Noise, light, soil and water pollution on it's way

People have been encouraged to object to this developement long before an EIS is produced by proponents.

NIGHT LIGHT illumination as bright as a town, noise levels of at least 35 decibels day and night, soil with traces of poison that could leach into local creeks and eventually the Macquarie River are all possible if a hydro-electric development goes ahead on property along the Twelve Mile Road only kilometres from Wellington.

The Wellington & District Leader brought this possibility to light in its December 5, 2024 edition when "Umagarlee" owner Peter Carter brought out into the open, the possibility of a compressed air energy storge project construction next door.

Peter Carter shows a map of the proposed project.

Twelve Mile Road landholder Peter Carter shows visitors a map of the proposed hydro-electric scheme located on his neighbour's adjoining property during an information day at "Umagarlee" last Saturday.

Back then he said regular blasting of explosives over a two-year period which would be heard and possibly felt in Wellington, upwards of 700 people involved during the construction period and 40 ongoing to run the operation, and light towers possibly as high a sporting venue towers, were being planned by Hydrostor Inc, a long duration energy storage provider with headquarters in Canada, and also in Melbourne.

Information day
Peter Carter conducted his own information day on

"Umagarlee" last Saturday inviting district landholders, Dubbo Regional Council mayor Josh Black and Cr Lukas Buttler, and state government MCL and duty MCL for the Central West and Western regions Stephen Lawrence.

Some 20 people attended and were shown the proposed site, then were addressed by Broken Hill business couple Travis and Linda Nadge, who run Outback Astronomy just 10 kilometres from the Silver City.

Duke of Wellington Bridge latest

COUNCILLOR ADAM RYAN has been chasing up the latest information on where the Duke of Wellington Bridge works are up to, and here’s the latest on the project status:

In November 2025, Council secured significant funding through the Australian and NSW Governments’ Disaster Recovery Funding Arrangements (DRFA). This funding will support the repair of the bridge approach and stabilisation of the riverbank at the Gobolion Street site.

Council has engaged specialist contractors SMEC to undertake site investigations, technical assessments, detailed engineering design and preparation of construction drawings for the Duke of Wellington Bridge project.

NSW Government agencies are assisting DRC with technical advice, construction related activities and project administration.

This collaborative approach will help coordinate the project and support its efficient and effective delivery. SMEC are finalising detailed design documentation to enable Council to undertake a tender process to appoint a suitably qualified and experienced construction contractor.

The successful contractor will be responsible for delivering the approved scope of works in accordance with the final design, relevant approvals and required safety standards.

Construction is expected to commence in early 2027.

Following representations by the Mayor and Acting General Manager in 2025 to the Hon. Janelle Saffin, Minister for Recovery, in relation to the matter and to seek financial assistance for the betterment works required which would protect the bridge from further erosion, we were advised that there would be a funding stream in mid-2026 for further erosion control works under the Disaster Ready Fund through the Australian Government’s National Emergency Management Agency with the NSW Reconstruction Authority as the lead agency in New South Wales.

Council has applied for funds under this program which closed on 1 July 2026 and have not been notified on the outcome of this application to date.

Scabbing Flat Bridge, Geurie

After sustained political and community pressure, Transport for NSW have opened the review into the NSW Timber Truss Bridge Strategy.

This will see the Scabbing Flat Bridge at Geurie be assessed to see if it meets modern day farming and community needs, whilst also balancing heritage considerations.

Obviously the local and wider farming communities are hoping for a recommendation that the single-lane bridge is replaced with a modern, two-lane concrete bridge.

But to achieve that result, people need to engage with the formal review process.

It’s important to acknowledge the Minister for Roads and Regional Transport, Jenny Aitchison, for visiting the Scabbing Flat Bridge site at least twice, and for listening to the concerns of the community in allowing this process to proceed.

The local Scabbing Flat Bridge Replacement Group have done an enormous amount of work of a number of years to raise the issue, have meetings with those in positions of power and influence, and ensure that the community’s voice is heard.

Today, Transport for NSW manages, maintains and preserves 27 historic timber truss bridges across the state dating from 1880 to 1930.

Transport for NSW is reviewing its Timber Truss Bridge Strategy across the state, and wants to hear from the communities who live alongside and use these bridges every day.

First developed in 2010 and revised in 2012 and 2019, the Timber Truss Bridge Strategy sets out how these important structures are preserved and managed while continuing to meet the needs of a modern transport network. Transport for NSW have heard from local communities that some bridges are not meeting local needs, or are being overly impacted by increased maintenance needs due to the increased weight of higher productivity vehicles, and increased road traffic as regional travel pattern have changed.

The review will seek direct feedback from local communities, councils, heritage groups, industry and road users and consider how the strategy can respond to changing needs.

Feedback will help Transport for NSW better understand what matters most to the communities connected to these bridges and inform how the strategy can balance heritage, community and transport needs into the future.

Community consultation will run from 28 September to 30 October 2026.

Community members can have their say through the Have Your Say website, by calling 1800 167 499 or emailing Regional-Projects@transport.nsw.gov.au.

An updated Timber Truss Bridge Strategy is expected to be released in late 2027.

Where have all the journalists gone?

By Damian Morgan, President, Country Press Australia

It’s World News Day on 28 September – a day to celebrate journalism, and the fact-based, verified information it produces.

It’s also a good day to remind ourselves why that matters.

Because whether it’s a real-world conversation around the water cooler at work, or an answer being generated by AI, we need to be feeding the system – both human and robot – accurate, verified information. Get that wrong and the consequences can be catastrophic.

Truth matters – especially when the truth is less sexy than a more compelling story, told entertainingly by an advocate or influencer that gets more clicks on social media.

And that’s the problem.

We are producing more information and “news” than ever before, while having fewer journalists doing the work of checking it, challenging it and finding out whether it’s actually true.

So where have all the journalists gone?

In regional Australia, if you’re looking for some of the best-paid journalists in town – often the former editors or longest-serving scribes at the local paper – you’ll increasingly find them writing marketing and “news” for the local council.

Yes, the same government they once held to account now has some of the best journalistic talent producing its PR.

We can’t blame the journalists. They get paid more to do less.

But it is worth asking - why has local government decided it needs to get into the news business?

Most people don’t want their council to be a news organisation. They want it to do its job. Roads, rates and rubbish. Planning. Parks. Libraries. Local services. The things councils are actually there to do.

