Morning tea tuka a dreamtime delight

Lemon Myrtle Shortbreads shared by thousands of hospital patients during NAIDOC Week.

BY MARK GRIGGS

TENS-OF-THOUSANDS of public hospital patients throughout NSW were given the opportunity of eating a Lemon Myrtle Shortbread with their morning tea last Thursday.

The biscuits, made with native indigenous flavours, were a tribute by HealthShare NSW to last week's NAIDOC Week celebrated throughout the nation.

As well, this was the first time the state health department promoted NAIDOC Week and as a first, an indigenous company to supply.

What's even better is that Wellington's Dreamtime Tuka, operated by Herb Smith, was appointed the task to supply 20,000 biscuit twin packs for distribution.

Seen as another milestone for Dreamtime Tuka, Mr Smith said he was honoured to be the initial supplier to HealthShare NSW.

"Our biscuits are an indigenous flavoured product, which blended well into Naidoc celebrations," he said.

"This is a special week for an indigenous company to be selected to supply a product which celebrates our culture and heritage.

"I think for the department to take this first step is a big thing all round."

Mr Smith said the planning and logistics were thorough.

"After final negotiations we forward the biscuit to the department's distributors, who delivered them to every hospital in the state – a mammoth task, but smoothly orchestrated."

He said the feedback from the distributors was fantastic.

"Everything turned up on time and it went well."

"It's been a very positive promotion all-round," he said.

"And a great breakthrough for an indigenous company like ours."

In the past two decades Dreamtime Tuka has achieved several major goals.

Qantas airlines introduced snacks on interstate runs and later introduced product to the international airline menus.

Just last year Woolworths introduced Dreamtime Tuka to their supermarket shelves and by reports the product has become very popular.

Mr Smith said there were still many irons in the fire and more announcements were pending.

"It takes a lot of time and work to get your product known, but we are working non-stop to enlarge our distribution," he said.

Wellington's Herb Smith shows twin packs of his Dreamtime Tuka Lemon Myrtle Shortbread biscuits just like the 20,000 packs shared by thousands of hospital patients during morning tea throughout the state last Thursday.

North Yeoval officially joins Cabonne

AS OF July 1, the boundary realignment has officially taken effect that incorporates North Yeoval into the Cabonne Local Government Area, with Cabonne Shire assuming responsibility for rates, services, and all other Council related enquiries.

The proposal was jointly progressed by both Cabonne Shire Council and Dubbo Regional Council throughout 2024 and 2025, with a formal application lodged with the Office of Local Government on 13 January 2026.

The boundary realignment was celebrated at a community event last Friday, where residents were recognised for their years of advocacy to bring this milestone to fruition.

This boundary adjustment has been 141 years in the making, with many locals mentioning that their relatives had been on council decades ago and had advocated back then for the change.

Cabonne Shire Mayor Kevin Beatty and his team hosted a wonderful event which was also attended by Andrew Gee MP and Phil Donato MP.

Discover your local Library on ‘Open Day’

CELEBRATING LIBRARY and Information Week from Monday, July 27 to Sunday, August 2, Wellington Library will be hosting an Open Day on Thursday, July 30.

Mayor Josh Black said the Library Open Day was a great opportunity for people who may not have stepped foot into the library before to come and see all the different free resources and programs available to the community.

“Wellington’s Macquarie Regional Library team will be on hand to show you around the library, answer questions and assist you to get a library card and start borrowing,” Cllr Black said.

“Come and discover what your local library has to offer and how they have changed.”

Libraries are the heart of the community, providing access to books, computers and digital resources, a place to study, read or work and social connection.

According to the State Library of NSW’s Balancing the Books report, only 40 per cent of NSW residents have a library card.

“Libraries are a community place that are free to join and offer something for everyone in the community from children’s programs to study spaces for teens as well as books clubs and programs for seniors,” Cllr Black said.

“Your local Library is a place where people feel welcome and can enjoy all the library has to offer as well as accessing the online library 24/7.

Best of all it’s free to join.”

Cllr Matt Wright, Mayor Josh Black and Cllr Jen Cowley getting ready for Libray Week.

At the Library Open Day, the Library will also be hosting a Reading Relay from 10am to 5pm where people can sign up for a 20-minute slot of reading in a special reading nook.

The aim is to have someone reading for the duration of the open day. Sign up by contacting the Wellington Library.

Not a member of Macquarie Regional Library? Join between July 27 and August 2 and go in the draw to win a pair of Apple Air Pods.

Winner will be drawn Monday, August 3.

It's official

LAST FRIDAY was celebration day at Yeoval when more than 60 residents teamed-up with dignitaries to officially unite North Yeoval with the rest of the town.

It's been just over 140 years since a line was drawn through the middle of Buckinbah Creek during the introduction of counties, and over the years, North Yeoval was severed from the rest of the town – and two councils whose border was Buckinbah Creek.

Friday's official ribbon cutting on the pedestrian bridge spanning Buckinbah Creek had Dubbo Regional Council hand over the northern part of Yeoval to Cabonne council in a fitting ceremony accompanied by the mayors and general managers of both councils, local state MP Phil Donato and Federal member for Calare, Andrew Gee.

