Warne Street rail level crossing to be upgraded. But TransportNSW slow on letting locals know.

BY MARK GRIGGS

AN EMAIL forwarded to the Wellington & District Leader by a concerned reader a couple of weeks ago alerted to UGL Regional Linx (UGLRL) notifying work that will commence on the Warne Street level crossing on April 17 and continue to May 1 with the crossing closed for the duration.

The Leader contacted Transport NSW asking when the local community was going to be told either through departmental advertising or local media.

The reply by a Transport department spokesperson stated:- "The level crossing on Warne Street in Wellington is one of 23 level crossings which are planned to be upgraded under the combined Regional Level Crossing Upgrade Fund and Level Crossing Improvement Programs.

"All upgrades include the installation of high intensity LED lights, bells, and retroreflective boom gates, with the works reducing the risk of collisions, near hits and improve safety on local and regional roads.

"This project is in the final stages of planning. Our contractor UGL Regional Linx (UGLRL) will share project information with the wider community when this is finalised.

The information shared to date (in the email received by the Leader) was with key stakeholders and was provided as part of the project planning process, this includes but is not limited to local council, emergency services and local bus companies.

Community and key stakeholders will be informed of confirmed project scope, work dates and possible impact ahead of any work taking place."

It was stated that during the delivery stage of the project, the community will be informed with a letter box drop, social media, local advertising, signage as well as emails to local Council and local Member of Parliament.

The email stated that a 1.4 kilometre detour would be in place via Warne, Percy, Gisborne and Simpson Streets with an extended journey time of two minutes.

With just two weeks off the crossing's closure for at least 14 days, begs the question when will locals be notified?

Fresh wave of baby names defines a new generation in NSW

NSW PARENTS are embracing a new wave of contemporary baby names, with eight fresh entries joining the state's Top 100 in 2025.

Newly released data from the NSW Registry of Births, Deaths & Marriages shows a growing preference for names that feel meaningful and distinctive.

Among the eight newcomers to the list are a mix of some vintage choices with some modern names gaining momentum.

Boys' names had a particularly strong movement, with Fletcher making the highest debut of the year, followed by other new entrants, Rory, August and Micah.

Girls' names that broke into the list in 2025 were Amira, Mabel, Maggie and Celine. The growing spread reflects a mix of revived classics.

Overall, the 2025 list reflects a blend of nostalgic rebirths and broader cultural influences shaping how NSW parents are choosing names today.

Although several new names emerged, the top of the list remains stable.

Noah continues as the state's most popular boys name, while Charlotte retains the top spot for girls, continuing long running trends seen through the early 2020s.

To celebrate this year's Top 100, a new limited edition commemorative birth certificate is now on sale as part of the 170th Anniversary Collection.

Created in partnership with the State Library of NSW, the certificate features botanical art and delicate butterflies as a symbol of growth and change.

All births in NSW must be registered with the NSW Registry of Births, Deaths and Marriages.

Registering a birth is free and the easiest and quickest way to register a birth is online at <https://forms.bdm.nsw.gov.au/register-birth>. Only after registering the birth of the baby is the child given a legal identity, allowing access to government services like education and Centrelink.

Burrundong capacity - dead storage by next March

From ABC Western Plains

A WESTERN rivers advocate is raising concerns that New South Wales government projections show Burrundong Dam could drop to a critical level next year.

Data from the state's water department shows Burrundong, which is currently at 29 per cent capacity, could reach the so-called "dead storage" level by next March.

This is when the volume drops below 5pc and water can no longer be extracted.

Mel Gray from Healthy Rivers said she had serious concerns about how rapidly water is being released from the dam.

Meanwhile, the state government says water allocations are assessed on a monthly basis and carefully managed based on availability.

In a statement, the NSW Department of Climate Change Energy the Environment and Water said "the monthly water allocation update showed Burrundong Dam will be at its lowest in March 2027, before filling again."

It said the system ensured "high priority users such as water for critical human needs and environmental water are protected."

‘incredibly lucky escape’ after three days stuck in Curra Creek, - NSW Ambulance officer said

AFTER EXTRACTING himself from his overturned vehicle and spending three days in water on a creek bank, a 54-year-old man was lucky to have been found by a farmer.

On it's facebook page NSW Ambulance described the incident as an ‘incredibly lucky escape’.

The scene was in Curra Creek next to the Curra Creek 2 bridge, where the vehicle left Renshaw McGiir Way and through a fenceline ending upside down in Curra Creek, just 11 kilometres from Wellington.

While checking stock on the property a farmer noticed the broken fenceline and wheel tracks leading to the creek where he came across the injured occupant in the water by the creekbank and contacted emergency services around 7.45am Thursday morning.

Police said the crash was believed to have occurred sometime on Monday when the car flipped down the muddy embankment.

The driver was able to remove himself from rapidly sinking vehicle, which became submerged, but could not climb back up to the road due to his injuries.

The man, who was the sole occupant, was also unable to access his phone to call emergency services, which was left in the car.

He was treated by paramedics for non-life-threatening injuries.