We didn’t ask our council to establish a newsroom. And yet that’s increasingly what is happening.

Councils are building their own channels to “in-form” residents – websites, newsletters, videos, social media and publications that look increasingly like news services.

But here’s the problem.

A government communications operation exists to tell people what the government is doing.

A newsroom exists to ask whether what the government is doing is any good. They’re not the same thing. One communicates. The other scrutinises.

And when councils start filling the local information space with their own version of “news”, they’re not just communicating with their communities.

They’re competing with the independent newsrooms that are supposed to hold them to account.

We shouldn’t kid ourselves that this is just a harmless shift in the way councils communicate.

When government starts producing the news, it changes the information ecosystem.

“News” is already a much-abused term.

Government and corporate PR departments produce “news”. Online advocates and influencers produce “news”. Marketing is dressed up as information. Opinion is dressed up as fact.

Social media platforms are just as happy to host dangerous lies as they are the truth. They profit the same either way.

There’s an old maxim in journalism that news is what somebody doesn’t want printed – the rest is PR.

A great local news service does much more than that, of course. It builds connection, tells the stories of communities, celebrates local achievement and helps people understand the place they live.

But it must also do that first thing.

It must be prepared to ask the questions somebody doesn’t want asked.

Because democracy depends on scrutiny.

The spotlight test that shines a light on what people in positions of power are doing and let the public decide what they think.

And right now, we’re at risk of an entire level of government in this country – local government – going increasingly unscrutinised while it builds its own channels to tell residents its side of the story.

That’s why this matters beyond our own newsrooms.

This year, more than 1000 news organisations across more than 100 countries are marking World News Day together – a global campaign asking the public to know the facts, understand what matters and choose trusted journalism, because it’s their right to know. It’s also a chance for all of us to think about the information diet we’re consuming.

Stop scrolling. Question the things that simply confirm what you already believe. Be suspicious of certainty without evidence. And remember that not everything that looks like news is journalism.

This World News Day, let’s celebrate local news services and the journalists who work across regional Australia.

They are essential infrastructure for our democratic way of life.

They are the people who help make sure the information we consume – in our communities, in our conversations and increasingly in our AI machines – is based on something more solid than whoever shouted the loudest or got the most clicks.

Fashions Mount rifle range to host Australian championships

FASHIONS MOUNT Rifle Range at Wuuluman is set to host the 2026 SSAA Australian Long Range Black Powder National Championship this October long weekend, with competition starting early tomorrow, Friday, October 2.

The event will be hosted by the Buffalo Rifle Association of Australia (B.R.A.A) who also utilise the range for their monthly club competitions.

The club has been working with the range owners, Lindsay and Dawn Hough to ensure a competition ready venue for this major championship.

The Wuuluman range is uniquely placed with the style of targets required for these matches and is one of the few remaining ranges with the distances available for competitors to qualify for international championships.

This event has been in the pipeline for many years and will feature single shot muzzleloading and cartridge rifles in a Creedmoor style of competition that is now more than 150 years old.

This will be the second time the club has hosted the Long Range Muzzle Loading Nationals and will be the first time that Black Powder Cartridge Rifles will be included in their own class.

Competitors from four states are entered.

The matches are conducted with black powder and cast lead over distances that range from 300, 500, 600, 900 and 1000 yards.

The rifles are mostly replicas of those from the late 1800s but there are some original rifles still being used.

Many of the rifles feature exhibition grade timber and colour case hardened finishes which gives each one a unique peacock type colouration to the metal work.

The Sporting Shooters Association of Australia (SSAA) is the peak association for shooting sports and this is one of many disciplines and National Championships being run by dedicated volunteers.

Shooting sports are very family friendly and it is common to see two and even three generations of a family competing against each other.

The competition hosts thank the range owners for their assistance and wish all competitors well for the weekend.

Mobile speed cameras approved for the Darling Causeway

MOBILE SPEED cameras have been approved for use on the Darling Causeway in the latest move to encourage safe driver behaviour and adherence to road rules on the Great Western Highway detour route.

Transport for NSW and NSW Police have worked closely to counter poor driver behaviour on the Darling Causeway since the closure of Victoria Pass in March led to a significant increase in traffic on the road.

NSW Police has committed additional patrols to the detour route over the past six months and this approval for mobile speed cameras to detect speeding will help further deter unsafe behaviour.

Transport for NSW Executive Director Chadi Chalhoub said while most motorists on the Darling Causeway were driving safely and respectfully, a small percentage were still taking unacceptable risks.

“The state government has committed $50 million towards boosting the resilience of the Great Western Highway detour route, improving the pavement and shoulders and upgrading safety measures, but drivers must also do their part to ensure the safety of all road users,” Mr Chalhoub said.

“Despite all the warnings and increased police presence on the detour route, speeding remains a real problem and we’re pleased to announce additional resources to help combat this behaviour.

“Mobile speed cameras have now been approved and will be clearly signposted when in operation.

“Additionally, with mobile phone and seatbelt detection cameras operating around the state including in the Blue Mountains and western region, drivers are reminded to put their phone away and make sure they and any passengers buckle-up and wear their seatbelt correctly.

“We acknowledge the inconvenience, extra distance and extra time involved in using the detour route during the ongoing closure of Victoria Pass but motorists need to understand that illegal, dangerous and selfish actions while behind the wheel can threaten the safety of everyone relying on this route and undermine efforts to keep traffic moving.”

The approved use of mobile speed cameras is in addition to field pilots operating drones, additional mobile CCTV units and traffic behaviour monitoring cameras put in place since the closure of Victoria Pass.

Transport has also allocated extra field resources on the detour route including heavy and light tows and additional traffic control crews to ensure any traffic incidents are cleared as quickly as possible.

Transport works closely with emergency services to respond to incidents and restore access as quickly as possible when disruptions occur.

Twelve Mile Road local Norm Smith, Glenwood, chats with State MLC Stephen Lawrence and Travis and Linda Nadge of Outback Astronomy, Broken Hill, who have been affected by the Hydrostor Silver City Energy Storage System near their property. They were attending an information day at “Umagarlee”.

Proposed Wellington hydro-electric project endangers living standards and environment

The Nadges were adamant the proposed Wellington Hydrostor project would cause as much grief to locals and people in Wellington as the Hydrostor Silver City Energy Storage System has caused them.

They told the assembled group not to stall but to act now and object to the proposal way before an EIS (Environment Impact Statement) is produced.