Cabonne mayor Kevin Beaty said today was a celebration of Yeoval becoming one community under one local government area.

He said many people including former Cabonne councillors had pushed hard for this to happen many decades ago.

"This adjustment is more than a line on a map," he said.

"It reflects what all have known, that Yeoval is one community.

"This achievement is the result of years of advocacy, community feedback and cooperation and demonstrates what can be achieved when councils work together."

DRC mayor Josh Black said it was a great day for Yeoval.

"This has been a fantastic corroboration between Cabonne council and DRC, but something that should have happened a long time ago."

Federal Member for Calare, Andrew Gee said the uniting of the community was a good, common-sense outcome.

Landlord penalties now in force for premises selling illicit tobacco and vapes

NEW LAWS targeting commercial landlords who knowingly permit tenants to sell illicit tobacco and vaping goods from their premises are now in place, as part of the State Government’s continued crack down on the illicit market.

The new offence applies to landlords who are aware of the sale of illicit tobacco and vaping goods from their premises and knowingly permit this activity to continue, without taking steps to report or evict the tenant.

It carries a maximum penalty of one year imprisonment, a fine of $165,000, or both.

The government’s reforms include:

- * a new offence for the possession of a commercial quantity of illicit tobacco with a maximum penalty of over $1.5 million and 7 years’ imprisonment, or both,
- * new penalties for the sale of illicit tobacco with a maximum penalty of over $1.5 million and 7 years’ imprisonment, or both,
- * the introduction of short-term (up to 90 days) and long-term (up to 12 months) closure orders for premises selling illicit tobacco, illegal vaping goods, or selling tobacco or non-tobacco smoking products without a licence,
- * new offences and penalties for anyone who breaches these closure orders, including for entering closed premises or selling products from closed premises new lease termination powers for landlords where a closure order is in place,

- * new nation-leading offences for falsely claiming to be licensed, resisting seizure, and attempting to retake seized products.

As of June 26, NSW Health had issued 321 short-term closure orders since November 2025, with 162 currently in force.

Several premises selling tobacco in Wellington were closed down from June 30 to September 27 due to suspicion of selling illicit tobacco.

The government is aware the sale of illicit tobacco and vaping products continues to evolve, with some attempting to obscure and avoid the enforcement activities of NSW Health Inspectors, by using QR codes and social media communications to facilitate the ongoing sale of illicit tobacco to customers, after a closure order has been issued.

NSW Police and NSW Health are working together to identify these methods and pivot their enforcement strategies to shut down this activity.

Members of the public can lodge complaints about retailers they believe are doing the wrong thing.

Minister for Police and Counter-terrorism Yasmin Catley said illicit tobacco and vapes were not harmless products.

“They fuel a black market and criminal activity – which undercuts honest businesses and puts community health and safety at risk,” she said.