“The gentleman was dehydrated and hypothermic, as well as suffering chest and limb injuries,” NSW Ambulance Inspector Sally Lapins said.

“He was fully assessed and made comfortable before being transported to Wellington’s Rygate Park opposite Wellington Hospital where being met by Toll Ambulance Rescue Helicopter between 10am and 10.30am and airlifted to Royal North Shore Hospital in a serious but stable condition.”

Police are continuing their investigation and asking anyone with relevant footage to contact Wellington Police Station or Crime Stoppers.

Man arrested following alleged carjacking and pursuit – Mudgee

A MAN has been arrested following an alleged armed carjacking and pursuit in the Nudgee Gulgong area on Tuesday.

About 7.30am Tuesday, March 31, police were called to a service station on Church Street, near Gladstone Street, Mudgee, following reports of an armed robbery.

Orana Mid Western Police officers attended and were told an unknown man had threatened the service station attendant with a knife before demanding cash and car keys.

When the man was unable to steal the car, he left the scene on foot before allegedly entering a home on Loy Avenue and threatening the residents with a knife – a man in his 90s and a woman in her 80s – before stealing car keys from the man and driving from the scene in their car – a Hyundai Santa Fe.

No injuries were reported during either incident.

Police established crime scenes at both locations with detectives commencing an investigation.

Following extensive inquiries, about 10.05am the same day police located the vehicle travelling on Herbert Street, Gulgong.

When the driver allegedly failed to stop as directed, a pursuit was initiated.

The pursuit continued through Gulgong onto Guntawang Road towards Mudgee, when the vehicle allegedly turned around and travelled back towards Gulgong, before crashing into a stationary NSW Ambulance vehicle and another vehicle that had both pulled off Guntawang Road, near Magpie Lane.

The Hyundai Santa Fe then collided with a nearby tree.

NSW Ambulance paramedics assisted the four occupants of the ambulance – three NSW Ambulance paramedics and a patient – two of which suffered minor injuries.

Police arrested the driver – a 35-year-old man – before he was treated by NSW Ambulance paramedics and then taken to Dubbo Hospital in a stable condition for further treatment.

Easter Bunny and his mates causing chaos but where is Minister?

THE EASTER Bunny might get a warm welcome this weekend, but farmers and regional communities across the state aren’t so lucky thanks to a State Government who appears to have taken an extended Easter break, according to NSW Shadow spokesman for Agriculture, Brendan Moylan. New reports confirm what farmers already know - rabbit populations are booming again, fuelled by perfect seasonal conditions and growing resistance to outdated virus controls. The ABC has highlighted surges across southern NSW, while the SMH warns the nation is “defenceless” against the next wave of feral rabbits. “While the Easter Bunny is hopping around handing out chocolate, real rabbits are tearing up crops, stripping pasture, and making a mess of regional NSW,” Mr Moylan said. “Where is the NSW Agriculture Minister in all of this? Nowhere. Absolutely nowhere.” Shadow Parliamentary Secretary for Agriculture Michael Kemp said farmers were juggling diesel shortages, fertiliser shortages, worsening conditions, feral animals, and now exploding rabbit populations, while the Government sits on its hands.

“We all know the virus controls are losing effectiveness. We know the rabbits are multiplying. The only thing multiplying faster than rabbits right now is government inaction,” Mr Kemp said. Nationals MLC Scott Barrett added Easter was the perfect reminder of the disconnect between city-based decision makers and the realities faced by regional communities. “The Easter Bunny can get a free pass for a weekend, but we need to keep in mind that millions of rabbits are causing untold destruction across the countryside,” Mr Barrett said. “And it’s only set to get worse. This Easter is the perfect time for the Minns Labor Government to commit to developing another long-term control method to help our farmers for decades to come.” The NSW Opposition is calling for: * Immediate State & Federal coordination to fast-track updated virus controls; * Investment in research to combat growing resistance in rabbit populations; and, * A long term, properly funded national rabbit management strategy. Mr Moylan said until Labor gets serious, the Easter Bunny’s mates will continue to multiply.

My Fair Fuel Bill hits Parliament

I’VE JUST introduced my Fair Fuel Price Bill into Parliament to give the Australian Government the power to set and control fuel prices across the nation. Our country communities are being devastated by these skyrocketing costs - it’s smashing our local businesses and stinging everyone from families and workers to pensioners. During the Second World War, Parliament passed laws that allowed the government to set prices to prevent price gouging, and it worked. My Bill does the same for the duration of the current conflict in the Middle East. People in the bush have put up with price gouging and the enormous disparity between city and country prices for years. We don’t need another taskforce to tell us there’s a problem; we need decisive leadership and action. Sky-high prices are throttling our communities. If our farmers can’t afford the diesel they need to get crops in the ground, this fuel crisis will quickly spiral into a food security crisis. It is extremely disappointing that none of the major parties supported this Bill. Once again, their talk has not been backed up by a vote in Parliament. Our communities are tired of all talk and no action. Parties that failed to support fuel price controls with a vote: Labor, Liberals, Nationals and One Nation. In Parliament I have called for: * The passing of my Fair Fuel Prices Bill to reintroduce fuel price controls in Australia for the duration of this conflict. * An immediate slashing of the fuel excise tax until this crisis is over * An immediate fuel guarantee for farmers and country communities * A support package for business across the region hit by the closure of the GWH * Immediate and substantial funding for the GWH We are sick of empty words. We are sick of broken promises. We want action and we want it now! https://www.facebook.com/share/v/1BPofzK3mB/  Question Time certainly isn’t answer time In Question Time last week I asked the Prime Minister three things: * Will you now support my Fair Fuel Price Bill that would bring in federal government fuel price controls and stop the rip offs? * Will your government slash the fuel excise tax? * Will you and the NSW Government deliver a support package for our local businesses being smashed up by this highway closure? From fuel that’s not getting through to our country communities, to the forever roadworks that have closed the Great Western Highway, our communities are being throttled by these crises. They can drop $2 billion on a new Sydney airport expressway or launch new big spending high speed rail plans at the drop of a hat. All we get is cheap talk and spare change.

