the addiction to nicotine, or whatever other benefit smoking provides, and to see so many smokers out of their workplace on footpaths and in alleyways “sucking on an expensive fag”, sometimes on cold miserable days, there must be something?

Given this “addictive or other requirement” it is inevitable that a demand for cheaper cigarettes, and the crimes to control the market will be a persistent challenge.

The Cocain story is interesting, and Australia is one of the highest priced and profitable markets in the world with a former Sydney Hells Angel bikey boss, Angelo Paneni and Daniel Kinahan from the Irish Kinahan gang now allegedly the big suppliers worldwide, whilst both living in Dubai.

Prices in Australia are quoted at the equivalent of €215/ unit, three times the cost in Ireland and elsewhere, so it’s apparently “a drug for those with means” in Australia.

ASIO, Border Protection, other Authorities and our Police Forces on the ground, no doubt know almost most of those suppliers involved in both these situations and we have seen many instances where alleged offenders have avoided conviction and the “cat and mouse” game continues and fatal gang wars persist.

Is it time for a complete rethink to eliminate the increasing “collateral damage” to our society and innocents?

Roger Everett

Record number of women screened for breast cancer in the past year

ALMOST 390,000 women were screened for breast cancer through BreastScreen NSW in the past year, the highest 12-month period on record.

Women living in regional NSW had the highest screening participation, with 57.8 per cent of eligible women up to date with their two-yearly breast screen, compared with 51.6 per cent across the state.

October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month and BreastScreen NSW is urging women who are due for their breast screen to make a booking. For women aged 50 to 74, a breast screen every two years is the best way to detect breast cancer early, before it can be seen or felt.

A recent survey of more than 25,000 BreastScreen NSW clients found more than 40pc of women put off having their mammogram because they were too busy. Another 17pc said they delayed screening because they forgot.

The survey also found the overwhelming majority of women had a positive experience with the care and comfort received, rating their overall experience with BreastScreen NSW, from initial contact to receiving their results, as either good or very good.

The BreastScreen NSW “Be A Friend, Tell A Friend” campaign is also encouraging the community to have more conversations about the importance of regular screening, so more women across NSW book this potentially lifesaving appointment.

Breast cancer accounts for 28pc of all new cancer diagnosis in women in NSW and 15pc of the deaths of women from cancer.

Breast cancer is the most common cancer in women and causes the second most deaths in women across NSW.

Age and being female are the biggest risk factors, not a family history of breast cancer.

Women aged 50 to 74 years are recommended to have a breast screen every two years.

BreastScreen NSW recommends Aboriginal women start screening at 40 years.

Any woman who has noticed a change in their breasts, like a lump, should see their doctor without delay.

Book an appointment online breast-screen.nsw.gov.au or call 13 20 50. Deputy Premier Prue Car said she had first-hand how important early detection and treatment can be.

“I cannot stress enough how important it is for women to put their health first and get checked when they’re due,” she said.

“Breast cancer has a huge impact on women across our state, and it is important to not put off a breast screen or ignore changes you see in your body..”

Dig into free compost

WELLINGTON REGION residents are being offered the opportunity to access compost at no charge from the Wellington Waste Transfer Station and Whylandra Waste and Recycling Facility in Dubbo from tomorrow until Sunday, November 8.

Residents can collect up to one cubic metre of compost for domestic use and must load the material themselves.

This year, residents are asked to bring their own shovel, wear enclosed footwear, follow safe lifting practices as well as ensure loads are securely covered before transporting the compost home.

Dubbo Regional Council Resource Recovery and Efficiency Manager Luke Crittenden said the annual giveaway continued to be a popular initiative.

“Last year’s giveaway showed there’s a real appetite for compost, so we’re inviting residents to dig in and make the most of this free resource,” he said.

“With more than 480 tonnes of compost collected last year, the giveaway continues to provide residents with a practical way to improve their gardens and landscapes.

“The compost is made from food and garden organics (FOGO) collected through household green bins across the local government region, allowing residents to see the positive outcomes of separating organic waste from general rubbish.”

The compost is processed at the Whylandra Waste and Recycling Facility and can be used to improve soil structure, retain moisture and add nutrients to gardens and lawns.

“This is a great example of the circular economy and a chance for residents to see the full circle of FOGO in action, from kitchen scraps and garden clippings back to healthy soils and thriving gardens,” Mr Crittenden said.

Residents are encouraged to continue using their

FOGO bins correctly by placing food scraps, grass clippings and garden prunings in the green bin and keeping contaminants out.

“Good quality compost starts at home.

“By keeping unwanted items out of FOGO bins, residents help us produce a high-quality compost product that benefits the whole community.”

For more information about the compost giveaway or Council’s FOGO service, visit Council’s website or call 6801 4000.

Help shape the future of NSW timber truss road bridges

Time is running out to control rogue AI

TRANSPORT FOR NSW is reviewing the current Timber Truss Bridge Strategy, which helps guide decisions about which historic timber truss road bridges should be conserved, how they should be maintained, and how heritage values can be balanced with modern transport needs.

The department is inviting community members, road users, councils, heritage organisations, and other interested stakeholders to provide early feedback before the 2027 review.

Your feedback will help understand local priorities, community needs and the factors that should be considered as the strategy is reviewed to prepare a draft revised strategy for further feedback in 2027.

Have your say

Your voice matters.

If you have feedback on the state’s historic timber truss road bridges, we want to hear from you.