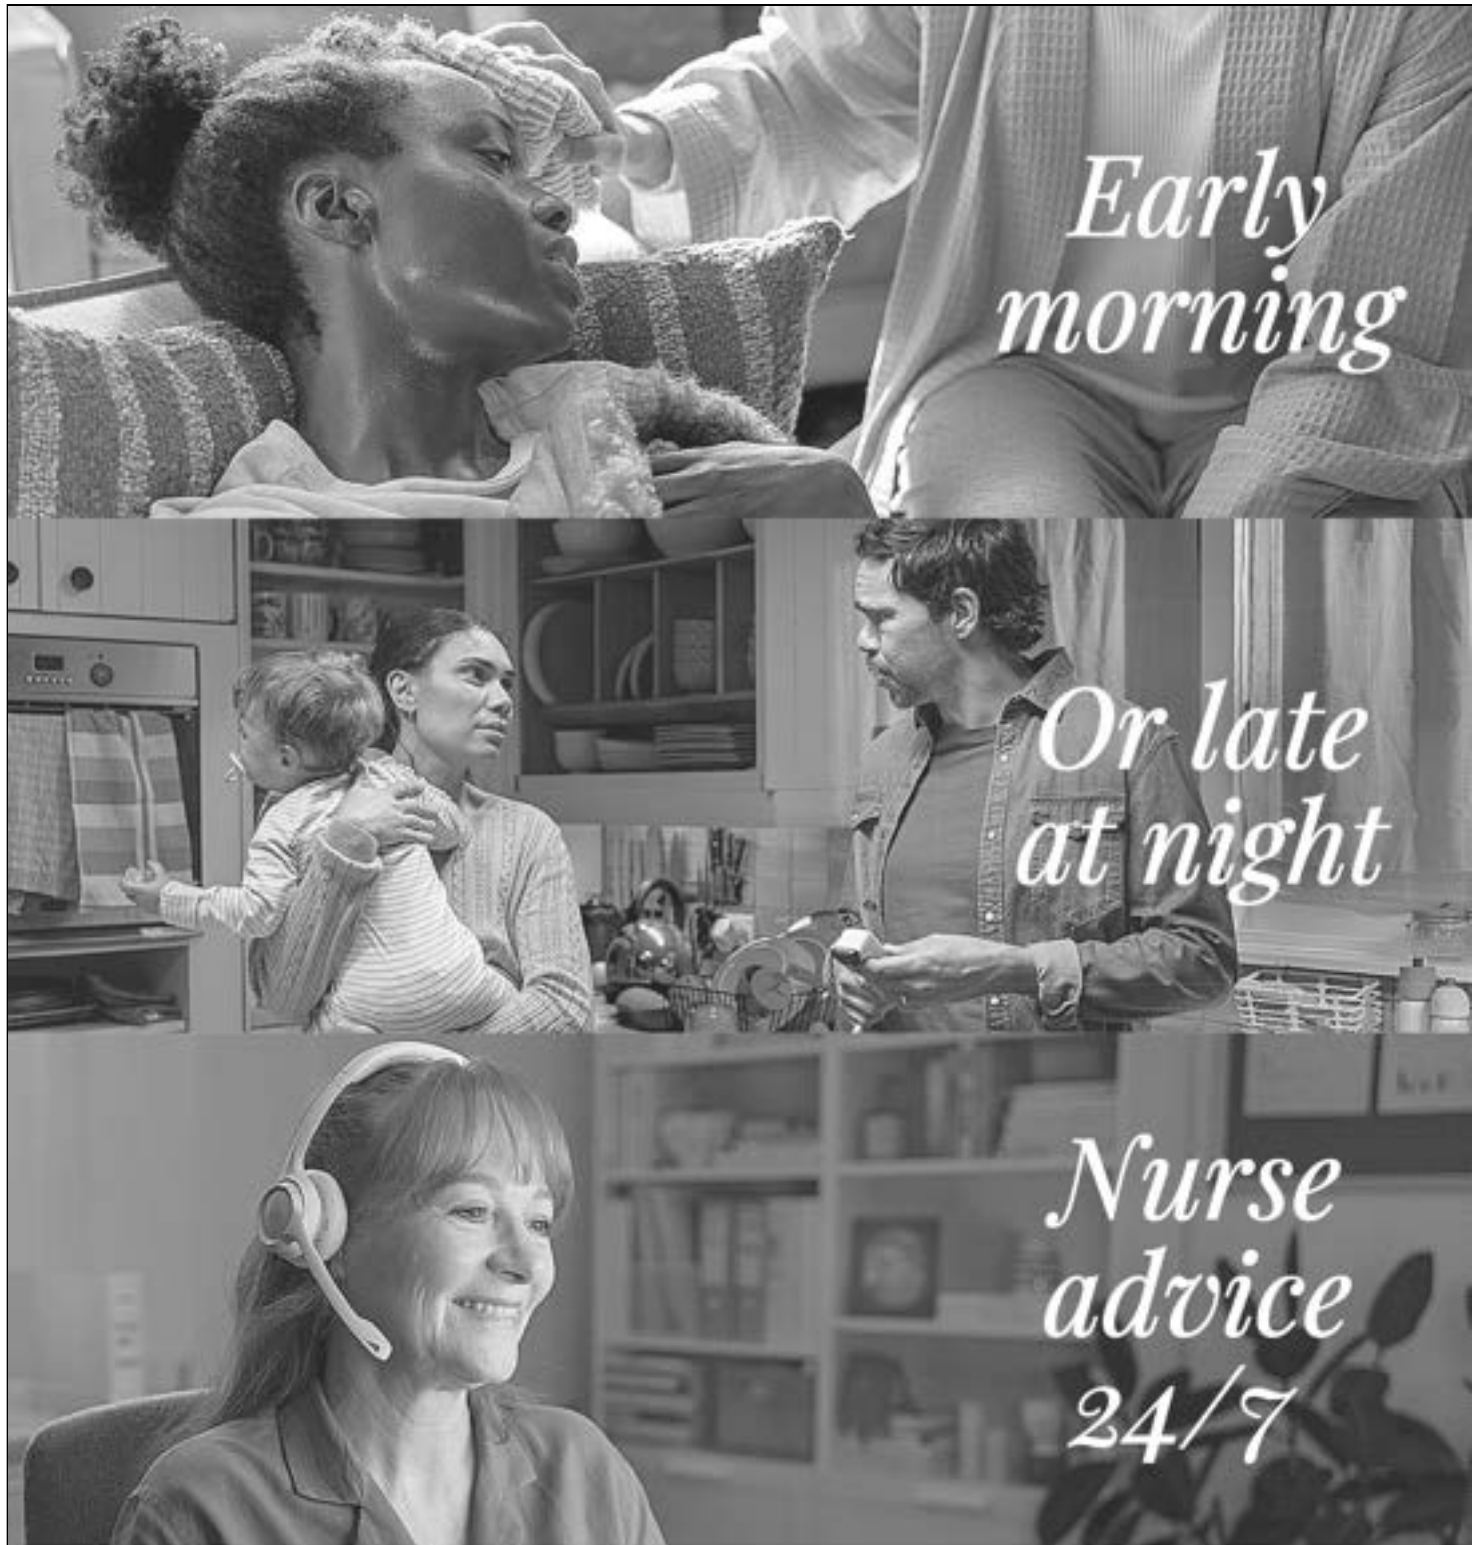

“If a landlord knows their shop is being used to sell illicit and illegal products and wilfully turns a blind eye, they are part of the problem.

“This Government is not mucking around. If you are helping this illegal trade continue, whether you are behind the counter or holding a lease, you should expect the authorities at your door.”