“As you only have four weeks to respond, and it will take more than that time to get your homework done,” Travis Nadge said.

Proposal

According to Peter Carter, he was told the project would entail a two-metre diameter hole dug anywhere as deep as 600 to 800 metres through the granite soils and create a cavern within the granite which would store air. When electricity is required, water would be pumped down the hole and into the cavern forcing air out and through pipes to a turbine of some sort which would generate the electricity.

Mr Carter said to store enough water for the process a 22-plus hectare dam would be constructed at the site with water obtained by pipeline from the Cudgegong River.

Mr Carter said the walls of the dam could be as high as six metres, “and that’s a lot of water”.

He also said that as there was no natural clay in this area, clay to line the dam would have to be trucked in from somewhere, causing a never-ending convoy during that construction period.

More on this information session in next week’s edition.

The brutal bowser squeeze on our region

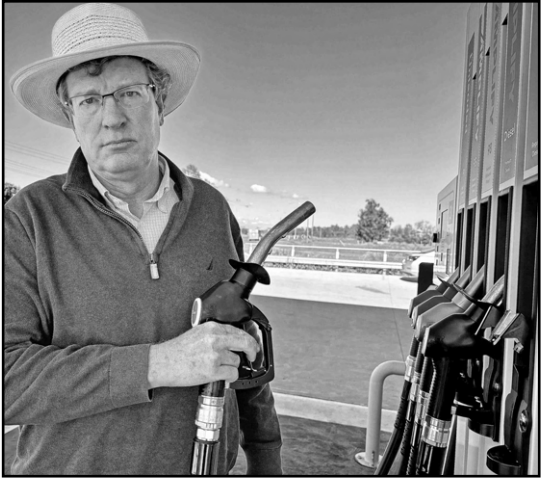

IN THE middle of a cost-of-living crisis, all families, seniors, farmers, businesses and transport operators across the Central West are facing another brutal financial squeeze at the pump.

This is appalling for our country communities and the Federal Government needs to take immediate action and slash the fuel excise tax.

They’ve done it before and there is no excuse for being so slow to act now - other than wanting to keep pocketing extra tax revenue while country people suffer.

The Federal Government must face reality and build genuine sovereign fuel and fertiliser capability, sourcing and refining fuel right here and manufacturing our own fertiliser in Australia.

Slashing the fuel tax isn’t the only step that’s needed.

We’ve also got to bring back fuel price controls to stop the price gouging that we all know exists.

At the start of this crisis, I introduced my ‘Fair fuel price’ bill into parliament.

It would bring back World War II style fuel price controls, giving the Federal Government the power to set and regulate prices at the bowser during major international conflicts.

It worked during World War II and it would work again now.

It would give households, small businesses and farmers confidence that fuel prices won’t just keep heading north.

Unbelievably, neither Labor, the Liberals, the Nationals or One Nation supported my bill - and look where we are now.

It’s country people who are being hit the hardest. We have no choice but to drive long distances for work, school, medical appointments, businesses and even basic necessities.

When fuel costs surge, it hits everything on the back of a truck, pushing up freight costs and driving up the price of groceries for every family in the Central West.

The Gee Report

Andrew Gee
Federal Member for Calare

We need the Federal Government to slash the fuel tax, bring back petrol price controls and give regional Australia real fuel price relief.

I intend to reintroduce my fair fuel price bill into parliament and will keep pushing it until the major parties finally see common sense.

Diesel in some places has now hit $3 a litre and it’s still going up.

The Government must act and bring these prices under control now.

NSW INTRODUCED licence demerit points in 1969, recognising a long time ago that a financial penalty alone isn’t always enough to change driver behaviour.

Back in the seventies, the process was fairly straightforward. You did something wrong, a police officer pulled you over, handed you a fine and the demerit points went against your licence.

Then technology changed the equation.

Mobile speed cameras arrived on NSW roads in 1991, followed by fixed speed cameras in 1997. Suddenly the offence could be detected without a police officer ever seeing the driver.

That helped create what became known as the company loophole. If a vehicle was registered to a company, the fine went to the company, which was then required to nominate the driver.

Failure to nominate attracted a larger fine, but for some well-heeled motorists, that wasn’t much of a deterrent.

In one extreme case, a company reportedly paid more than $200,000 in fines rather than nominate drivers.

By 2020, around 7000 offences each year involved drivers not being nominated, meaning approximately 30,000 demerit points weren’t finding their way onto licences.

That loophole has largely been closed, but it exposes another issue looming on the horizon.

What happens when a driverless car breaks the law?

Who gets the fine? Who gets the demerit points? And, perhaps most importantly, what is the deterrent?

In yet another example of technology screaming ahead while regulation jogs along behind trying to catch up, these are questions legislators are now being forced to answer.

In several American cities, autonomous taxis are carrying paying passengers every day. And, just like human drivers, sometimes they get things wrong.

Last year, autonomous taxis accumulated 589 parking tickets in San Francisco alone. Parking fines are relatively easy.

The registered owner receives the bill and pays it.

Moving violations are much trickier.

4 THURSDAY, OCTOBER 1, 2026, WELLINGTON & DISTRICT LEADER

Police in San Bruno, California, reportedly watched a driverless vehicle perform an illegal U-turn. They pulled it over but there was just one small problem.

There was nobody to book.

As police joked afterwards, their citation books didn’t have a box marked “robot”.

California has started addressing the problem. Police can now issue a “notice of autonomous vehicle noncompliance” when a driverless vehicle allegedly breaks traffic laws.

Rather than putting points on a licence, violations can become part of the regulatory record of the company operating the vehicles.

And that points towards what may become the driverless equivalent of demerit points.

If an individual driver repeatedly breaks the rules, eventually they lose their licence.

Perhaps the logical equivalent for an autonomous vehicle operator is to threaten its permission to operate.

Enough serious infringements and the regulator could restrict or ultimately revoke the company’s ability to put autonomous vehicles on public roads.

That creates a deterrent considerably more powerful than a fine that might be absorbed as a cost of doing business.

And this issue will become much more complicated as autonomous vehicles spread.

Today it might be relatively obvious which company operates a robotaxi. Tomorrow, one company might write the software, another manufactures the vehicle, another owns it and an individual might be sitting inside reading the newspaper while the car does the driving.