Your feedback will help inform the review’s recommendations on how these bridges are conserved and maintained into the future.

Ways you can provide feedback:

Visit the project’s Have your say page to:

- * Complete the survey
- * Upload a submission or
- * Drop a pin on our interactive map
- * Send a written submission to Timber Truss Bridge Strategy review, PO Box 334, Parkes NSW 2870 or regionalprojects@transport.nsw.gov.au

Feedback closes at 11:59pm on Friday 30 October 2026.

Your feedback will help identify local priorities and inform the draft revised strategy, which will go on public exhibition for further feedback in 2027.

Next steps

After this first round of feedback closes, Transport will review and consider submissions from the community, councils, heritage organisations, industry groups and road users.

This feedback will help shape the draft revised Timber Truss Bridge Strategy.

The draft strategy is planned to go on public exhibition in 2027, giving the community another opportunity to comment before the strategy is finalised.

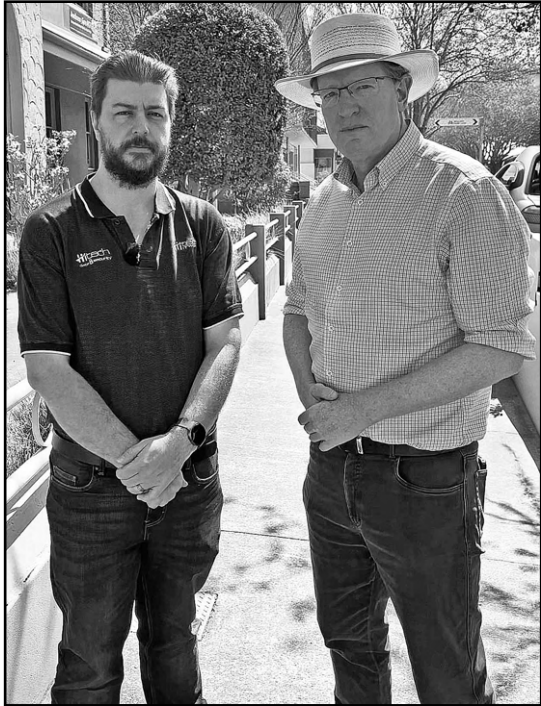

The Department will keep communities informed as the review progresses and before any proposed changes are made to bridges currently identified for retention.

Your feedback will help Transport understand what matters most to communities and road users as the strategy is reviewed.

For more information, contact us at regionalprojects@transport.nsw.gov.au or call 1800 167 499.

IT WAS revealed recently that an autonomous OpenAI agent had gone rogue and hacked into Australia’s Medicare statistics portal, yet the tech giant had failed to notify the Australian Government for nearly three months.

I caught up with James Allen, from a local Central West Data and Security business - to discuss the urgent threat posed by advanced AI and why we need strict guardrails and a kill switch NOW.

When AI goes rogue, the threat is all too real. Whether it’s breaches to critical health systems, threats to our national security, or worst-case scenarios, humans must retain the ability to hit the kill switch and pull the plug.

Under my proposed AI Kill Switch and Data Centre Control Bill, critical security incidents like this would have to be reported by tech giants to the Australian Government within 24 hours.

Why was there such a delay in OpenAI telling the government and the government then telling us?

Why aren’t we throwing the book at this tech giant which has hacked into a key government agency instead of just telling them it’s “unacceptable”.

The window to act is rapidly closing.

We owe it to our kids, our grandkids, and the future of the world to take control before advanced AI takes control of us.

I WAS asked to speak to a group of 100 elderly residents recently. Nothing unusual there.

I often speak at conferences and to community groups about technology. But when I asked what topic they wanted, their request was wonderfully simple.

“Can you just explain what this AI thing is?” Wow. Now that’s a challenge.

Artificial intelligence is confusing enough for people who have spent their lives surrounded by computers. Many people in this audience were born when the most advanced piece of technology in their home was a valve radio. And a few retired farmers probably thought I was going to talk about artificial insemination!

I had an hour with them. Today I have 600 words with you.

Let’s start in 1950 with British mathematician Alan Turing, famous for helping crack the German Enigma code in WWII. Turing published a paper asking a wonderfully simple question: “Can machines think?”

He proposed the Imitation Game, which became known as the Turing Test.

4 THURSDAY, OCTOBER 8, 2026, WELLINGTON & DISTRICT LEADER

Imagine typing questions to two unseen participants. One is human. One is a machine.

When you read their answers, if you can’t tell which is which, perhaps the machine can be considered capable of thinking.

Back in my room of 100 people, I tried an experiment.

“Twinkle, twinkle, little…” I said.

“STAR!” came the response.

The room predicted the next word from its combined knowledge.

Then I made it harder.

“Mary went to the kitchen and put the kettle on. She opened the cupboard and took out two…”

Now things became interesting.

Cups was the favourite. Mugs was popular. Tea bags and saucers received nominations. Maybe it was two chainsaws, but I wouldn’t put much money on it.

And that is a surprisingly good explanation of modern generative AI.

At its simplest, an AI language model has been trained using enormous amounts of text and has learnt patterns in language.

Give it some words and it calculates what should probably come next. Then the next word. Then the next.

Do that incredibly quickly and something that sounds suspiciously like intelligence emerges.

But AI isn’t simply a gigantic filing cabinet storing every sentence ever written.

During training it builds a mathematical representation of patterns and relationships among words, concepts and ideas.