The Gee Report

Andrew Gee
Federal Member for Calare

Enough is enough. We went 0 for 3 on the answers, highlighting once again that Question Time certainly isn’t Answer Time. Also hard to believe that some members apparently thought that the idea of slashing the fuel excise was a joking matter. Come out to our area and talk to our residents.

https://www.facebook.com/share/v/1aHAoEG4W3/  Business Support package called for Great Western Highway closure The Central West is the food bowl of this nation and a regional economic powerhouse. Yet, today, our local families and small businesses are being treated like second-class citizens as they endure an unprecedented economic siege. The catastrophic closure of the Great Western Highway at Victoria Pass is not just a “traffic inconvenience”—it is a devastating blow to the livelihoods of hardworking people from Little Hartley to the wider Central West. For decades, successive governments have neglected this vital artery, and now, our local business owners are paying the price for that failure. I have been on the ground at “ground zero” in Little Hartley, speaking with local business owners like Margaret and Alan, Shannon, and Ken. Their stories are a heartbreaking reflection of the “Forever Roadworks” toll. For some, autumn should be their peak season, yet they are seeing less than a tenth of their usual visitors. For others in the transport and trade sectors, the detour means twice the cost and twice the time for half the profit. Our small businesses are the heartbeat of this region. They employ our locals, support our community, and pay their taxes. They should not have to fight for survival because a 194-year-old bridge built by a convict-chain gang is falling apart. The government created this mess through years of infrastructure neglect; they must now clean it up. I am calling for an immediate Business Support Package, including: * Direct financial assistance for businesses smashed by the closure. * Real investment in long-term infrastructure, not just band-aid solutions. The people of the Central West are done with “resilience” talks and funding heists. We need action, we need support, and we need it now.

THERE’S SOMETHING faintly comical about standing in your own backyard, goggles on, trying to convince yourself that the small body of water is somehow an Olympic training facility. With 14 per cent of homes across Australia boasting a backyard pool, it’s a familiar scene. Pools come in all shapes and sizes: round, kidney-shaped, vaguely rectangular. But most share one defining trait - they’re small. That’s perfectly fine for cooling off on a scorching January afternoon, but less ideal if you’re trying to actually swim. Our pool is no exception. When our kids were training for triathlons, we gave it a red-hot go. In our 10-metre pool, the first strategy was mastering tumble turns. Unfortunately, steps at both ends made that more of an obstacle course than a training technique. Then came the swim rope - Velcro around the waist, elastic cord tied off to the fence. In theory, you swim against resistance. 4 THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 2026 WELLINGTON & DISTRICT LEADER

In practice, you spend half your time tangled up like a caught fish. It always felt slightly ridiculous to leave a house with a pool... to drive somewhere else with a bigger pool. If only we’d had access to what’s emerging now. A new generation of portable swim-current systems is quietly transforming the humble backyard pool into something far more functional. Instead of swimming laps, you swim in place - against a controlled current that mimics the experience of open water or a lap lane. Think of it like a treadmill, but for swimming. I’ll admit, when I first heard about these systems, my immediate thought wasn’t “that sounds brilliant” - it was more along the lines of “so... we’re just running a 240-volt extension lead into the pool now?” It felt like a very efficient way to turn a relaxing afternoon swim into a scene from a “Dumb Ways to Die” video.

Thankfully, reality is far less dramatic. These systems are battery-powered, using low-voltage designs that can run for hours - often up to 10 - without ever needing to be plugged into mains power while you’re in the water. What’s clever about these systems is how they’ve evolved beyond bulky, permanently installed machines. Traditionally, creating a “lap pool effect” required major renovations - cutting into pool walls, installing pumps, plumbing, and often spending more than the pool itself cost. Now, the technology has shifted toward compact, clamp-on devices that sit at the edge of the pool and generate a powerful, adjustable current of water. At the heart of this shift is a combination of smarter motors and software. Modern systems use inverter-driven motors - essentially, they can vary their speed smoothly rather than simply switching on or off. Add a layer of AI-driven control, and the system can respond in real time to the swimmer’s movement, adjusting flow to keep things steady and natural. The result is a current that feels less like a fire hose and more like a river - consistent, predictable, and surprisingly comfortable. You can train for endurance, practise technique, or sprint flat-out without ever hitting a wall. Even a modest suburban pool suddenly becomes a legitimate training space. But it’s not just about fitness. Like many technologies, once it exists, people start using it in ways no one originally planned. Families turn the current down for gentle play or up for a makeshift water park. Kids treat it like an endless wave. Could we see suburban backyards doubling as serious training facilities? Will community sport shift slightly closer to home? And in a country that already loves its pools, could we end up redefining what a “swim” actually looks like?