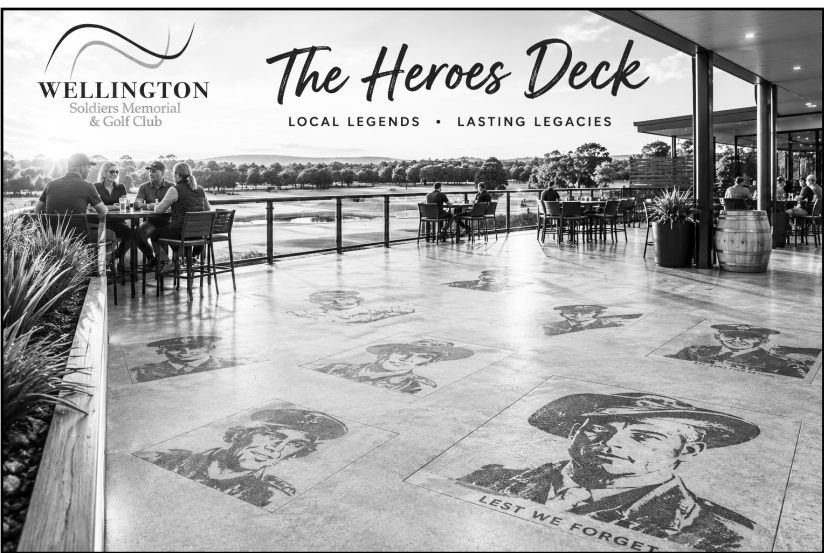

When something goes wrong, which one gets the metaphorical demerit points?

Driverless cars may eventually prove safer than human drivers. They don’t drink, get tired, send text messages or become distracted by a back-seat argument.

But even the safest technology will occasionally make mistakes.

We spent more than half a century building a system designed to punish the person behind the wheel.

Now we need to work out what happens when there isn’t one.

An artist's design of the proposed golf club's 'Heroes Deck'.

Wellington Golf Club Stage 1 kicks off

LOCAL BUILDER Henry Redfern of WelBuilt Constructions has been awarded the contract for Stage 1 of the Wellington Golf Club clubhouse redevelopment.

This first stage will refurbish the women's and men's toilet and change-room amenities and a brand-new golf office.

WelBuilt Constructions was selected after a highly competitive tender process that attracted interest from contractors both locally and interstate.

Early works are expected to begin before the end of the year.

Wellington Soldiers Memorial and Golf Club is now seeking quotes for Stage 2 — the outdoor decking.

A striking new concrete deck, aptly named the 'Local Heroes' Deck, will become one of the most distinctive features of the clubhouse.

Club CEO, Stephen Hodge said the Heroes' Deck would feature images of local sporting and community heroes, including past presidents of the golf club and high-achieving Wellington residents.

"It will become a true focal point — a place for golfers and the wider community to come together and celebrate the people who've shaped our club and our town," Mr Hodge said.

The Stage 2 contract is expected to be announced by November.

Looking to the future

Mr Hodge, President Robyn Edwards, and Treasurer David King have returned from a successful trip to China where they procured all new furniture and fittings for the Wellington Soldiers Memorial Club.

"The trip was a great success, as we were able to personally select and buy all new furniture and finishes for the Club," Mr Hodge said.

"This purchase is part of the multi-million dollar redevelopment of the Club, which has now received DA approval and will go to a competitive tender process for building contractors before the end of the year.

"We've purchased completely new gaming chairs and bases, restaurant tables and chairs, crockery, and many other items that we're excited to refresh the Club with as construction gets underway."

As part of the first stage of works, the gaming room will be temporarily relocated so it can be refurbished and expanded.

"We will continue to provide regular updates to our members and visitors on the impact of the redevelopment," Mr Hodge said.

Moriarty's latest title is here at the Library

It's been a decade since the school trivia night that changed their lives forever and now they're living blissfully ordinary suburban lives.

But when an anonymous grisly package arrives at the local high school, and a man in a green Volvo is seen lurking around the kids, everyone in their beautiful beachside community is uneasy.

Is this history repeating itself or something new and more shocking? Can you ever truly outrun the mistakes of your past?

What big little truths are about to be revealed?

Once again, Liane Moriarty examines the complexities of modern women's lives, shining light on shame and family secrets with wit and compassion.

Justice system reforms, extension of bail laws pass NSW Parliament

REFORMS STRENGTHENING NSW’s justice system and bail framework have passed NSW Parliament.

The Justice Legislation Amendment (Miscellaneous) Bill (No 2) 2026, which also improves existing legal frameworks and court processes for children and adults, recently passed Parliament.

Strengthening the bail framework
The legislation extends section 22C of the Bail Act 2013 which has helped disrupt high-risk offending and stabilise youth crime rates since its introduction in 2024.

The bail test for young people charged with repeat car theft and break and enter offences requires a judge to have a high degree of confidence the accused will not offend while on bail.

The Government previously sought to extend the laws until April 2028 and last year opposed an amendment by the Coalition and the Greens to shorten the sunset period to October this year.

The legislation also helps ensure residential rehabilitation facilities are operating in line with court and community expectations.

Courts will now be required to explicitly consider a facility’s ability to adequately supervise someone when making bail decisions.

Keeping the community safe
The reforms mean offenders sentenced to life imprisonment since NSW’s 1990 ‘truth in sentencing’ reforms can never be released or seek to have their sentences redetermined.

Some of NSW’s worst murderers, who have been sentenced to life with a judicial recommendation they never be released, will also no longer be able to apply for a review of their sentence.

Preventative detention powers relating to terrorism have been extended for another three years.

The Terrorism (Police Powers) Act 2002 allows police to detain someone for up to 14 days to help prevent or preserve evidence in relation to a terrorist attack.

Without this extension, the powers would have sunset in December.

Protecting vulnerable complainants Alternative verdicts will now be available for a wider range of sexual offences against children, young people in care and people with a cognitive impairment.

These complainants are especially vulnerable in the justice system, and the change helps ensure greater consistency in sexual assault trials.

Protections for child sexual assault complainants under the age of 16 will also be extended to reduce trauma.

Attorney General Michael Daley said These reforms extended youth bail laws we know are working and preventative terrorism detention powers to help keep the community safe.

“They also give courts clearer guidelines when it comes to bail to residential rehabilitation and ensures those who are sentenced to life imprisonment can never be released.

“The legislation includes important changes to better protect vulnerable complainants such as children and people with a cognitive impairment in the criminal justice system.”