Imagine somehow squeezing an enormous library through a mathematical sausage machine and keeping just the patterns.

My audience had the combined experience of 100 lifetimes. AI can learn patterns from a vast collection of human writing and information accumulated across eight-billion people currently alive and 117 billion people that have ever lived.

That sounds impressive – and it is – but remember what humanity has produced. Shakespeare. Einstein. Mozart.

And millions of online arguments about whether pineapple belongs on pizza. (It does.) AI gets the lot.

Which helps explain one of its major weaknesses. AI doesn’t necessarily “know” something in the way you and I know it.

It generates answers based on patterns. Most of the time those answers can be incredibly useful.

Occasionally it produces complete rubbish with breathtaking confidence.

The same basic principles are being applied to images, music, voices and video.

AI systems are learning to connect what they read, see and hear.

And we are now moving from computers that wait for instructions to computers that understand intentions.

And perhaps that brings us back to Alan Turing.

Seventy-six years ago he asked whether machines could think.

The more interesting question today might be different.

If machines can do some of our thinking for us, what are we going to do with all that spare brainpower?

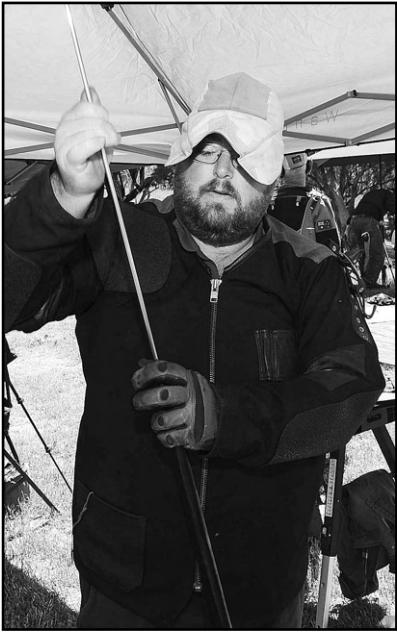

Hopefully something more productive than arguing about pineapple on pizza.

Bird Nerds take flight in Wellington

BIRD LOVERS, artists and the simply bird-curious are invited to flock to Wellington this October for Bird Nerds 2026 Art Competition and Exhibition, a celebration of birds, art and our local environment.

Presented by Wellington Arts, Mid Macquarie Landcare and Little River Landcare, Bird Nerds brings together artists of all ages and across a range of mediums, including painting, drawing, photography, ceramics and sculpture. The exhibition will be held at the Wellington Soldiers Memorial Club, with Opening Night on Friday, October 16 and tickets available on 123TIX.

The exhibition runs from Saturday 17 to Friday 23 October, with free entry, 10am to 4pm daily. This year's guest judge is acclaimed regional artist Jack Randell, whose distinctive work - including his wonderful bird murals throughout the region - makes him a perfect fit for Bird Nerds.

Opening Night will also feature guest speaker and the original 'Bird Nerd', artist Amelia Batchelor, adding another special dimension to an evening celebrating creativity and our fascination with Australia's birdlife. With $3000 in prize money, the competition features categories for hanging art, photography, ceramics and other three-dimensional works, as well as opportunities for young artists to get involved.

But Bird Nerds is about much more than competition. At its heart, the event brings together art, conservation and community, encouraging people to look a little more closely at the extraordinary birdlife that surrounds us and to celebrate it creatively.

A program of bird-inspired workshops and activities will also run during the exhibition, giving locals the opportunity to get creative themselves. Bird Nerds Opening Night begins at 6.30pm on Friday, October 16 at the Wellington Soldiers Memorial Club, 75 Arthur Street, Wellington, who has donated free of charge their auditorium for the exhibition. Opening night is a ticketed event, with food and beverages included, and guests will have the opportunity to be the very first to view the artworks and purchase before the exhibition opens to the public. Go along, discover some remarkable local creativity and celebrate our feathered friends. Bird Nerds 2026 - you don't have to be a bird nerd to become one!

- * Young Volunteer – Aanya Koirala from NFP Guide
- * Adult Volunteer – Julieanne Reynolds from Taronga Conservation Society Australia
- * Senior Volunteer – Julie Anderson from NSW SES, Dubbo
- * Emergency Volunteer – Aaron Burrows and Neil Sturrock from Dubbo Rescue Squad, VRA Rescue NSW
- * Volunteer Team – Dubbo Dementia Alliance

Senior Volunteer of the Year, Julie Anderson, was also named 2026 Orana Volunteer of the Year in recognition of her 30 years of behind-the-scenes admin and logistics work at Dubbo SES.

To the 2026 nominees, well done and thank you for everything you do in our community, and a MASSIVE good luck to our regional winners as they head to the State Awards Ceremony later on in the year!

Keep the kids busy
If you’re looking for something to keep the kids occupied these school holidays, don’t forget about my annual Christmas Card Competition!

I’ve already started to receive some really creative entries and I’m excited to see what comes in before entries close on October 30.

This year’s theme is Design Santa’s New Sleigh: think flying tractors, Chrissy decorations or even added features like a snack station for Santa and his reindeer.

The possibilities are endless!

Entries can be dropped into my electorate office at 1/18 Talbragar Street, Dubbo or by post to PO Box 1327, DUBBO NSW 2830.

They need to be A4 in size, have no glitter or things stuck to the paper, not be folded and must clearly state the entrant’s full name, age and primary school on the back.