Transport for NSW responses to actions asked at March 2 Community Meeting

Routine maintenance inspections

Transport for NSW inspects timber bridges more frequently than concrete or steel bridges, as timber is more susceptible to deterioration and overload damage.

For Scabbing Flat Bridge, the current inspection is:

- * Annual timber bridge inspection: The next inspection is scheduled for April 2026.
 - * Test bore inspection: These inspections are carried out every four years. The next test bore inspection is expected in December 2027.
 - * Underwater inspection: Inspections of bridge piers and the waterway below water level are conducted every four years.
- The next underwater inspection is expected in June 2029.

Removal of Rawsonville Bridge from the Timber Truss Bridge conservation strategy

In the original 2012 Timber Truss Bridge Conservation Strategy, Rawsonville Bridge was included as part of a group of five Central West bridges that shared similar challenges.

Historically, the Central West experienced a significant reduction in timber bridges due to geography, changes in rail networks, evolving freight routes, and shifts in agriculture practices.

Rawsonville Bridge was initially identified for retention as a representative of an Allan truss bridge and remained listed on the Section 170 Register.

However, it was not elevated to the State Heritage Register due to concerns about its long-term viability, operation constraints, and broader network needs.

During the 2019 Strategy review, Rawsonville Bridge was reassessed and determined to no longer be required as part of the representative collection.

This decision was based on several key factors, including:

- * the bridge’s insufficient width for modern traffic requirements
 - * the need to accommodate T44 vehicles and HML B-Double and Triple vehicles, which the bridge cannot support
 - * significant constraints on upgrading the bridge while retaining its heritage values.
- A detailed comparative assessment was undertaken between Rawsonville Bridge and Coorei Bridge, another 91-foot Dare truss bridge.

While Rawsonville has two trusses compared to Coorei Bridge’s single truss, Coorei Bridge is already listed on the State Heritage Register and better represents the earlier form of truss design.

The assessment found that retaining Rawsonville Bridge would not materially improve the representativeness of the overall timber bridge collection as its characteristics are already reflected in other bridges selected for long-term conservation.

Decisions under the Timber Truss Bridge Strategy are not made in isolation.

- They considered multiple factors, including:
- * network operability and safety
 - * statutory heritage obligations
 - * geographic distribution of retained bridges
 - * current and future traffic and freight demands
 - * the feasibility of long-term maintenance and upgrades.

The change in Rawsonville Bridge’s status from retention to replacement reflects the evolution of Transport’s broader, state-wide strategy.

The current replacement works represent the outcome of long-term planning to balance heritage conservation and safe and efficient transport outcomes for current and future generations.

Inspection frequency for timber bridges Transport’s bridge policies require:

- * annual inspections for all timber bridges
- * test bore inspections every four years.

Inspection frequencies may be increased on a case-by-case basis where there are known structural or condition issues.

For Scabbing Flat Bridge, all timber elements assessed as being in poor condition have either been replaced or are currently being replaced.

Based on the bridge’s current condition, the annual inspection frequency is considered appropriate.

Reinstallation of the Bailey bridge

Transport acknowledges the community’s preference for the Bailey bridge to be reinstalled in June 2026 or later.

At this stage, Transport is proposing to reinstall the Bailey bridge from late June 2026 at the earliest. The timing will be confirmed closer to the date once the construction program is finalised.

Transport will communicate the confirmed timing with the community as soon as it is available.

Network operations and Live Traffic updates

Transport’s communications team will ensure the Network Operations team is informed of any future bridge closures or traffic impacts.

The Live Traffic NSW website will be updated accordingly to reflect current conditions.

Strengthening the existing bridge as a long-term option

An options report completed in 2025 assessed whether strengthening the existing bridge could be a viable long-term solution.

The report found that strengthening the bridge would involve significant engineering, cost and heritage constraints. Even with extensive works:

- * a load limit greater than a 68-tonne B-Double could not be achieved
- * the bridge width could not be increased due to the cast iron caisson piers
- * Strengthening works would result in significant and prolonged impacts to the local community.

For these reasons, Transport does not consider strengthening the existing bridge to be a feasible long-term option. Additional action raised after the meeting

Grain Harvest Management Scheme

Transport has reconsidered its position on the Grain Harvest Management Scheme for Scabbing Flat Bridge and confirms that its position remains unchanged, as previously advised in October 2025.

The Grain Harvest Management Scheme provides a mass exemption under the National Heavy Vehicle Law.

However, it does not apply where there is a limiting factor on a route, such as a signposted bridge load restriction.