Timber bridge consultation
REGIONAL COMMUNITIES across the state are invited to help shape the future of the state’s historic timber truss bridges.

For generations, these timber structures have stood the test of time, carrying families, farmers, freight and visitors across NSW.

Today, Transport for NSW manages, maintains and preserves 27 historic timber truss bridges across the state dating from 1880 to 1930.

Transport for NSW is now reviewing its Timber Truss Bridge Strategy across the state and wants to hear from the communities who live alongside and use these bridges every day.

First developed in 2010 and revised in 2012 and 2019, the Timber Truss Bridge Strategy sets out how these important structures are preserved and managed while continuing to meet the needs of a modern transport network,

The bridges within the Dubbo electorate included in the review are Beryl Bridge and Scabbing Flat Bridge.

Early consultation to inform the 2027 review is planned for five weeks from Monday 28 September to Friday 30 October.

Feedback will help inform the final plan and transport priorities for the region.

Community members can have their say through the Have Your Say website at haveyoursay.nsw.gov.au/TTBS-review , by calling 1800 167 499 or emailing RegionalProjects@transport.nsw.gov.au

Chance at it again
Eleven-year-old Chance North has a lot of ideas on how to help others, and he’s already had a lot of success with fundraisers to donate shoes and backpacks to kids in need and to create Cuddle Packs so that kids going to court can feel brave.

Last year he also saw the positive impact of his Christmas hampers, so this year, Chance has decided to take on his biggest fundraiser yet - $6000 for 60 Christmas hampers.

Chance hopes his hampers will take away just a little bit of that stress some families feel at Christmas time and remind them that their community cares about them.

If you can, he’d love it if you could donate to his mission, or help spread the word: go-fundme.com/f/chances-60-hampers-of-hope

Community Partnership Program
Applications are now open for the latest round of Transgrid’s Community Partnerships Program (CPP).

Up to $5000 is available to eligible organisations to help fund a range of initiatives spanning from community infrastructure to workshops and accessibility projects.

Successful Dubbo electorate organisations in the last round were Marathon Health, Mudgee Combined Christian Churches Christmas Luncheon & Hampers Inc and Wollar Progress Association. In the current round, organisations in the following Dubbo electorate postcodes are encouraged to apply: 2820 and 2830.

Organisations interested in applying for CPP are invited to attend an online drop-in session at 3pm to 6pm on 14, 15 or 16 October.

Applications close Sunday, 25 October. For more about CPP, or to register for an information session, visit: transgrid.com.au/community/community-partnerships-program

Long weekend reminder
Double demerits for this October long weekend start at 12am Friday 2 October and will continue until 11.59pm Monday 5 October.

If you’re travelling on our roads this weekend, remember to always drive to conditions, plan your journey before you leave, get a good night’s rest and avoid alcohol and, if you’re tired or have driven for a stretch of two hours or more, Stop, Revive, Survive.

This weekend also marks the start of daylight saving, which will take place at 2am on Sunday 4 October. While most smart devices will update automatically, any analogue clocks or appliances will need to be adjusted manually on Saturday night or Sunday morning.

The easiest way to remember which way the clock needs to turn is that it’s Spring, so the clock always ‘springs’ forward in October.

And since we end up losing one hour of sleep, you can also prepare for the coming time change by bringing your bedtime forward by 10-15 minutes over the next few days leading up to Saturday night.

Until next time,
Dugald

Allendale's last sale before a change of hands

CONSIDERING the difficulties within the management of Allendale Merino stud, Goolma, during the past couple of years, last Thursday's annual sale resulted quite positively for Tony and Penny Inder and their nephews, Hayden and Seton Croake, when 28 of 42 rams topped at $3000 and averaged $1723, an increase on last year of $466.

After surviving kidney cancer in 2024, last October, studmaster Tony Inder suffered a stroke, so the future of the stud and commercial flock of some 2000 ewes was in doubt.

While Tony survived and is now enjoying reasonable health, his two nephews, Hayden and Seton came forward and have purchased the stud and flock and leased the "Iona" property, keen to carry on with the breeding principals of Mr Inder, but plan to establish a poll flock as well.

It wouldn't be an Allendale sale without the Doherty family who have supported the stud since it transferred into the Inder hands.

Peter, Mark and Colin Doherty, Klondyke, Goolma, this year purchased five rams including the $3000 sale-topper for an average of $2150.

The $3000 ram weighing 98 kilograms and growing 18.7-micron wool of 99.5 per cent comfort factor, is by the Wanganella sire introduced after Allendale left Pooginook stud several years ago.

The Dohertys bought another Wanganella-bred son of 96kg and 19.5-micron wool for $2750.

Firm believers in Allendale rams breeding "bread and buttle wools" for decades, Larry and Helen Yeo, Murragega, Gollan, returned to secure three rams this year, as they said they had cut back sightly on their flock ewe numbers.

Their three purchases for a $1667 average topped at $2000 for a poll ram by a Wanganella sire weighing 110kg and growing 19-micron wool of 99pc comfort factor. Needing more rain than rams, Marra region woolgrower Greg Woodlock of Tuscan Pastoral Company, Ilagoola, Girilambone, usually buys 10-plus rams but returned to buy only one ram this year saying his property was in dire need of rain.

"We've only had up to 150 millimetres for the past year, so I've been downsizing slightly to keep things in equilibrium," Mr Woodlock said.

Returning to buy four rams at $1500 each, Ian and Andrew Parkes and families, Station View, Walmer, run a small self-replacing flock joining 600-ewes of 17 to 18-micron wool.

Their hoggets of 16.5-micron returned 1770-cents greasy a bale from their last shearing and this year selected rams with stronger micron wools.

"We want to micron up a bit within the flock, Ian Parkes said.

Peter Darlington of Karingal, Westella, also returned with agent Andrew Mills of MACWOOL, Dubbo, and secured six rams at $1500 each, while Mark Zell, Wattle Grove, Mendooran, also returned and bought two rams to $2500 and a $2000 average through Andrew Mills.

First-time buyer Mathew Wesley, Sunnyside, Coolah, gained two rams at $1500 each.

For the past 15 years, Tony Inder has shorn each sale ram for their new owners, who have donated proceeds of the wool the Red Kite supporting families of children with cancer, and Mr Inder said from those years Allendale and their clients would have donated at least $140,000 to the charity.

The sale was conducted by Milling Stuart Pty Ltd, Dunedoo, with Angus Stuart the auctioneer.