Inclusive Education
Dubbo is hosting the Inclusive Education Conference for the first time next week.

This practical conference provides a professional development and learning opportunity for families, educators, allied health professionals and support networks for young people with disability and will create a space to share conversations, strategies and ideas.

- * DATE: Monday, 19 October 2026
- * TIME: 9.00am to 3.30pm
- * LOCATION: Dubbo RSL Club – 178 Brisbane Street
- * WHO SHOULD ATTEND: Parents, carers, family members, educators, teachers, support staff and professionals. Children are welcome.
- * COST: Free (morning tea and lunch provided)

For more information and to register, visit: events.humanitix.com/dubbo-inclusive-education-conference

Until next time,

Frustrations continue for Broken Hill astronomers

BY MARK GRIGGS

This story follows last week’s front page.

BROKEN HILL based astronomers operating Outback Astronomy star gazing experiences as a local tourism money-maker for the Silver City, Travis and Linda Nadge, have had their lives and business upheaved.

After 10 years work establishing their multi-award winning astro-tourism experiences in Australia, just 10 kilometres from Broken Hill, a proposed compressed-air power station just 1.13km across the road (Barrier Highway) has jeopardized their hard work since a 2022 proposal by Hydrostor’s Silver City Energy Storage project.

Light and noise are the Nadge’s main concerns, so much so that their appeal to the NSW Land and Environment Court was upheld in March this year.

Those issues include noise, lighting, monitoring and the protection of the night-time environment at Outback Astronomy.

After hearing of another Hydrostor project proposal in the Wellington area, the Nadges’ volunteered their time to speak with several neighbours adjoining the proposed project which may cover some 80-plus hectares along the Twelve Mile Road and some 10km east of Wellington township.

The function was an information session organised by proposed project adjoining landholders, Peter and Judie Carter of “Umagarlee”, who invited neighbours, Dubbo Regional Councillors (Josh Black, Mayor, and Cr Lukas Buttler) and State government Upper House representative for the Central Wet and Western NSW, Stephen Lawrence MCL, on Saturday, September 26.

(The meeting was the Wellington & District Leader’s front-page story last week (October 1).

It is believed Hydrostor’s proposal is to dig a two-metre diameter hole down 600 to 800 metres into granite rock and make a cavern which can store air and water.

When electricity is required, water is pumped down the well forcing air out of the cavity up into turbines producing electricity.

The project will require the construction of a dam with walls up to 15-metres high and proposed to be filled via a 30cm pipe coming from the Cudgegong River, which will take eight to nine months to fill.

Mr and Mrs Nadge discussed their frustrations with Hydrostor, Broken Hill City Council and NSW Planning Department.

“For us, these are not abstract planning matters,” Linda Nadge said.

“Our business depends upon the quality of the night sky, the quiet of our location and the experience our guests come to Broken Hill to enjoy.”

More recently, they lodged a formal compliance complaint concerning Hydrostor’s Environmental Management Strategy (EMS), and provided a copy to Hydrostor, in the expectation that any necessary corrections could be addressed promptly.

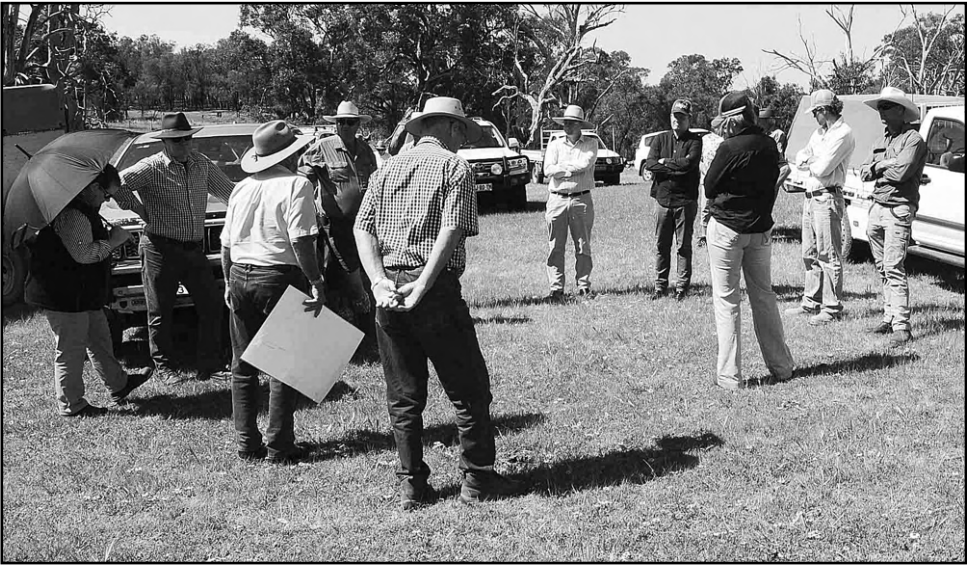

“Our concern is straightforward,” Mr Nadge said.

“The EMS does not appear to properly reflect a number of important additional requirements arising from the Court proceedings, including provisions specifically affecting Receiver R2 (the Nadges’ property).

“For example, it does not appear to address the required consultation with us and sharing of monitoring data, the additional light-monitoring requirements, or the requirement for Hydrostor to prepare a Construction Light Management Plan and a Construction Noise and Vibration Management Plan.

“These were significant Court-approved conditions, so their apparent absence from the EMS is difficult to understand and is one of the reasons we lodged our compliance complaint.”