Minister for Health Ryan Park said landlords who intentionally allow tenants to sell illicit tobacco and illegal vapes were not only undermining legitimate business operations, but they were exposing their community to associated criminal activities.

“This legislation builds on our extensive efforts to crack down on illegal tobacco and vapes across NSW with some of the toughest penalties in the country, and sends a clear message to retailers and landlords who are doing the wrong thing.

“We continue to tackle the problem of illicit tobacco head on, despite the federal government’s tobacco excise driving the black market.”

New community grant helps keep region sparkling

Backing Aussie manufacturing

COUNCIL HAS launched its new Community Clean-Up Fund, allowing community organisations to access Council’s waste facilities free of charge when undertaking approved litter clean-up activities across the region.

Eligible groups, who have their grant application approved, will complete their clean-up activity then have the waste disposal fee waived at entry to their local DRC waste facility.

The Community Clean-Up Fund aims to support volunteer and community-led clean-up activities across the region, encourage responsible disposal of waste collected during clean-ups, and improve local amenity.

Mayor Josh Black encouraged all eligible groups to apply for the grant and get involved in helping keep the region clean.

“We’ve got some great community groups here that are passionate about helping keep our region looking fantastic.

“I’d encourage these groups to apply for the Community Clean-Up Fund to assist them in their activities,” Clr Black said.

Eligible activities include general litter collected from public spaces, including parks or waterways, waste collected during organised illegal dumping clean-ups, and debris of vegetation collected as part of environmental clean-ups.

The funding stream is open for applications all year, and is eligible for community-based organisations, registered charities, incorporated groups, and not-for-profits to apply for.

Four local groups share in the latest ACEREZ grants program

FOUR WELLINGTON projects are among 46 receiving more than $2.1 million in funding through Round 1 of the ACEREZ Community Grants Program.

This support is flowing to initiatives that strengthen public amenity, health, education, agriculture, sport, and Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, creating lasting social and economic benefits across the Central-West Orana region.

The ACEREZ Community Grants Program is a three-year, multimillion-dollar investment, designed to build resilient communities and deliver enduring benefits.

ACEREZ is committed to investing in the future of regional communities and leaving a legacy beyond the construction of the transmission project.

Keep an eye out for the next round of grants opening in August.

The ACEREZ Community Grants Program complements funding already being delivered by EnergyCo through the $128 million Community and Employment Benefit Program, providing communities with multiple avenues of support as the Central-West Orana REZ progresses.

Wellington groups receiving funds include Mount Arthur (R85000) Reserve Land Manager - Mount Arthur Reserve which gained funding in the Significant Grants category.

In the Small Grants category, Friends of Burrendong Arboretum - The Wiradjuri Collection (Stage One); Wellington Athletics Inc - Equipping Wellington Little Athletics for Growth; and Wellington Men’s Shed - Concrete Apron were awarded grants.

Right now, billions of taxpayers’ dollars are spent on massive government contracts, but too often, local businesses get passed over for overseas alternatives.

We’ve got to be supporting Australian industry and backing in local workers!

That is why I seconded the Local Industry Preference Bill in Parliament alongside Dai Le MP, Independent Federal Member of Fowler - Western Sydney.

This new bill mandates that a minimum of 30 per cent of all Commonwealth projects must use Australian-made products.

Right here in the Central West, we have incredible engineering and manufacturing firms proving that we can still make things in country Australia.

If we are spending Australian taxpayers’ money, it should be backing our regional fabricators, our food processors, and our primary producers.

That’s why I fought to expand the Future Made in Australia legislation to include our fantastic local food processing and agriculture sectors - supporting local food manufacturers in Lithgow, Manildra, Blayney, Orange, Bathurst and across the Central West!

It’s time to get behind our manufacturers, our food processors, and our primary producers.

I back this bill to the hilt!

Rushed gun laws destroying local business

Last week in a speech to Parliament, I stood up for law-abiding gun owners and local businesses who are bearing the brunt of the government’s rushed firearm laws.

The new gun laws were a political response to the evil crime committed at Bondi last year.

Instead of calling for a Royal Commission into how this atrocity came to happen, the Government’s first reaction was to rush through tighter gun controls.

The new gun laws have been used to distract from the real issues and Government agency failings - which could and should have prevented the horrific attack.

These knee-jerk reforms are unfairly penalising the people who already do the right thing.

Our local small business owners have put their lives, their energy, and massive financial investments into their enterprises.

Now, because of these rushed laws, these local businesses are literally being destroyed.

We need to get to the bottom of what actually happened, protect our regional small businesses, and stop punishing law-abiding gun owners for political reasons.

It’s time state and federal governments stopped deflecting and started dealing with the genuine issues this country needs to address.

I HAVE tried baking my own bread.

Like many enthusiastic home cooks, I bought a bread maker, convinced it would transform my mornings.

I’d carefully pour in the ingredients at night, set the timer, then wake the next morning to the wonderful smell of freshly baked bread.

It was fantastic... for about a week.

As satisfying as homemade bread was, it simply felt like too much effort.

So, you can imagine my complete lack of enthusiasm whenever someone proudly tells me about their decades-old sourdough starter.