With the $3000 Allendale Merino stud ram sale-topper are James Gibson, Milling Stuart, Dunedoo, co-buyer Mark Doherty, Klondyke, Goolma, stud owners Seton and Hayden Croake with Tony Inder and sister Fleur Gwan, and Peter Doherty.

Jess and George Holland of Dapper Pastoral Co, Avondale, Goolma, purchased 12 rams for a $4417 average at Bella Lana stud sale.

Master barbecuer, Geoffrey Rush, father of Penny Inder, cooked up a storm as usual on the barbecue.

A triumphant return from Nanjing Wool Conference

The MacWool Decision Makers wool-grower tour arrived back in one piece from China with the Nanjing trophy under their belt. The trophy wasn’t for the best or biggest wool clip but for the coveted Nanjing Wool Market beer drinking competition. The conference now in its 28th year, for a bit of fun, started with a tug-a-war competition which didn’t go well for China, particularly against South Africa. So, 12 years ago they decided to run the beer drinking race, which they have surprisingly dominated. Australia, also surprisingly, had only won once before. This year we were invited to enter a team which we won in resounding fashion much to the excitement of our cheer squad among the 450-strong crowd. The team from Nyngan, Brewarrina, Mungindi and Coonabarabran defeated China in the preliminary round. The actual conference was a little bit more sobering with early-stage processors caught between dwindling stocks, a greasy wool market that has risen 45% in 12 months, and difficulty in passing on those increases downstream. There was no doubt as we visited the mills that supply is now a major concern. Many mill operators were of the belief that higher prices would instantly lead to higher production, but a very united message from presentations from AWI through to individual growers was noticeably clear. It takes more than one good year to reinstall confidence and competition from other commodities for land use and labour meant any production increase would be incremental. One clear message at most mills was they need more certified wool which is mostly RWS, but we think other certified schemes like ResponsiWool for AA declared clips could also be worthwhile. They often mentioned poor preparation or contamination issues and there is a lot of well-prepared clips blended with lesser quality wools so maybe more certified wools in the “mulesed with pain relief” category could be worth it. The wool market last week reflected what we saw and heard in China. There is a thirst for the finer end of the market as conditions in SA and VIC improve the availability of 19.5-micron wool increases. Both 20 and 21 microns felt some pressure last week whilst the sub-18 micron categories did ok. The odd exceptionally fine line of 12–14 micron wool received great competition and decent prices. There is no doubt there is much more elasticity in pricing in the finer end for the pipeline to absorb price increases, hence we see more upside looking ahead. Nearly 32,000 bales to be offered this week, with Macwool/Carmichael/Beecher cataloguing 1072 bales for a Wednesday sale.

DUBBO SHEEP.. 23,770 lambs. Only a fair quality yarding, lambs starting to show the effects of dry conditions. Reasonable numbers of well finished lambs. Not all the regular buyers operating. Trade new season lambs $9 cheaper, $210 to $293, ave 1080c/kg cwt. Trade old lambs $5 to $10 cheaper, 20kg to 24kg $200 to $285. Heavy lambs $10 dearer, over 24kg $275 to $390, ave1130c to 1165c/kg cwt. Heavy new season lambs to $315. Trade Merino lambs $11 cheaper, $175 to $270. Lambs to restockers $10 cheaper, crossbred and exotic fatten $140 to $248, feeders paid to $257. Merino lambs to restockers $68 to $171. Hoggets to $276.

MUTTON.. 5730 head. Mostly good quality. Light and medium weight sheep $12 dearer, better heavy sheep $2 to $4 cheaper. Merino ewes $112 to $289, crossbred ewes $220 to $312. Merino wethers $138 to $278.

WOOL.. Under 28,000 bales offered nationally last week and whilst promising signs were evident when the market opened, the end of the week result was a mixed bag. Reports from the Nanjing wool conference in China indicated steady demand from processors with low stocks to fall back on, and who have a large investment in their assets and a willingness to keep machinery running. Further down the pipeline cost pressures continue to bite as consumers demand more for less and retailer’s margins suffer. This is not to say the market is not at a comfortable level, but it does highlight the many intricate stages of our product. The Superfine types and the Merino Carding indicator outperformed the rest of the market last week and whilst nothing broader than 19.5 micron was quoted in the Northern region, the Southern region reported falls of 55 cents in the broader Merino types. 25,364 bales were sold with a passed-in rate of 8.3%. Major buyers included Endeavour Wool, Techwool and PJ Morris with support remaining solid. The supply side of the equation is estimated to increase over the coming weeks and that’s not always a bad thing as buyers may be able to better average purchases.

This remains a historically good wool market that is competing with external global factors.

Racing at Grenfell

SOON AFTER Andrew Hooper was presented with Life Membership of the Grenfell Jockey Club on Saturday, a horse he part owns, Kneel Down, won in a thrilling finish.

An innovative and popular President for many years before retiring and handing the reins to the well-liked Danny Joyce, Andrew Hooper had an anxious wait before the judge declared Kneel Down as the winner of the 1400 metres Ma-whoody’s IGA-Hilltops Equine Centre-Stevens Sand & Gravel Maiden Plate at Grenfell.

Following a last start second at the Narromine TAB meeting, the Dennis Bush, Forbes trained Kneel Down ridden by apprentice Jacob Stiff started the $1.50 favourite and after leading clearly turning for home lasted to win by a nose from Chrislyn (Diego Montes de Oca, $3.50) and Encampment (Jess Del Frari, $2.30).

Leading apprentice Jacob Stiff later won the 1670m Cultiv8Financials Young-Bromar Engineering Grenfell Cup on the Michael Mulholland, Dubbo trained Talkachino.

Leading most of the way over the fair but testing Grenfell track which features several uphill sections, Talkachino ($1.40 fav) scored by nearly two lengths from Jessandi (Jess Del Frari, $3.60) and Ferrari Man (Michael Heagney, $2.20)

Parkes trainer Sharon Jeffries supplied the other leg of a treble for Jacob Stiff with Wellspring ($2.60) which finished strongly to beat Vivek (Diego Montes de Oca, $6) and Jackets (Michael Heagney, $5) in the 1000m Frazer Family Benchmark 58 Handicap.