This restriction applies to Scabbing Flat Bridge, and as such the scheme cannot be used at this location.

Forty-eight concrete pours down, 21 to go: Construction powers ahead on huge Forrest wind farm

CONSTRUCTION ON the 69-turbine Uungula Wind Farm is powering ahead, with over two-thirds of the foundations now poured and the transport of turbine components about to begin.

Squadron Energy announced that 48 foundations have now been completed, leaving only 21 left to complete.

Upgrades to an important local intersection have also been completed, paving the way for the transport of turbine components to begin.

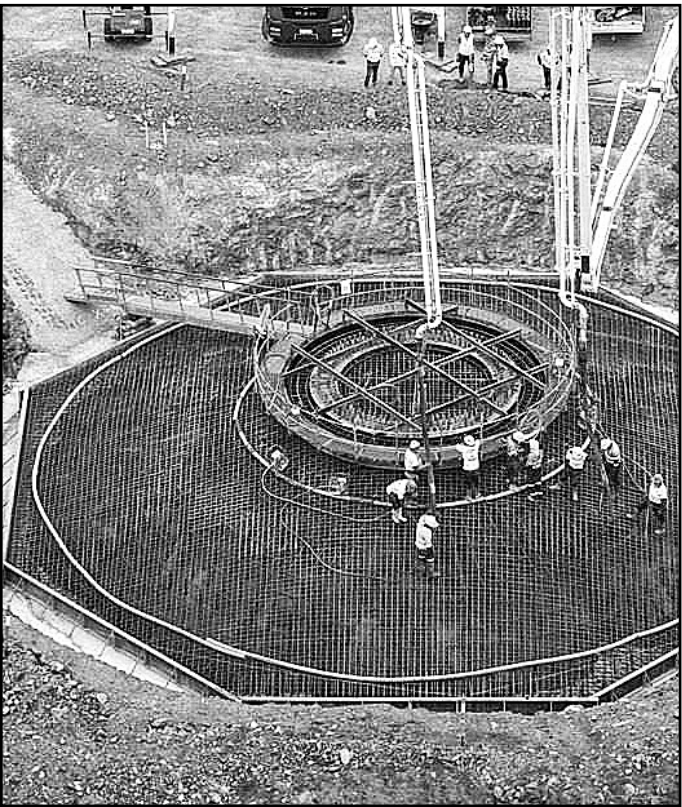

Roadwork upgrades were completed earlier in the month at the Goolma and Twelve Mile Road intersection which created a widened road.

The revamped intersection has been widened to better accommodate the big loads of wind turbine components as well as to provide better road conditions and drainage.

The first transmission lines for the wind farm were also strung in February, with more than 11 kilometres of 330 kV single circuit transmission line being attached to 28 towers over the coming months, connecting the wind farm to the electricity grid.

Once completed, the 414-megawatt (MW) Uungula Wind Farm, located 14 kilometres east of Wellington will generate electricity equivalent to the needs of more than 220,000 homes, preventing over 560,000 tonnes of CO2 emissions.

The project will consist of 69 6 MW wind turbines from GE and will deliver electricity to Snowy Hydro under a 2022-signed power purchase agreement.

Around the electorate with our State Member Dugald Saunders

Fuel update
AFTER BEING spectacularly shut down when trying to introduce our Fuel Transparency Plan in Parliament early last week, the NSW Nationals and Liberal Coalition have continued to advocate for genuine measures to address the ongoing fuel crisis.
I, like many of my colleagues, used speaking opportunities in Parliament to put community concerns about fuel supply and price gouging on the record and called on the Minns Labor Government to provide clarity on what they will do to alleviate the burden households and businesses are facing at the fuel pump.
Last week the NSW Coalition also wrote to the Prime Minister asking for an immediate, but temporary, cut to the fuel excise, because it’s a targeted and meaningful measure that will make a real difference to the cost of fuel.
Our call was answered on Monday, when the Prime Minister announced that he would indeed halve the fuel excise for three months, reducing the cost of fuel and diesel by 26.3 cents per litre from Wednesday.
While we welcome the Commonwealth’s decision, the NSW Nationals continue to call on the Premier to use his own emergency powers to guarantee diesel and fuel supplies to regional NSW.

Despite promising to address fuel shortages directly with fuel companies, service stations continue to run dry across the state and they aren’t getting any answers from the Minns Labor Government.
This Government’s lack of leadership is deeply concerning and it’s our regional communities that will be hit the hardest by the consequences of inaction.
Another roundtable is not the answer to fuel supply concerns. We need fuel in the tank, and we need it now.

Easter long weekend
Those travelling over the Easter long weekend are reminded that double demerits kick in at midnight Thursday, April 2, and will end at 11.59pm on Monday, April 6.