They usually have a clever name for it too – Clint Yeastwood or Bread Pitt seem to be favourites – and they speak about feeding it with the same affection usually reserved for a family pet.

If using commercial yeast felt like hard work, nurturing a living jar of flour and water sounded like taking the hobby to an entirely different level.

Every now and again, though, technology

6 THURSDAY, JULY 16, 2026, WELLINGTON & DISTRICT LEADER

quietly delivers on one of its oldest promises: giving us back a little time.

The latest example isn’t another robot vacuum or smart lawn mower. Instead, it’s a gadget that automates perhaps the most tedious part of sourdough baking.

The Sourdough Sidekick is a machine with a remarkably simple purpose. It looks after your sourdough starter, automatically feeding it flour and water on a carefully calculated schedule so it’s ready at exactly the right moment for baking.

Rather than remembering daily feedings or wondering whether your starter is healthy enough, the machine does the routine maintenance for you.

A sourdough starter is essentially a living culture of wild yeast and bacteria.

Unlike commercial yeast, a sourdough starter demands regular care.

Ignore it for too long and it weakens. Feed it too early or too late and your bread won’t rise properly. It’s this ongoing commitment that stops many would-be bakers from ever getting started.

The clever part isn’t simply dispensing flour and water. The machine adjusts its feeding schedule based on room temperature, mixes everything automatically and even calculates how much starter you’ll need for your next loaf.

Connected to a smartphone app, it can notify you when everything is ready, allowing you to plan your baking days in advance.

This raises an interesting question.

At what point does automating an old-fashioned hobby take away the very thing that makes it enjoyable?

After all, people bake sourdough because they enjoy the process. It’s slow, deliberate and satisfying in a world that increasingly values speed and convenience.

For many, feeding a starter has become part of a relaxing routine. Replacing that ritual with a machine might seem like buying a robot to complete your jigsaw puzzle.

But perhaps that’s looking at it the wrong way.

The history of technology has always been about removing the repetitive parts of a task while leaving us with the enjoyable bits.

Washing machines didn’t stop us wearing clean clothes. Dishwashers didn’t ruin family dinners. They simply eliminated chores that few people genuinely loved doing.

Maybe sourdough baking is following exactly the same path.

Instead of asking people to commit to feeding a starter every day, devices like this lower the barrier to entry.

Someone who would never have attempted sourdough before may suddenly discover the joy of shaping dough, experimenting with recipes and pulling a crusty loaf from the oven.

The machine isn’t replacing creativity; it’s removing the maintenance.

It’s also another reminder that the future of technology isn’t always about artificial intelligence, flying cars or humanoid robots.

Sometimes innovation simply means finding clever ways to remove life’s little inconveniences, leaving us more time to enjoy the parts we actually care about.

YEoval IS FINALLY UNITED!

For over 140 years, the wonderful community of Yeoval has been artificially split by a line on a map.

Part of the town was in Dubbo Regional Council, and the other part was in Cabonne Council. Local residents have had to deal with the bizarre red-tape anomalies of a divided town for generations - even needing special permission just to be buried in the local cemetery on the other side of the creek!

Thankfully, all of that changed last week.

After decades and decades of community advocacy, the boundary adjustment is officially over the line.

North Yeoval has officially joined Yeoval under the Cabonne Council umbrella!

Overnight, the town's official population has shot up by over 100 people - making it the fastest-growing community in Australia today!

This is a fantastic, common-sense outcome that cuts right through the government red tape.

It means a more united voice for future advocacy, better continuity of local services, and no more unnecessary administrative headaches.

Huge congratulations to everyone who fought so tirelessly over the years to make this happen.

It is not easy slicing through red tape, but by working together, this incredible community got the job done.

This historic move will stand Yeoval in wonderful stead for generations to come.

Now finally, Yeoval is officially ONE!

BACK TO BUCKINBAH FESTIVAL A GREAT SUCCESS

The recent Back to Buckinbah Festival at Yeoval was another outstanding success! It's a huge event for this vibrant country community and I was very proud to be a sponsor!

Over 1000 people attended, blitzing last year's attendance!

Now in its second year, it drew people from all over the region and featured markets, stage coach rides, music, a bull ride and fireworks!

Congratulations and thank you to the team from Grow Yeoval for this mighty celebration with funds raised going back to the Yeoval community!

SWEET TREATS & COMMUNITY SPIRIT IN CUMNOCK!

I had a wonderful visit to the historic, community-owned not-for-profit Cumnock General Store!

This 141-year-old local treasure does it all! Not only serving up hot coffees, it keeps local post office services running and also offers an absolutely delicious range of homemade slices!

It was fantastic to catch up with Allison and Eliza to chat about how this outstanding community-run venture is bringing everyone together.

Make sure you drop in, say G'day and support them next time you're passing through!

Wellington TAFE shares in renewables upgrade

WELLINGTON TAFE will share in the Federal and State governments’ investment of almost $25 million to expand clean energy training facilities and grow the vocational education and training workforce needed to support New South Wales’ energy transition.

The joint investment includes: $16.7 million to upgrade and expand training facilities at six TAFE NSW campuses including Wellington; and $8.1 million to strengthen the capability and capacity of teachers, trainers and assessors delivering clean energy training across NSW.