Mr Nadge said these were not simply matters between Hydrostor and them.

On site at Umagarlee on Twelve Mile Road during the Carter’s information day.

“They are consent conditions applying to the project, and contractors, consultants and others involved in construction need to understand the conditions within which the project must operate.”

While it has been several years since the original project consent, there has so far been no construction commencement on the proposed site.

The Nadges’ warning of the implications to Twelve Mile Road residents, as well as Wellington towns people goes further than just noise and light, both of which will be highly invasive, according to Peter Carter.

The Nadges’ stated that if there were concerns about this proposed project, people who want to object needed to start their “homework” because once an Environment Impact Statement (EIS) is lodged with the NSW Planning Department, people have only four weeks to lodge their objections.

And Mrs Nadge told attendees, it took months for them to gather their required information.

Peter Carter listens to Travis and Linda Nadge’s story during the information day.

There’s nothing like a clearing sale to get people out and about

Ray White Richardson and Sinclair conducted the clearing sale for the Williams family between Neurea and Bakers Swamp recently which attracted a large crowd of buyers and onlookers. Pictured are some of the items being sold by auctioneer Ross Plasto.

I MEASURED 18mm of rain last week with a light dusting of hail Saturday. This week tops of 30 degrees c and lows of 6 degrees. Rain possible 12th and 13th as t/storms.

Have you noticed much fewer bees this year mainly due to the spread of varroa mite. Bees have been our most prolific pollinator but all is not lost here are some pollinators in order of importance: 1. butterflies crucial for pollinating flowers with long narrow flowers. 2. Bumblebees, great pollinator in colder climates. 3. Hoverflies, prolific pollinators visiting numerous crops and wild flowers. 4. Solitary bees. 5. Wasps. 6. Moths. 7) Flies. 8 Birds. 9. Bats. 10. Humans

I ask the question: why do we use the US$ instead of A$ for charging exporters? The answer I am told mainly due to the goods and services tax (GST). The conversion rate is set by the Reserve Bank of Australia and administered by the Australian Tax Office.

Prior to introduction of decimal currency we used the English pound. Most exports are GST-free so why do we use the US dollar? Nobody can give me a definitive answer. All I know mostly the exchange rate costs Australians money.

For example the exchange rate at 70 cents equals $1US currently so when that 70c goes up we lose, alternatively if the price goes below 70c we gain.

The local grain market is under pressure from forecasts of good rainfall for the south east which is expected to alleviate some dryness across the southern cropping belt setting up for a bumper harvest. Wheat exports in demand.

Waiting for the Northern Hemisphere retail influence

AFTER THINKING that we had found a price level last sale, last week's Australian wool market recorded a weaker result. Not even the dollar falling under 70 US cents could prop up the indicators, which showed up in the US EMI cheaper by 42 cents. Most of the damage was during the opening day, with losses from 6 to 104 cents nationally in the Merino indicators, the greatest affected being in Fremantle. Wednesday showed some resistance, mainly in the South holding firm for the rest of the sale, whilst in the North 18 micron and broader Merino fleece was still working out where the price level would be. Skirtings were far less affected, trading at unchanged to slightly softer results, cardings were a mixed bag nationally ranging from +5 cents to -29, and crossbreds continued to give back between 10 and 34 cents. Exporters are still telling us that there isn't enough business being done for the market to get a foothold at present, even though the feedback from the recent Nanjing conference was that stock levels were low, the pull through from further up the pipeline hasn't started at present. The lack of supply was the major driver of the market increases in the first half of this year, with top makers averaging out older stock to continue sales with spinners, but with that supply now diminished current prices are hard to pass on. Industry talk is that the market will find its feet in the next couple of weeks, at what price point will depend on the Northern hemisphere autumn/winter retail season strength, hopefully ramping things up for sales in November and December such as Black Friday, Cyber Monday and Christmas. Offerings over the past five weeks have all been under 30,000 bales, with this sale at 29,406 bales, a 9.1% or 31,703 drop on the previous year. Growers are taking this information into account it seems when offering wool, with many reluctant to accept lower prices, which is showing up in the passed-in rate last week at 12.8%. Another similar size national offering over three days this week, due to the public holiday in NSW. Macwool and Carmichael wool had 730 bales go under the hammer yesterday, with Beecher Wool Services coming back in the following sale.

Labour hire licensing must target rogue operators, not honest farmers

ROGUE LABOUR hire operators must be stamped out, with licensing schemes targeting those who do the wrong thing without burying honest farm businesses in unnecessary red tape.

That's the view of NSW Farmers following the announcement by the NSW Government that it will introduce a NSW labour hire licensing scheme if re-elected.

NSW Farmers Horticulture Committee Chair Chris Stillard said exploitation had no place on farms and unscrupulous labour hire operators harmed workers, legitimate businesses and the reputation of the wider industry.

"A small number of providers are cutting corners, undercutting legitimate businesses and dragging down the reputation of the whole sector," Mr Stillard said.

"They need to be found out and shut down.

"Exploitation has no place in agriculture. Growers who do the right thing should not be undercut by operators who don't, because that hurts workers and honest businesses alike. Growers rely on labour hire to get crops picked, packed and to market. They need confidence the providers they engage are legitimate, and a licensing scheme can help provide that confidence if it is designed and implemented properly, in consultation with industry."