Much travelled jockey Michael Heagney rode a well-judged front running race on the Andrew Bourke, Boorawa trained Golden Warrior ($5.50) to beat Sammaan City (Jacob Stiff, $1.80 fav) and Lucilago (Ellen Hennessy, $4.60) in the 1400m Crutcher Developments & Coopers Civil & Crushing-Loaded Dog Benchmark 58 Handicap.

Grenfell has earned an enviable reputation for the great way trainers are treated, including a host of bonus prizes, and regularly attracts repeat visitors from Victoria.

Trained at Wangaratta by Steve Cunningham, Never Out Of Reach ($2.30) ridden by the now Dubbo based Diego Montes de Oca formerly from Argentina, came from midfield to win the 1000m Delta Ag-KMWL Agents Maiden Handicap from Miss Strategic (Jacob Stiff, $3) and Souline (Ashleigh McCabe, $4.60).

Leading throughout, the Garry Lunn, Dubbo trained Firestorm Boy ($5) gave Diego Montes de Oca a double when beating Queen Kicker (Michael Heagney, $4) and Lockadente (Jess Del Frari, $6) in the 1200m JJO’Connors CASE IH - Aston & Joyce Property Real Estate Agents Grenfell & Cowra -Class 2 Handicap.

The ‘Heart’ of Cabonne Country

BY Victoria Parkes, Yeoval Historical Society.

EARLY COLONIAL Settlement of the mid 1800s in NSW, expanded westward from Cabonne Country.

The Baldry and Yeoval districts were paramount to expansion of settlement, the prosperity of Colonial NSW and development of the Colony, past the Great Dividing Range.

07 MAY 1815, Governor Lachlan Macquarie proclaimed Bathurst a Settlement, raising the British Flag on the banks of the Macquarie River.

The Fish River which becomes The Lachlan River, flows south west and the Macquarie River flows north west, both beginning their journeys from O’Connell, near Bathurst.

13 MAY 1815, (one week later) Governor Lachlan Macquarie dispatched the British Surveyor and Explorer – George Evans, to undertake an expedition to follow the Fish/Lachlan Rivers downstream from Bathurst and explore the ‘Unknown Country’.

01 JUNE 1815 - The Expedition came across a water-course that flowed into the Lachlan River. George Evans named this watercourse Byrnes Creek (later - named the Mandagery Creek.

George Evans inscribed the date on a tree at the junction, (this location being just south of Eugowra).

28 APRIL 1817 (two years later) The Surveyor General of NSW, John Oxley accompanied by George Evans, led an Expedition to map and explore the outer reaches of the Lachlan River and the interior of NSW.

The Expedition followed the River to Where it disappeared into the Booligal Wetlands, near Hillston, then turned around heading North East.

Oxley had determined they would meet up with the Macquarie River - which flowed North West from Bathurst.

17 AUGUST 1817. John Oxley, George Evans and the Expedition Party had crossed over a watercourse the previous day, it flowed to the North East.

Oxley ascertained that this watercourse would join up with the Macquarie River. (the watercourse being the Little River).

Oxley and Evans on the 17th August, climbed a high hill to obtain a better vantage of the country that lay in front of them to the south, looking east and back to the west, what John Oxley records in his Journal “A vast tract of Champaign Country (low-lying plains of open fertile land) intermingled with hills, sometimes rising to lofty peaks”. Oxley and Evans were viewing over the Yeoval area (Cabonne Country).

1822 to the 14 JUNE 1824 The Wiradjuri Wars around Bathurst and further west took place. ‘The Squatters’, moving west of Bathurst were taking over Wiradjuri Land, planting crops, grazing stock, using the water to replenish their grazing stock and cropping practices. The Wiradjuri Traditional Hunting and Camping Lands were being destroyed, the Wiradjuri People forcibly moved on or killed, they fought back spears against rifle, Marshal Law was introduced in Dec.1824.

Late 1820s Benjamin Boyd is recorded as being one of the earliest ‘Unofficial Pastoral Land Occupiers.