A $3.6 million investment will establish electrotechnology training facilities for the first time and help meet growing demand for electricians and clean energy-aligned trades, while supporting students to train closer to home.

The six training facility upgrades will be delivered across to Campbelltown, Cessnock, Dubbo, Tamworth, Wellington and Wyong.

On top of new and upgraded training facilities, the investment will strengthen the workforce responsible for delivering clean energy training across NSW.

The $8.1 million workforce package includes: scholarships to help businesses build workplace training and assessment capability and support existing workers to become qualified workplace trainers and assessors; upskilling and retraining for up to 500 TAFE NSW teachers in emerging areas like solar panel installation, battery storage, hydrogen safety and electric vehicle servicing; and a shared teacher resourcing pilot between TAFE NSW and NSW Department of Education to create pathways into renewable energy careers for secondary school students.

Together, these investments will ensure NSW has the facilities, training capability and workforce needed to support growing clean energy industries.

Federal Minister for Skills and Training Andrew Giles said Australia’s clean energy transition is one of the biggest opportunities of our time.

“And for the first time young people in these communities will be able to train locally and step straight into secure, well-paid jobs in the electrical trade.

“By partnering with the State Government to back TAFE and school partnerships, we are creating a clear path from school to a good job in renewable energy and ensuring Australians are the ones building and benefiting from this transformation.”

New South Wales Minister for Skills, TAFE and Tertiary Education Steve Whan said the clean energy future of NSW depends on having the skilled workforce to build it, maintain it and power it.

“That’s why we’re investing in both modern training TAFE NSW facilities and the teachers, trainers and assessors who help deliver those skills.

“Building the clean energy workforce takes more than new infrastructure.

“By investing in training facilities, industry capability and teacher development, we’re delivering the skills that work for the jobs NSW will need in the decades ahead.”

Diabetes Week

EVERY FIVE minutes, someone in Australia is diagnosed with diabetes – a condition where there is too much glucose in the blood because the body can’t make insulin, isn’t producing enough insulin or can’t effectively use the insulin it does make.

It’s a serious and chronic condition which can affect the entire body, and while there is currently no cure, it is possible to lead an enjoyable life by learning about the condition and effectively managing it.

But what often goes unseen is the reality of living with the condition: the extra decisions, the constant monitoring, the mental and emotional load that comes with managing diabetes every day.

For many people, it’s something they carry quietly, while getting on with work, family and everyday life.

During National Diabetes Week (12–18 July), Diabetes Australia is amplifying their voices through ‘Living Out Loud’ - a campaign inviting people living with diabetes, their carers, researchers, health professionals, and clinicians to say, out loud and without apology, the one thing they’ve always wished people knew.

This week I caught up with 13-year-old James and his parents Rebecca and Steve to chat about James’ recent Type 1 Diabetes diagnosis and how it has impacted their family.

James was diagnosed in March this year following an illness that initially presented as gastro. After a period of shock and adjustment, James is now managing his diabetes with a Continuous Glucose Monitor (CGM) and insulin pump. He can do all the things he did before his diagnosis, including cricket and swimming.

James wishes people knew more about the different types of diabetes, and in particular Type 1.

He says most people associate the cause of diabetes with lifestyle choices such as diet, and while this may contribute to Type 2 diabetes, it is not a factor in developing Type 1 diabetes because it’s an auto-immune condition and cannot be prevented; it’s lifelong, there’s currently no cure and, in James’ own words, is definitely not “caused by eating too many muffins.”

From a parental perspective, Rebecca and Steve want others to know that technology like the CGM doesn’t make James’ condition easier to manage because there is no such thing as a standard dose of insulin. While the monitor helps James to understand his insulin level, he will always need to stay on top of the amount of carbohydrates he eats and supplement his insulin dose based on his numbers.

Short Story - Part 3

Easter Saturday

A champ gets up when he can’t” Jack Dempsey.

Cal spat out the words, “It aint over yet, Sam. I aint finished with that big bastard, not yet I aint. I’m just getting started. It’s three rounds and it’s twenty-five if he goes down and twenty- five to win. Have the lot ready Samuel my friend, because it’s all coming my way.”

“Don’t kid yourself Mouse - it’s over - you’re beat-up bad - look at your eyes - you can’t go another round, take any more. Throw it in. You’ll get hurt bad and I don’t want that. The Bear can be dangerous - hits real hard. He’s tricky too - can do a lot more damage yet.”

“You’re talking crap Sam, and you know it. Your big boy’s short on juice now and punchin’ like a girl — he’s out of tricks too. His legs are gone; I can feel it - and I still got juice - I’m just getting started Sam - just comin’ good and I’m about to shorten your big boy up - he won’t be laughing again - not today anyway. I’m going to put your big boy in the shade, pal.”

The ref, in one quick movement, turned away, threw his hands in the air and said, “Good luck then, you bloody big fool. It’s your funeral.”

The last round was something else - it surprised me - though it shouldn’t have — I should have remembered how those Barbarian Wars ended all those years ago.

Right from the bell Cal was out there, stalking the big man now moving like a leapwalker. Cal hit him hard and often. The Bear, his legs gone, tried hard to clinch, to do nothing more than hang on.