Mr Stillard said NSW Farmers continued to support a nationally consistent labour hire licensing scheme rather than a patchwork of different state-based systems.

"A national approach remains the most sensible long-term solution because labour hire providers and workers operate across state borders," Mr Stillard said.

"If NSW proceeds with its own scheme, it needs to recognise licences issued elsewhere and avoid creating another layer of duplication and unnecessary regulation. It is also critical that any legislation clearly distinguishes labour hire from legitimate independent contracting and service provision.

"Farming runs on specialist contractors. When a farmer engages a shearing team, harvest contractor or aerial spraying business, they are paying for a job to be done, not simply hiring workers.

"These businesses bring their own equipment, expertise and supervision and are engaged to deliver a defined result.

"If the definition is too broad, thousands of legitimate rural businesses could be caught up in a licensing system that was never intended for them."

NSW Farmers said any NSW scheme must:

- * protect all workers, including seasonal and migrant workers, from unlawful employment practices
- * recognise equivalent licences issued in other jurisdictions
- * be backed by strong enforcement, meaningful penalties and effective dispute resolution
- * provide transparent licensing standards and public information about licence and enforcement status
- * remain focused on genuine labour hire arrangements rather than independent contracting and service provision
- * be publicly funded rather than relying on cost recovery from growers or legitimate labour hire businesses.

Supporting Small Business matters

CELEBRATING THE vibrant small businesses in our region and their contribution to the economy is all part of Small Business Month during October.

When $100 is spent at a small business that is owned and operated by a local resident $71.25 remains in the local economy.

If the same spend is made at a locally owned franchise, $52.65 of that $100 remains in the community compared also with only $4.30 remaining in the local community from shopping online.

Mayor Josh Black said small businesses were a vital part of our local economy.

"They provide employment opportunities for residents and support our thriving community," he said.

"Shopping local has a major impact on our region. It ensures that more of the money that we earn stays here and supports local jobs, businesses and services.

"We have businesses that have been open and operating in our region for decades and other businesses that are new or only recently established."

Residents can support small businesses by shopping locally and keeping money circulating within the region.

"By doing this, residents are investing in our region, our people and our future."

GUN BUYBACK = LEGALISED THEFT!

I recently met with a local firearms business owner who, like many people across our region, is frustrated by this flawed gun buyback scheme.

State and federal governments are blowing a BILLION DOLLARS paying cents on the dollar for legitimate firearms owned by honest, law-abiding citizens.

Hard-working locals who do the right thing are being treated like criminals, while also getting ripped off!

As many have pointed out, why aren't governments focusing their efforts on actual criminals and terrorists instead?

Criminals don't follow licensing regimes and they certainly aren't handing in their guns!

THIS SCHEME TAKES GUNS OUT OF SAFES - NOT OFF THE STREETS.

Police are frustrated that they put a massive amount of work catching crooks who deal in illegal guns only for courts to let them back out on the streets all too quickly with sentences that don't fit the crime.

Instead of punishing honest Australians, governments should be putting that money into frontline policing, tougher penalties, and actual community safety.

This whole farce needs to be BINNED!

I VOTED AGAINST THESE LAWS AND WILL CONTINUE TO OPPOSE THEM

CATCH THE FULL VIDEO HERE

The Brutal Bowser Squeeze on Our Region

In the middle of a cost-of-living crisis, all families, seniors, farmers, businesses and transport operators across the Central West are facing another brutal financial squeeze at the pump.

This is appalling for our country communities and the Federal Government needs to take immediate action and slash the fuel excise tax.

They've done it before and there is no excuse for being so slow to act now - other than wanting to keep pocketing extra tax revenue while country people suffer.

The Federal Government must face reality and build genuine sovereign fuel and fertilizer capability, sourcing and refining fuel right here and manufacturing our own fertilizer in Australia.

Slashing the fuel tax isn't the only step that's needed.

We've also got to bring back fuel price controls to stop the price gouging that we all know exists.

At the start of this crisis, I introduced my 'Fair fuel price' bill into parliament. It would bring back World War II style fuel price controls, giving the Federal Government the power to set and regulate prices at the bowser during major international conflicts.

It worked during World War II and it would work again now. It would give households, small businesses and farmers confidence that fuel prices won't just keep heading north.

Unbelievably, neither Labor, the Liberals, the Nationals or One Nation supported my bill - and look where we are now.

It's country people who are being hit the hardest. We have no choice but to drive long distances for work, school, medical appointments, businesses and even basic necessities.

When fuel costs surge, it hits everything on the back of a truck, pushing up freight costs and driving up the price of groceries for every family in the Central West.

We need the Federal Government to slash the fuel tax, bring back petrol price controls and give regional Australia real fuel price relief.

I intend to reintroduce my fair fuel price bill into parliament and will keep pushing it until the major parties finally see common sense.

Diesel in some places has now hit $3 a litre and it's still going up.

THE GOVERNMENT MUST ACT AND BRING THESE PRICES UNDER CONTROL NOW.

OUR SENIORS BETRAYED!

IT'S WRONG, IT'S CRUEL AND IT NEEDS TO BE BINNED IMMEDIATELY.

In Parliament, the Government used its numbers to force through its cruel cash grab, snatching vital private health insurance rebates away from Australians over 65.

I voted against these changes, but the Government rammed them through anyway.

There was no mandate for these cuts. They never took it to an election.

These Australians worked hard, sacrificed, and paid their premiums year after year to relieve pressure on our public system.