Good luck Sam and Clair
Wishing all the best to Dubbo’s Sam Thomas as he goes head-to-head with nine other talented auctioneers in the NSW State Finals of the ALPA Young Auctioneers Competition this week.
Representing Nutrien Milling Thomas, this is

Sam’s second time competing as a state finalist and he goes into this year’s competition having received a Highly Commended sash last year.
Held during the Sydney Royal Easter Show, the Young Auctioneers Competition showcases emerging talent in livestock sales, offering a platform for future industry leaders to demonstrate skill, confidence and market knowledge.
It’s run by the Australian Livestock & Property Agents Association (ALPA) and is one of the most prestigious platforms for emerging talent in the industry.

A massive good luck is also in order for Clair Stiff this weekend.
Clair is one of 14 finalists who will be competing in the state final of the ACCIONA Sydney Royal AgShows NSW Young Woman Competition at the Royal Easter Show.
The Young Woman Competition is an opportunity to empower young women in rural and regional NSW and provides competitors with the opportunity to build their confidence, develop leadership skills, contribute to their community and celebrate their love of agriculture.
Clair’s journey in the competition began when she was crowned Young Woman at the Wellington Show last year, and she was also one of three Young Women from the Dubbo electorate to compete in the Zone 6 Young Woman finals in February.

She’s joined in Sydney by fellow Zone 6 Finalists Libby Coles (Forbes) and Eva Price (Blayney).
Fingers crossed, Sam and Clair!

Mumblebone breaks the ice on global wool investment

MUMBLEBONE MERINO flock has taken on the world’s most demanding animal welfare, environmental and social standards to snare a direct supply relationship with global brand, icebreaker.

Wellington district’s Chad and Lou Taylor, Mumblebone Merinos, Wuuluman, secured a 10-year contract to supply 100 bales of best fleece wool from their 300-bale clip to the natural performance apparel brand in a first for an Australian wool grower.

The contract was brokered by Zentara Wool Company, formerly New Zealand Merino, opening the way for other Australian Merino flocks.

The Taylors run 1600 DNA tested stud ewes, averaging 19 micron, and 4000 commercial ewes on 4000ha freehold and 400ha leased land.

Mumblebone genetics can now be found in more than 200 postcodes around Australia and New Zealand.

Zentara chief executive officer Angus Street said the contract with Mumblebone reflected increasing interest from global brands in trusted relationships with Australian Zentara Quality (ZQ) certified wool growers.

ZQ has set global benchmarks for animal welfare, environmental stewardship and responsible farm management since 2006.

icebreaker began establishing long term partnerships with NZ Merino wool growers in 1997 and partnered with Zentara in 2022 to transition to regeneratively grown wool.

Smart Wool and icebreaker Global President Jam Van Mossevelde said Australian ZQ-certified growers produce some of the finest Merino wool in the world.

“Their responsible approach to wool is a key reason we choose to partner with them,” Mr Van Mossevelde said.

The path to securing the deal was not an overnight sensation for the Taylors who have fulfilled two three-year contracts through New Zealand Merino in the past to supply brands including Smart Wool and icebreaker.

Chad Taylor said up until now there had been no contracts beyond three years offered to Australian growers.

“These relationships have reached a point where there is enough confidence to offer a contract that lasts for 10 years – that’s the sort of relationship that excites us and we look to keep building within the industry,” he said.

“There is still some volatility in the market we are exposed to with the shorter-term contract but once we get out to 10 years, that volatility is near enough neutralised, and there is a premium paid on top of that.”

The ZQ certification goes beyond animal welfare to include the ecological and social aspects.

“Once we have that certification met it gives confidence to the brand, in this case icebreaker, to take on the wool and offer a long-term contract to the clients and growers to ensure supply is shored up from both ends,” Mr Taylor said.

“Mumblebone is a gateway to what our clients are doing – we are breeding a sheep that genetically meets the certification criteria across animal husbandry, particularly mulesing.

“When we breed a sheep that doesn’t need to be mulesed we open the door to meeting the specs of this certification.”

On-farm changes at Mumblebone to gain ZQ certification included modifications to the shearing and chemical sheds.

The Taylors deliberately set a clear path to build the modern genetic platform they have today.

for the stud and client’s flocks.

Mumblebone balances a high value fleece across an animal with industry leading growth rate, condition score and reproduction refined with worm and dag resistance to produce a profitable, easy-care animal.

By aligning production goals with welfare needs, doors are opened to faster growth, higher reproduction, longer staple length and lower fly pressure – all traits to keep the customer and bank manager happy, according to Mr Taylor.

“We want to increase the fleece value over time on an animal that is better set to meet the needs of the future.

“To me that includes condition score, growth rate, bare breach, low dag and worm pressure – all of those factors are efficiently combined when we have the data to select on.”

The early growth and condition score results in stud ewes capping out at a moderate adult weight of 65kg liveweight, giving a stocking rate advantage per hectare.

“Our mature ewes have a 10 per cent fleece weight to body weight ratio of 6.5kg annually while our two-year-old ewes are cutting 5.2kg with a body weight of 52kg,”

Mr Taylor said.

He uses feedback from his end use customers to focus on staple length, especially on a six-monthly shearing.

“If there is a setback for the ewes they may fall below the staple length minimum requirement. Selection for staple length is important for us to ensure we are meeting that length target in six months.

“The wool is slipping straight into the specs required for quality in terms of wool colour and coefficient of variation of fibre diameter.”