His eyes were dull and slow moving as Cal got him hard in the ribs. Now, one of the big man’s eyes was swollen, his face also showing a lot of blood. In one exchange his mouthguard spun loose across the canvas. People clapped and cheered.

In another minute the big man, his feet now leaden, was desperate for the bell.

Standing there, motionless, his gloves down at his sides, it was easy. One big left sent the Bear sprawling backwards into the crowd.

Slowly picking himself up, he scrambled back into the ring then, almost running, made a wild swing at Cal’s groin. Cal saw it coming, slipped sideways, collecting him with a hard right. The big man dropped; this time staying down for a full minute, maybe longer.

Everyone yelled and clapped. Women cried and beer cans flew while little boys gawked and the dog barked and barked. Pandemonium really; anyhow, that’s all I can remember of how it ended.

I was leaving, filing out, most of us still wondering how it came to be.

The Bear, a bloodied towel draped over his head, stumbled out the back and collapsed down on a stool.

Cal’s friends and various hanger-oners were chatting ten to the dozen, laughing, reliving every punch, slapping Cal on the back, calling him champ, saying one helluva fight mate, etcetera.

Cal pulled on his shirt, wiped the blood from his face and took a long swig from a bottle.

The spieler came over, and counting out the money, said, ‘Yu dun good there Mouse - real good. Now I know for sure some of you Delungra boys really are tough. You’re the definite thing, as tough as they come. You deserve every dollar. You done good, that’s for sure.’

Off to one side a short, fat gentleman in shirt and tie, with a slick comb- over, thick, horn-rimmed glasses and a blotchy red face was one of the last to leave the tent.

At Sam’s final few words, he paused, stood perfectly still for several seconds, then turning around, said, “It’s not done good — it’s done well.”

“Jesus, not you again, yu’ nasty little pervert, haven’t you gone ‘ome yet and swallowed some of that ratsack?”

“It’s not ome — it’s home with a “h” — and it’s not swallowed — it’s swallowed. Didn’t your mother teach you anything?”

“Yu ain’t exactly a quick learner yourself, are you now pal?”

There was a muffled cry. I glanced around as Sam’s fists smashed hard into the little man’s face so that he sprawled backwards onto the canvas, his face bloodied, his shattered glasses flying through the air.

I turned and hurried on, getting lost in the crowd of happy faces, tired horses, exhausted clowns, and the shining eyes of little boys, not once looking back as the policeman hurried towards the very loud, refined cries for help.

Redbacks’ complete clean sweep on Ladies Day

WELLINGTON REDBACKS made it a perfect day at home on Saturday, winning all three grades against the Parkes Boars in Round 11 of the New Holland Cup as the club marked its annual Ladies Day.

The Women’s XV set the tone in a match that could not have been closer, holding on for a 23 to 22 win that was decided in the dying seconds.

Neither side could break clear across the 80 minutes, and it took every bit of composure from the Redbacks women to see the game out as the siren sounded.

Men’s Second Grade kept the momentum rolling with a commanding performance, running out 62 to 8 winners in front of the home crowd.

The Redbacks were relentless from start to finish and never let Parkes settle, turning early pressure into a comfortable and well-deserved result.

First Grade closed out the day in style, defeating the Boars 56 to 14.

The Redbacks were clinical from the opening whistle, building an early lead and controlling the contest through to full time in one of their most complete displays of the season.

Saturday was also a special occasion off the field, with the club celebrating Ladies Day and recognising the women who play, volunteer and support the Redbacks week in and week out.

Their contribution across every grade and every part of the club continues to be central to its success.

The clean sweep caps a strong stretch for Wellington and keeps the club firmly in the hunt as the New Holland Cup season rolls on.

The Redbacks will look to carry the form into next weekend against Narromine in Narromine. Abe Dearmer

As we approach midway in our winter season, the low temperatures should start to rise.

Canola prices have increased significantly in recent years. Prices peaked in mid-2022 at $1100/t relative to the early 20’s prices of $450/t, despite a fall in May 2023 and lower prices since then, this crop is still of significant market value currently sitting at $774/t cad.

Dick Honan says domestic manufacturing of low carbon liquid fuels strengthens Australia’s sovereign fuel capability, supports regional industry and provides a strategic buffer against global supply shocks. Manildra Group at their Shoalhaven starches site, value-add to Australian wheat by converting wheat starch into ethanol as part of an integrated, sustainable production process. With the right domestic signal Australian made ethanol and biodiesel can strengthen Australia’s fuel security, reduce emissions, support growers and regional communities, and ensure this sovereign manufacturing capability is fully utilised here at home.

Robert Spurway, Graincorp CEO says domestic manufacturing of low carbon liquid fuels presents a significant opportunity for Australia’s grains industry, regional communities and the broader economy. It has the potential to create new value chains that connect Australian grain production and processing capability to emerging global energy markets while supporting the decarbonising of hard to abate sectors such as aviation and heavy transport.

Graincorp is working with Ampol and IFM investors on Australia’s largest proposed renewable fuels project, including a 750,000 to 1 million tonne canola crush facility supplying feedstocks for sustainable aviation fuel and renewable diesel production. It has the potential to produce up to 750 million litres of SAF and renewable diesel annually.