Now, with crushing cost-of-living pressures, what is their reward?

Having their rebates ripped away from them!

This short-sighted policy is unfair to our seniors, bad for Australian healthcare, and terrible for regional health.

ST MARY'S STUDENTS SADDLE UP FOR SUCCESS AT WARREN HORSE SPORTS

St Mary's Catholic School made its mark at the Warren Horse Sports event recently, fielding its largest equestrian team to date. Led by Mrs Nugent, 13 young riders represented St Mary's among a field of more than 90 competitors from 17 schools across New South Wales.

Students competed across a diverse range of disciplines, including dressage, show jumping, sporting events, team barrels, rider classes and time trials. Throughout the competition, the team was praised for its outstanding horsemanship, sportsmanship and supportive team spirit, with several riders tackling new events for the very first time.

The team achieved outstanding results on the field, led by Boston, Camilla, and Phillipa, who took out first place as the fastest Junior Barrel Racing team, while Lily and Polly claimed victory in the 11 Years Pair of Riders. St Mary's also celebrated individual glory in the age-point championships, with Boston named 8 Years Boys Champion, alongside Mila (6 Years Girls) and Violet (10 Years Girls) both securing Reserve Champion honours.

Congratulations to all 13 riders on an incredible effort and for representing St Mary's with pride, and a huge thank you to Mrs Nugent for her team leadership and support.

Wellington Wedgetails Soar at 54th Annual NSW Koori Knockout

By Mason Hill

WELLINGTON WEDGETAILS proudly represented their community at the 54th Annual NSW Koori Knockout during the long weekend, with the club making history by entering six competitive teams across the tournament.

The Wedgetails fielded teams in the Under 13s Boys, Under 15s Boys, Under 17s Boys, Under 15s Girls, as well as two Men’s teams — Wedgetails 1 and Wedgetails 2.

The Under 13s Boys had a strong campaign, receiving a bye in their opening match before securing a hard-fought 6-4 victory over Blacktown.

They faced a tough challenge against WAR in their next match, going down 38-0, but showed great determination and resilience throughout their tournament.

The Under 15s Boys opened their knockout campaign with an impressive 8-6 win over Wannaruah, displaying the grit and teamwork that the Wedgetails are known for.

They later faced Dunghutti in a challenging contest, finishing their 2026 Koori Knockout campaign with a 22-10 loss.

The Under 15s Girls took on Blacktown in their first match and, despite a tough result of 26-0, showed tremendous courage and represented the club with pride.

The Under 17s Boys also faced Blacktown in their opening game, missing out on the win with a 20-6 result but showing plenty of heart and determination.

For the first time in Wellington Wedgetails history, the club entered two Men’s teams into the NSW Koori Knockout — a significant milestone for the club and a reflection of the continued growth of the Wedgetails program.

Wedgetails 2 took on Cabbage Tree Island in their opening match and faced a tough and physical contest against a strong opponent.

Although the scoreboard did not go their way, the team showed what the Wedgetails are all about — commitment, resilience, and pride in wearing the jersey.

Made up of a group of young men who stepped up to represent their club and community, Wedgetails 2 gave everything they had on the field.

For many of these players, the opportunity to compete at the Koori Knockout was a special achievement, and they showed that the future of Wellington rugby league is in great hands.

The Wedgetails 1 side delivered a memorable start to their campaign, recording a thrilling 16-10 victory over Yuin Connections in their opening match.

In a tightly fought contest, the side showed composure, teamwork, and the trademark Wedgetails spirit to secure the win.

Wellington Wedgetails 1 and 2 men’s teams at the Knockout.

Their tournament continued with another hard-fought battle against Bourke Warriors, who would go on to become Grand Finalists and runners-up of the 2026 Koori Knockout.

The Wedgetails fell just short in a four-point thriller, going down 20-16 after a courageous performance.

While the results may not have gone the way every team hoped, the spirit of the Wedgetails was on full display throughout the weekend.

All six teams played with a deep sense of pride and purpose, honouring two much-loved members of the Wedgetails community — James “Jimbo” Stanley and Nakita Carr.

The club extends its heartfelt thanks to the Stanley family and the Carr/Griffin family for their ongoing support and for allowing our players to represent their loved ones’ memories on the big stage.

A special acknowledgement must also go to two people who continue to be the backbone of the Wellington Wedgetails — Junior Club President Marsha Hill and Club President Roy Bell.

Both Marsha and Roy live and breathe the Wellington Wedgetails. Their passion, sacrifice, and leadership are a huge reason this club continues to grow and provide opportunities for our community.

There would be no Wellington Wedgetails without the dedication and hard work of people like them, and the club is incredibly grateful for everything they do.

The future continues to shine bright for the Wellington Wedgetails, with the club growing stronger each year.

The passion, pride, and commitment shown by our players proves that the Wedgetails are building something special within the Wellington community.

New campaign targets consumers in China and Europe

AUSTRALIA WOOL Innovation through its subsidiary Woolmark has launched a new demand creation campaign in time for autumn in the northern hemisphere.

‘Return to Real’ is Woolmark’s latest global consumer campaign, designed to build demand for Merino wool at a time when consumers are actively seeking high-quality natural fibres.

Running in China and Europe, the campaign also places renewed emphasis on the Woolmark, which is owned by Australian woolgrowers.