Zentara’s Angus Street confirmed several other leading Australian growers are also considering long term agreements with icebreaker.

“This 10-year contract opens the door to giving people confidence to start investing in the wool industry,” Mr Taylor said.

“We have brands looking to build these relationships and that needs to be supported from the grower end by breeding an animal and producing a fibre professionally classed and prepared to meet the specifications the brands are looking for.

“With that relationship in place, it paints a picture that gives people confidence about the wool industry.”

WEATHER LAST week threw it all at us - hot one minute, freezing cold the next, one day huge winds the next day, more but only 6mm in my gauge. This week will be true autumn weather tops of 33 degrees and lows of 15 with no rain or heavy winds.

End of daylight saving Easter Sunday.

How ag can switch diesel for alternative energy to power industry

New Agrifutures Australia research has revealed key pathways for the agriculture sector to switch from diesel to alternative energy sources.

As rural industries turn their focus to reducing emissions and switching to renewables to address climate risks, there is a call to identify transformative pathways to transition from dependence on petroleum diesel fuels. Building on earlier work investigating energy needs of Australian agriculture, we now have a practical roadmap to deliver new energy technology for the sector.

Homegrown solutions are being trialled and we can expect rapid uptake over the next four to five years. Supply risks, rising price volatility due to unstable energy markets and geopolitical tensions are a stark reminder of the sector’s vulnerabilities when it comes to reliance on diesel. Battery electric and hydrogen fuel cells and oilseeds (canola & sunflowers) are the dominant technologies expected in future heavy machinery and equipment markets says Jane Knight, Agri futures manager Australia.

WOOL.. Some global headwinds have interrupted what was looking like a promising wool market up until three weeks ago. With the logistic costs of moving anything increasing at a rapid rate, the current wool market is under pressure but still performing admirably. The nation’s three wool selling centres tried to realign last week with the Eastern seaboard returning to near normal conditions and the Western region still lagging. Exchange rates played into local currency favour with the EMI down 1.5%. When looked at in US dollars it was a 3.5% decline. In the NMI lost 11 cents on Tuesday’s opening and a further 8 cents by Wednesday’s close. Merino cardings and pockets around the 20-micron indicator outperformed the rest of the market. 36,140 bales sold nationally. Passed-in rates edged slightly higher than the season’s average and registered 8.9%. Major buyers included PJ Morris, Techwool and Tianyu with the top four Merino fleece buyers registering a large 66% market share between them. This week’s offering expected to remain below 40,000 bales. The market will then pause for a one-week recess over the Easter period.

General easing of offering and pricing, but not confidence

IT WAS little surprise that the softer tone from the prior week continued throughout last week as the wool market fell quite sharply on the first day, then a few cents more on the second. The 12 consecutive days of rises has now been replaced by five consecutive days of losses with 59 cents being wiped off the EMI over the past two weeks. Our only concern last week was that Fremantle didn’t post gains on the second day. Despite the cracks opening wider, there were some very good results for well measuring wools both certified and not certified. Buyers were selective on the type and measurements and those fitting the specs had a good sale. The 36,140 bales sold still averaged a handsome $1942 a bale across all types including crossbreds. According to market reports there is quite a selection of part tender and higher vegetable matter lines which explains why the well measuring lines are holding firm. There does seem to be consensus that this market needed to have a “correction” to allow early-stage processors time to take stock of the recent price increases in order to be able to pass on price rises more consistently and gradually to secondary processors. The last thing early-stage processors want is for their new purchases to be devalued by sudden and sharp falls. There is an expectation still that supply will be an issue post Easter as weekly offerings drift closer to 30,000 bales a week. Quite a lot of older held wool has now been sold into the pipeline which will not be available at the next surge. One thing that will start to cast a shadow is the rising cost of transportation due to rising fuel prices. Both land leg freight rates and shipping rates are on the up between 5% and 30% with no resolution in the Iran conflict in sight. Despite this, confidence remains high among the buying trade. Only time will tell! Macwool and Carmichael wool offered 1400 bales on Tuesday, with the three selling centres operating around a total of 37,800 bales prior to a one-week Easter recess.

Racing at Tullibigeal

GARY COLVIN, a long-time successful trainer at Wagga Wagga, returned to his old hometown to be a popular winner of the feature race at Tullibigeal with Freddy’s Shock.

Trainer of numerous outstanding gallopers including Another One, winner of the $500,000 Country Championship Final at Royal Randwick in 2022, Gary Colvin was back on Saturday to where it all started, his father Fred Colvin having been a very well-known and successful trainer at Tullibigeal.

Ridden by Bessie Dimery, Freddy’s Shock had a slender lead at the top of the straight and was under serious threat when Freud began charging home from well back in the 1600 metres Framp-ton Feedlot & Dunk Insurance Tullibigeal Picnic Cup.

Holding on gamely, Freddy’s Shock ($5.50)) won by a head from Freud (Dylan Parrott, $4.80) with Testing The Cugat (Ricky Blewitt, $5) a length and a half away in third place.