Merino fleece leads market improvement

AFTER THE small gains that were seen on day two of sales in the prior week, that sentiment continued to flow in last week’s wool market. All three selling centres offered on Tuesday, with Merino fleece showing the strongest gains, particularly in the West. Wednesday was back to Sydney and Melbourne where finer indicators battled to hold the levels of the previous day, whilst the medium Merino types had modest gains. Skirtings were well supported nationally over the two days, cardings held firm in Sydney and a little softer in the other two centres, and cross-breds’ upward run came to an end with falls in all categories, mainly 28-micron and finer suffering the largest losses. Buyers were keen to tell us that business was flowing far more readily over the past week than the previous four, and this was highlighted in the Room one sale on Wednesday for our catalogues. From the first lot, bids flowed readily, some up to 100 cents from their starting point, such was the enthusiasm to secure bales. Again, the small quantities are a focal point, with the big Chinese mills need for regular purchases to keep machinery running, sometimes superseding market forces. This week’s small offering will test that theory. The industry move to Goulburn to establish the new Northern wool selling centre received good news recently, with the announcement of a $1.4 million grant to AWH. Yennora has been in operation since 1971, but with the growth in the cost of commercial space, future rental costs and the imminent redevelopment of the site has made the move necessary. Our information is that all current brokers except for Elders are close to finalising contracts to be tenants of the new facility. The proposed store is owned by AWH, and they are planning on establishing the Goulburn Wool Auction Innovation Hub, with the hope that this decentralisation into a wool growing area will encourage locals to become part of the industry. It will all happen very quickly, seeing that the proposed starting date is the first sale in January 2027. Only two sales remain before the three-week recess, with this week’s two centres offering of less than 22,000 bales. Macwool and Carmichael wool catalogued 1736 bales for yesterday’s auction.

Market continued down that path last week, even if slightly erratically. NRI lost 2 cents on Tuesday and a further 1 cent on Wednesday. Best results for week were concentrated between the 19.5 to 20 micron Merino fleece types, resulting in 25 to 40 cent rises. Crossbred sector (a standout performer over the past 12 months) gave back some recent gains, essentially holding back the headline market indicators from being reported dearer for the week. In US dollars the market took a more positive lift of 13 cents. 27,307 bales were sold the passed-in rate considerably lower at 5.7%. Major buyers included Techwool, PJ Morris and Endeavour. With the Western region not conducting a sale this week the national offering falls to just 21,600 bales. Early estimates for next week indicate around 25,000 bales in what will be the final sale before the annual three-week mid-year recess.

Racing at Cowra (110726)

A HOMETOWN win by Mathew Cahill is always popular with the locals and the leading jockey delivered the goods with a double aboard Cascata Spritz and There She Goes, last Saturday at Cowra.

Getting the day off to a good start in the 1200 metres Jeffs Joinery & Building Centre Maiden Plate, Mathew Cahill on the Joe Cleary, Queanbeyan trained Cascata Spritz ($4.40) led from the 600m for a comfortable win over Cool Nanczye (Dylan Stanley, $41) and Bangelz (Clayton Gallagher, $3.30). Mathew Cahill has ridden a lot of winners over the years for the Ryan family from Bathurst and he was on the Andrew Ryan trained There She Goes in the 1100m Bryant’s Concrete Benchmark 50 Handicap.

Bred by the Ryan’s from their good Sydney winning mare Somebody, There She Goes ($5.50) led for home and staved off by a long head Champ De Mars (Jacob Stiff, $4.40 favourite) and Spiritual Mystery (Quayd Krogh, $61).

Fresh from their success at Rosehill with It’s A Tata last week, apprentice Izzy Neale and Dubbo trainer Brett Robb won the 950m Kilby’s Heating & Cooling Class 1 Handicap with the three-year-old gelding Kevin. A half-brother to the outstanding Robb trained Gallant Star, Kevin ($2.15 fav) took the early lead and held on to score by a neck from Elderberry Wine (Clayton Gallagher, $17) and King Lesong (Emma Ly, $151).

Lady Giovanna ($1.90 fav) settled midfield and finished too well for Eighteen Months (Rochelle Wedrat-Kroezen, $21) and Azucar (Jess Del Frari, $10).

Six horses were stretched across the track and all looking a winning chance inside the final 50 metres of the 1100m Ben Core Electrical Benchmark 50 Handicap.

Trained at Narromine by Kylie Kennedy for Robert Gainsford, Ready For Lift Off (Jessica Brookes, $8.50) in the centre, gained a nose margin decision over Hell Of A Show (Jordan Quince, $13) on the rails, with a half-neck to Cool Space (Jacob Stiff, $2.50 fav) finishing strongly on the outside.

Very well ridden by Kody Nestor for Dubbo trainer Clint Lundholm, Moonzone ($3.70 fav) tracked the pair of leaders and drew clear in the straight to beat Sanzeno (Rochelle Wedrat-Kroezen, $13) and Jade Division (Leanne Boyd, $26) by nearly a length in the 1375m Cowra Motors Benchmark 50 Handicap).

Carinda Cup on Saturday and Warren TAB on Tuesday, July 21 followed by Coonabarabran TAB and Trangie Picnics on Saturday July 25.