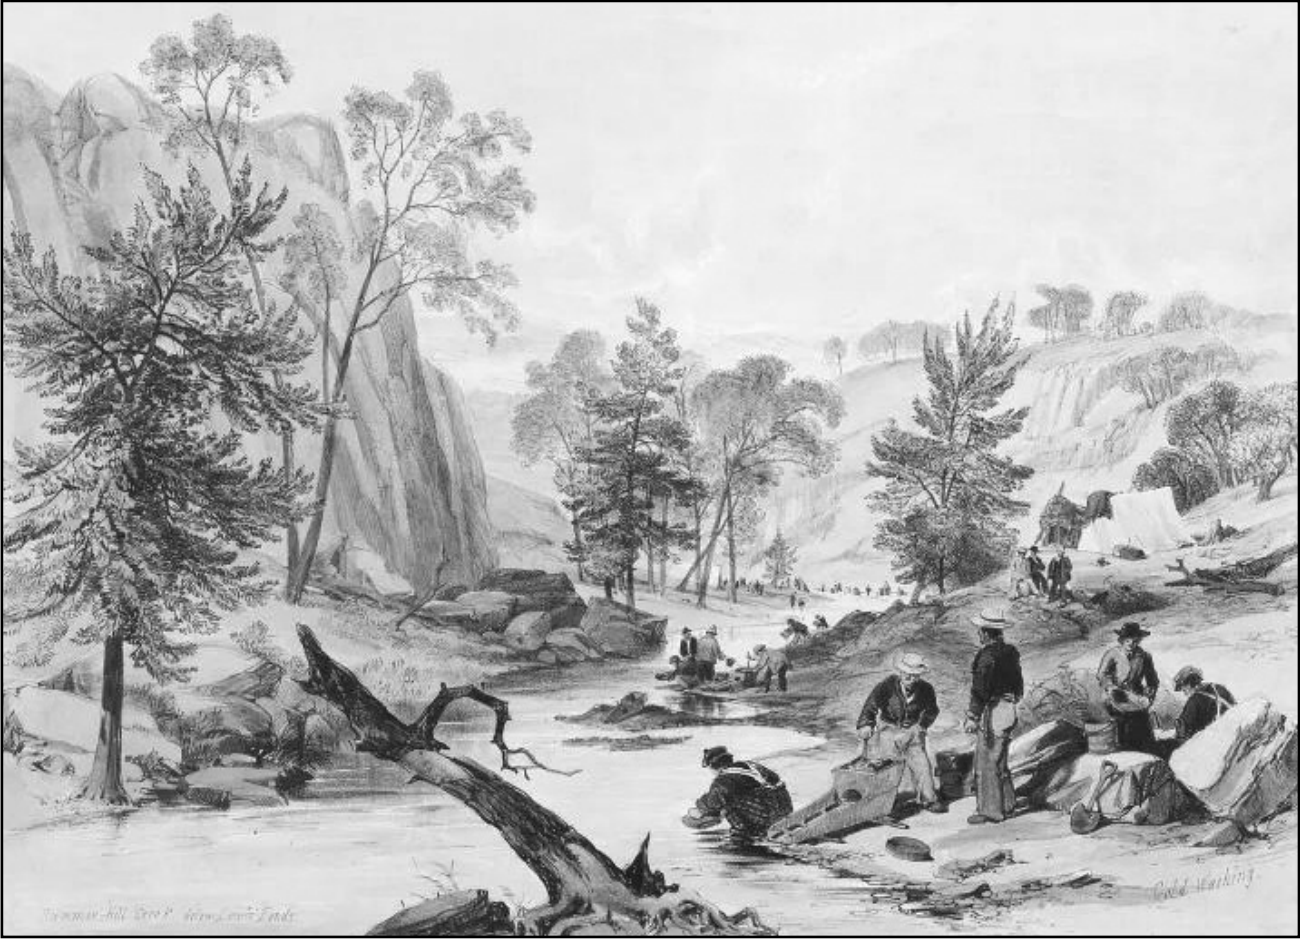

Boyd ‘Squattered’ the Land at “Buree” later spelt ‘Boree’. The Pastural Run was beyond the ‘Official Limits’ - outside civilised settlement. (Cabonne Country).

06 APRIL 1835 Thomas Mitchell - Surveyor General of NSW, climbed and mapped Mount Canobolas and its surrounds.

He travelled the bush tracks from Bathurst to “Buree” (Boree), drawing a basic Geographical Map, of the unknown terrain. (Cabonne Country).

1840 – Benjamin Boyd extends his ‘Squattered Land’ - he takes up land of 66,000 acres, under ‘Depasturing Licence’.

This Pastoral Squatter Run, Boyd names ‘GONOO’ it covers the land from Wellington to the ‘ Balderodgery Pastoral Run’ (Baldry), then joins ‘Obella Pastoral Run’ (Obley) an back across to Wellington. (Cabonne Country). ***

Summer Hill Creek below Lewis Ponds.

ACTS PASSED UNDER COLONIAL GOVERNMENT

1839: The Unauthorised Occupation Act’ was passed to regulate the ‘Squatters’ who had moved livestock onto land, outside the Official Boundaries.

1846: Imperial Waste Land Occupation Act - allowed Squatters to obtain Pastoral Leases and secure land for up to 14 years.

‘Counties of Cabonne 1800s. The area we now call ‘Cabonne Country on the Old Colonial maps was made up of Three Counties: Wellington County covered: Molong, Cumnock, Ophir and Yeoval. Ashburnham covered: Canowindra, Cargo, Cudal, Eugowra, Manildra. Bathurst County covered: Mt Canobolas, Boranore, Close rural localities. ***

Pastoralists to Gold Miners

The Goldrush began in Cabonne Country!

12th FEBRUARY 1851. Gold was found at Lewis Ponds Creek, Ophir, followed in the April, Gold being found at Oakey Creek, Tambaroora - Hill End.

1861. Gold was found at ‘Black Ridge’ (now Forbes) in June 1861. 30,000 people flocked into the area. A ‘Tent City’ rapidly grew. The population by 1863, had dropped to 3500.

AUGUST 1862. Gold was found at ‘Currajong’ - James Pugh crossed The Goobang Creek and founded ‘The Pioneer Reef’ Mine just south east of Parkes.

In 1871, Alluvial gold was found nearby, this was named ‘Bushmans Lead Mine’.

1873, the Gold Settlements joined to become the town of Parkes.

28 JANUARY 1868 John Wynne discovered Reef Gold between Obley and Yeoval. The ‘Goodrich Mine’ was developed. A ‘Battery’ was set up to crush the Gold-Ore, connected to the Mine by a Tramline.

Coaching days of Cobb & Co. – Cabonne Country
26 JUNE 1862 Cobb & Co arrives in Bathurst, relocating its headquarters from Melbourne Victoria.

The Company’s Manager, James Rutherford, was a ‘Man with a Vision’.

Rutherford conceived to provide Coach Transport to the Goldrush Settlements - bringing supplies, transporting the Gold, carrying the Miners and their families from one Goldrush Town to another.

James Rutherford obtained a ‘Crown Lease’ of 630 acres, part of The ‘Balderodgery Pastoral Run’.

Rutherford’s envisagement was to develop this area as the ‘Heart’ of his ‘Cobb & Co Coach - Goldfields Trail’.

Rutherford built The ‘Ontario Hotel’ and two Horse Change/Supply Depots in south and west of the locality of ‘Baldry’.

Coaches came from the eastern Goldfields of Hill End and Ophir, to link up at ‘Baldry’ and the Gold-trails south to Parkes and onto Forbes.

Coaches travelled the Trails northwest to Obley, picked up the gold from Goodrich, turned southwest to Tomingley, Peakhill and onto Parkes picked up more gold, onto Forbes.

Gold then taken back by Cobb & Co Coach, fire-arms at the ready, to Bathurst along ‘The Gold Escort Way’.

Swimmers shine at Blayney carnival

WELLINGTON AMATEUR Swimming Club swimmers made an impressive start to the season at the Mountains and Plains Short Course Carnival held in Blayney during the weekend.

Competing against strong opposition from clubs across the Blue Mountains, Bathurst, Orange and Lithgow, Wellington swimmers Lakyn Dowton, Imogen Jones, Roman Dowton and Elsie Gain produced outstanding performances despite having had minimal training leading into the meet.

With swimmers limited to a maximum of five events each, all four Wellington representatives returned home with medals.

Lakyn Dowton had an exceptional day in the pool, claiming two gold, two silver and one bronze medal.

Imogen Jones dominated her events, winning gold in every race she contested. Roman Dowton also impressed, collecting three gold medals and one silver, while Elsie Gain our youngest swimmer rounded out the team's success with one gold, two silver and one bronze medal.

The results are a fantastic reward for the dedication and

Her willingness to give her time across multiple teams, support players and coaches, and contribute to the continued development of players at different levels made her a deserving recipient of the award.