Line Of Law, winner of the $50,000 Picnic Championship Final over 1000m at Dubbo last year, is looming as a leading prospect for the 2026 Final following a dominant win at Tullibigeal in the 975m Picnic Sprint.

Settled behind the leader by Amber Collins, Line Of Law ($2.70) sprinted past well performed stablemate Callie Cool (Leandro Ribeiro, $2.30) to score by nearly 2 lengths while finishing third was the $2 favourite Texas Open ridden by Rebecca McRae.

Dubbo based Connie Greig who trains Line Of Law, later completed a double when Notleanor-mean (Leandro Ribeiro, $3.20) hit the lead in the last stride to beat Rita Red (Ricky Blewitt, $4) and Trifecta Ruby (Bessie Dimery, $2 favourite) in the 1200m Class 2 Trophy Handicap.

Forbes trainer Bill Hayes kicked off the day on a bright note when Mihrimah (Ashley Boyd, $3.60) led throughout to win the 975m Class B Handicap from You Count (Leandro Ribeiro, $2.20 fav) and Talistiana (Bessie Dimery, $5).

Following race, the 1200m Maiden Plate saw King Lesong establish a big lead before the Anthony Craig, Narrandera trained Elisa (Dylan Parrott, $2.40) took off at the 400m and was a runaway four-lengths winner over Girl Scout (Leandro Ribeiro, $2 fav) and Bold Bender (Amber Collins, $3.50).

Wrapping up the day before a very good crowd at Tullibigeal, Sunroe ($8) ridden by Narromine jockey Ricky Blewitt for Wagga trainer Doug Gorrell led all the way for a close win from The Bentley (Leandro Ribeiro, $2 fav) and Himeros (Eloise Drews, $4.60) in the 1600m Ron Tyack Memorial & Ozzie Fuels Class 1 Trophy Handicap.

Wellington Public School

WPS EXCELS ON THE SPORTING FIELD

Stage 3 students at Wellington Public School have had a fantastic term on the sporting field, with several students earning the opportunity to represent the Dubbo District in cricket, basketball, rugby league and swimming.

Kiah Sutherland has had a particularly busy term, representing the Western Association in Girls Cricket alongside Ivy Drury and Emme Grant. Kiah was also selected in the Dubbo District Girls Basketball and Rugby League teams, which is a great achievement.

Our Wellington Public School swim team also had great success at the Dubbo District Carnival, finishing the day as Champion School. This was a terrific result and a credit to all of our swimmers. Leading the way in the pool were Girls School Captain Imogen Jones and fellow swim star Roman Dowton, who both broke long-standing carnival records.

The WPS sporting calendar is always busy, and it's great to see our students taking every opportunity to represent their school and enjoy success outside the classroom.

Help the NWPolocrosse team head to USA

EMILY EDWARDS has been selected in the team to travel to the USA in September representing NWP polocrosse. Her Aunty, Christina Edwards Honeyman has also been selected to coach the team. To help towards costs of the trip the team is fundraising and asks for used batteries. “This involves us collecting old used dead batteries to sell. So, if anyone has any old car, truck or mower batteries, we would like them,” she said. “We will also have some raffles with great prizes already donated and would gladly accept any items or services we could use to raffle, auction or anything else to help with funds to get this team the USA.” ~ ~ ~ Contact Christina on facebook: Christina Edwards Honeyman.

Yeoval school fundraiser raises over $24,000

More than 100 celebrate in style at St Columba’s P&F event.

STUDENTS AT St Columba’s Catholic Primary School, Yeoval, will enjoy a covered outdoor learning area (COLA) following an overwhelmingly successful St Pat’s Ball fundraiser at the town. There were 108 people who donned their party best to raise a whopping $24,620 for the school Parents & Friends (P&F) Association fundraiser, held at the Yeoval Memorial Town Hall on March 14. The event included an 11-lot fundraising auction, which itself raised $8375, as well as entertainment by live band, Gabe Music, and catering by Modern Foodie, Narromine. St Columba’s P&F President, Luke Kerin, said all funds raised would go towards construction of the covered outdoor learning area (COLA) at the school, and also further lawn irrigation works. “The P&F members all worked hard to put on this special event, and we couldn’t be more pleased with how it went,” he said. “It was great to see so many people having a great time together, especially all of the school’s staff. “On behalf of the P&F, I would like to sincerely thank all of the event’s sponsors, auction item donors, people who purchased auction items, everyone who bought a ticket in the raffle, and everyone who came along on the night. “The result we achieved as a committee made all the hours of hard work well and truly worth it, and we now can’t wait to see the new infrastructure built at the school, for the benefit of generations of future St Columba’s students.” The event’s gold sponsor was Goonoo Homestead. Silver sponsors were: RKC Transport, JAD Speckle Park & Angus, and The Cross Roads Hotel, Tomingley. Bronze sponsors were: AGnVET Yeoval, Aon Insurance, Christie & Hood stock and station agency, ClearWater Tanks, Gullendah Pastoral Co, HM Lowe & Co, J&K Keady Transport, Keady Transport, PrincipleFocus, and Seasoned Finance.