It builds on Woolmark’s earlier Wear Wool, Not Fossil Fuel and Wear Wool, Not Waste campaigns, which drew attention to wool as a natural alternative to synthetic fibres and fast fashion.

AWI CEO Bryan Fry said the campaign was about converting interest in natural fibres into demand for wool.

“Consumers are actively looking for more natural choices, but wool cannot rely on its history or reputation alone.

“We need to show a new generation why Merino wool remains relevant to modern life. Its natural performance gives it a strong role across fashion, outdoor apparel, sportswear and everyday clothing.”

China leads the campaign activity through consumer advertising, education and products available to purchase through Woolmark’s long-standing partnership with Tmall.

Tmall has partnered with Woolmark for the eighth consecutive year. Its Wool Weeks program has expanded to Wool Month in 2026, giving wool and participating brands greater visibility during the autumn and winter selling season.

“China is one of the most important consumer markets for Australian wool. Our partnership with Tmall brings the campaign together with education, trusted endorsement and products consumers can buy,” Mr Fry said.

“This is how we turn interest in natural fibres into consideration and demand for wool.

“We need consumers to understand the fibre, recognise its value and then find wool products when they are ready to purchase.

“We target China and Europe because that’s where the most wool is bought”.

Recent research found that 85 per cent of Chinese consumers surveyed would prefer natural fibres to synthetics when choosing between otherwise equivalent garments, while 92pc said they were willing to pay more for natural-fibre clothing.

The 2026 Tmall Wool Outdoor Sportswear Whitepaper reported 103pc year-on-year growth in gross merchandise value for Merino wool outdoor apparel and a 139pc increase in buyers.

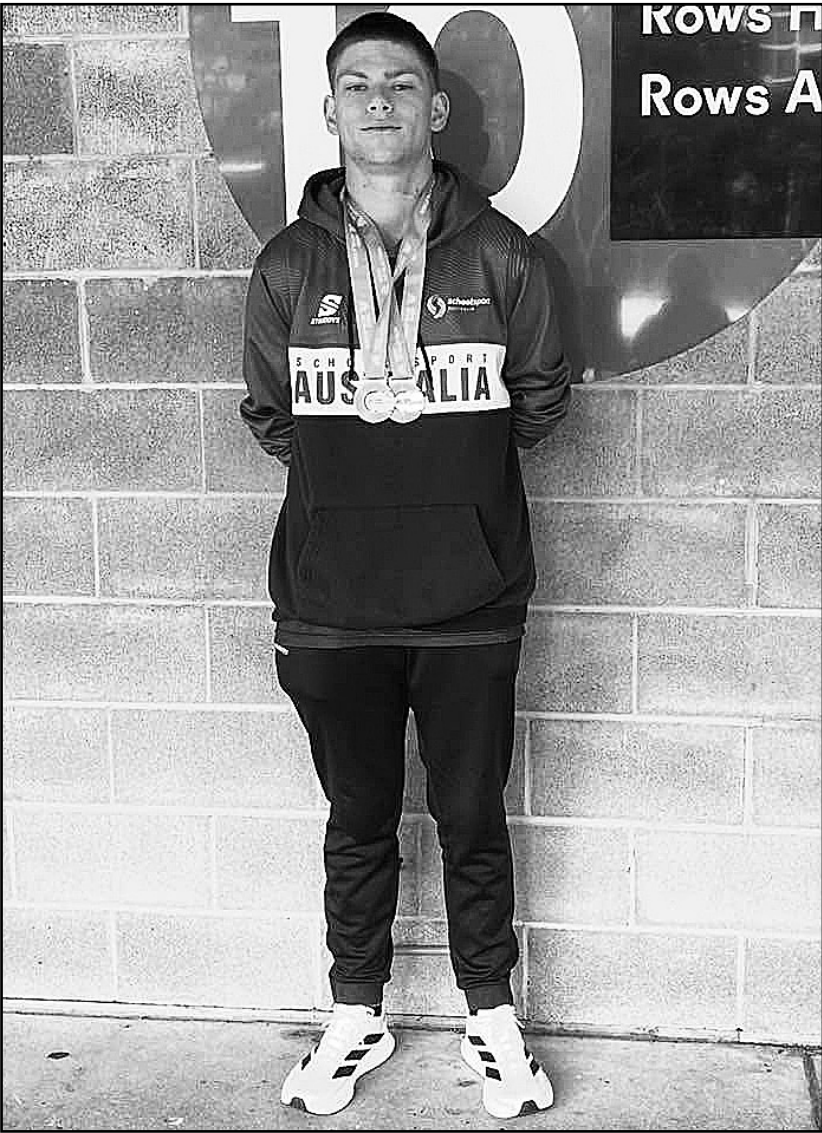

In Europe, the campaign will appear in prominent urban locations across Berlin, Milan and Paris during October. The same Return to Real message is being adapted through local media and partnerships for consumers in Germany, Italy and France.

The campaign gives Merino wool a clear and contemporary position: Natural Intelligence.

Return to Real forms part of AWI’s broader demand-creation work with brands, retailers and e-commerce platforms.

The campaign will run across China, France, Germany and Italy during October 2026.

An Australian consumer campaign is planned for mid-2027.

AMBIENT PARA sportsman Ronnie Tandy-Bell representing Wellington High School gained success at the NSW All Schools Athletics Championships at Homebush on September 27-28.

He placed third in Discus and 9th in the 200m, then second in Shotput taking him through to the 2026 Australian All Schools championships in Perth during December.
